Troops Asked At O'Connell Talk Tonight In Jersey City

Moore Given Appeal for Militia as 200 Vote to Bar Legislator.

Hague Foes Move For Court Order

Decree Would Permit C. I. O. to Picket, Leaders to Stay in Town.

By the Associated Press

Jersey City, May 26.—As veteran and labor groups today called another monster mass meeting for tomorrow night to block Representative Jerry O'Connell's scheduled speech at Pershing Field, the Hudson County committee for labor defense and civil rights called upon Gov. A. Harry Moore to use the National Guard to protect O'Connell's meeting.

Simultaneously Federal Court Judge William Clark, of Newark, announced the drafting of a tentative decree covering all main points in the struggle between Mayor Frank Hague and the C. I. O., American civil liberties and others—except the No. 1 controversy, the city's ordinance requiring police permits for public meetings.

If both sides finally agree to the language the order will be signed tomorrow by Judge Clark, who set next Wednesday for trial of the attack on the speech-making ordinance. If they do not agree the whole case will be tried at that time.

"Keep O'Connell Out."

A rally of 200 persons representing various Jersey City groups unanimously adopted tonight a motion to "keep Jerry O'Connell the hell out of here."

The offerer of the motion was unidentified at a meeting in the Jersey City armory at which Col. Hugh A. Kelly, secretary to Gov. Moore, presided.

Kelly said the delegates of war veteran, church, fraternal and other groups at tonight's meeting represented 50 organizations and 100,000 persons.

Kelly Asks Calm.

"Let there be no disorder at the Pershing Field meeting," Kelly said after the resolution was adopted. "If there is any trouble, let them start it."

The Governor's secretary asked Adjutant General William A. Higgins, who attended the rally, whether Moore could fulfill the request for National Guard protection. Higgins said troops could be sent to Jersey City only if asked by "duly constituted authorities of Jersey City."

"I don't think O'Connell will come," commented Kelly, who organized a demonstration of thousands of persons in Journal Square when O'Connell and Representa-

James Roosevelt Is Suffering From Ulcer, Clinic Finds

Rochester, Minn., May 26 (AP).—James Roosevelt, the President's son and secretary, is "suffering from a small gastric ulcer," the Mayo clinc announced today. Young Roosevelt left today by plane for Washington and will return next month for treatment.

"Whether an operation will be eventually undertaken," the clinic said, "will depend upon response to treatment."

Dr. G. B. Eusterman, chief consultant, said: "We are not very much concerned, as the symptoms have been in almost complete abeyance for the past year."

Cram, Pupils! Roosevelt's A Tax Prof

President Will Tell Graduates His Decision on Complicated Bill.

By the Associated Press.

It'll take a lot of homework for the 13 graduates of the Arthurdale, W. Va., High School to understand the new Federal tax bill which President Roosevelt will tell them about today.

The President hasn't yet let the public know whether he will sign the bill, veto it, or let it become a law without his signature, but he is expected to reveal his decision when he speaks to the Arthurdale graduating class at 2 p. m. The rest of the country may listen in on the radio.

A reliable informant said yesterday there are only about a dozen persons in all Washington who really know all that the measure contains. The President isn't one of them and neither is the Secretary of the Treasury nor any member of Congress.

Mere 100 Pages in Bill.

They can tell you the broad outlines, but the details are known only to such lifelong students of taxation as Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill. The bill is more than a hundred pages long and involves 239 changes in present laws.

As a starter, the high school pupils should know that at least ten different kinds of taxes are involved — individual income, corporation income, capital gains, undistributed profits, capital stock, manufacturers excise, stamp, gift and import excise taxes.

How much money is involved?

Presbyterians Pick Dr. Welch As Moderator

Louisville Pastor, One-Time Railroader, Is Elected on 2d Ballot.

By the United Press.

Philadelphia, May 26.—The 150th annual assembly of the United States Presbyterian Church late today elected the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Welch, of Louisville, Ky., as moderator and religious director of 2,000,000 American families.

The 60-year-old former railway brakeman, now pastor of Fourth Avenue Presbyterian Church in Louisville, polled 485 votes on the second ballot after failing to obtain the necessary majority at the first poll.

The Rev. Dr. Robert Freeman, Pasadena, Calif., was second with 178 votes, followed by the Rev. S. Willis McKelvey, Kansas City, Mo., with 96 votes, and the Rev. Dr. Ezra Allen Van Nuys, San Francisco, with eight.

Election of the Kentucky pastor followed a plea for a Southern moderator as a gesture to Southern churches which seceded from the mother organization during the Civil War.

Alienist for Thaw Wins $750 in Suit

New York, May 26 (AP).—The alienist whose testimony bolstered the insanity plea that saved Harry Thaw from the electric chair 30 years ago was awarded a $750 judgment against the slayer of Stanford White. Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe had sued for $10,000 plus interest from 1908.

Wage-Hour Bill Sent to Conference

South Is Granted Two Senate Spokesmen on Committee.

11th-Hour Concession Enhances Chance of Modification.

Wages and Industry.

By addition of two Southern Senators to the joint committees Senate leaders were enabled to send the wage-hour bill to conference without objection.

South Gains Point.

By Robert C. Albright.

The strife-ridden wages and hours bill late yesterday was sent to a Congressional conference committee without a word of opposition after an eleventh-hour bargain with Southern Democrats.

The last-minute leadership agreement gave the South two Senate spokesmen on the conference group that will determine whether wage minimums will be uniform for the Nation, or whether the deep South will get the sectional wage differentials it seeks.

The leadership "trade" averted a threatened fight by Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, to send the ironclad House bill to the Senate Labor Committee for revision.

Modification Enhanced.

At the same time, the Southern additions to the conference committee enhanced the possibility either that some of the elastic features of the more flexible Senate bill will be retained in the final draft, or that there will be no wage-hour legislation.

Satisfied with the arrangement for the present, as "the best we could do," Harrison pointed out that another opportunity for floor opposition will be afforded when the bill returns from conference, in event no differentials are preserved.

Harrison denied that at any time he has threatened a "filibuster."

The two Southern additions to the enlarged Senate conference committee were Senator Pepper (Democrat), Florida, and Senator Ellender (Democrat), Louisiana, both stal-

Tammany Leader Indicted by Dewey Upon 13 Counts

New York, May 26 (AP).—James J. Hines, long a power in Tammany Hall, was named today in a 13-count indictment as a conspirator in the multi-million-dollar policy racket.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, who obtained the indictment, said Hines' role was to provide political protection and to act as "front man" with supposedly pliant jurists, jurors and prosecutors.

Hines pleaded not guilty to the charges, which would make him liable to a 25-year prison sentence. He was free tonight on $20,000 bail.

13 Police, 50 Pickets Injured In Strike Battle at Detroit

By the United Press.

Detroit, May 26.—Police and union pickets clashed at the gates of the American Brass Co. plant today, hurling sticks, stones and tear gas.

At least 13 policemen were hospitalized, of whom four were in serious condition. Officials of the United Automobile Workers Union said 50 of their members were injured.

The skirmish broke out as the company attempted to escort nonstrikers through a picket line of 600 men and women. Most of the pickets were U. A. W. members staging a "sympathy demonstration" against collapse of negotiations between the company and the C. I. O. Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union.

Police and pickets fought until mounted officers rushed in and hurled tear gas bombs. Several were knocked unconscious.

Lieut. Wesley Brown suffered severe head injuries. Other officers were taken to Receiving Hospital suffering from tear gas and head and stomach injuries. Approximately 150 police were patrolling the area when fighting started.

Two union sound trucks were damaged. Police shattered glass and threw tear gas into one to force out the occupants.

Women and children in the picket lines screamed and ran for cover. Several were knocked down in the melee. One 15-year-old school boy suffered lacerations and blackened eyes.

A strike was called at the plant five weeks ago in protest against a 10 per cent wage cut. Approximately 750 employes were affected. The plant was opened after three weeks and operated with a skeleton force.

Negotiations broke down two weeks ago.

Navy's Color Girl for June Week

Miss Ruth Schiedinger, of Monroe, Mich., who was chosen yesterday by Elton L. Knapp, also of Monroe, commander of the company which won regimental competition, as color girl for June week activities at the Naval Academy. Morgan Still Regards Self as Head of TVA

Ousted Chief Might Provoke Court Test by Suing for Salary; Two Directors Answer Charges at Congressional Hearing.

By Sidney Olson.

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, the former chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority who was ousted by the President on March 23, told The Post last night that he still considers himself chairman and director of the TVA.

He made the statement without qualification, in contrast to his recent reticence on all matters pertaining to the Authority.

He would not, however, indicate whether he intends to sue for his salary, which would result in a direct court test of the power of the President to remove a TVA director.

Accused of 'Sabotage.'

The tall Ohian made the statement after he had heard his case against his fellow-directors blasted and himself accused of trying vainly "to obstruct and sabotage" the Government's case in a law suit on which hung the very life of the TVA.

The new chairman, Harcourt A. Morgan, and the other director, David E. Lilienthal, took the stand successively to present a five-hour detailed refutation of former chairman Morgan's charges and heavily-substantiated charges of their own.

Both Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan made smashing attacks on A. E. Morgan's tactics in letting the public, the press, the President and

Dr. Abel Dead; Found Secret Of Adrenalin

By the United Press.

Baltimore May 26.—Dr. John Jacob Abel, internationally known pharmacologist and discoverer of adrenalin, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital today after a brief illness. He was 81 last Thursday.

He had been a member of Johns Hopkins faculty since 1893. He was made professor emeritus of pharmacology and director of the laboratory for endocrine research in 1932, a position he held until his death.

Stricken two days ago with heart disease, he was taken to the university hospital. He died at 4 p. m. today.

A native of Cleveland, Dr. Abel was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1883. Subsequently he studied abroad and during his lifetime received a number of honorary degrees.

He became famous for his discovery of adrenalin, a heart stimulant. Later he perfected a method for synthesizing insulin so that it could be produced from other than animal secretions.

He received many distinguished medical awards during the past 40 years, and at the time of his death was preparing a series of papers on tetanus (lockjaw).

Only a few days ago he told friends that if he lived another 10 or 20 years he would be able to complete the study.

Police Rout 4,000 At Goodyear Plant; 25 Go to Hospital

Akron, Ohio (Friday), May 27 (AP). With tear gas and clubs, police cleared 4,000 United Rubber workers and sympathizers today from the gates of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.'s vast plant No. 1.

The C. I. O. Union, called a strike two hours earlier, declaring it "got nowhere" in negotiations last night with the company over various claimed grievances.

From 25 to 30 perons were hospitalized. Some of them were unconscious or otherwise in a serious condition. The injured included several women and girls.

Salmon Not There For Japan to Catch

Seattle, May 26 (AP).—L. G. Wingard, chief agent of the United States Bureau of Fisheries in charge of Alaskan activities, termed as "ridiculous" today statements that Japanese fishermen were catching salmon in the Bering Sea.

"There are no salmon there at this time of the year," he said.

Floyd Hamilton, Bandit, Believed In Texas Shooting

By the United Press.

Tyler, Tex., May 26.—The box office of the baseball park at Kilgore, 25 miles east of here, was held up tonight by two men believed to be Floyd Hamilton and Ted Walters soon after the two desperadoes escaped in a running gun battle with officers in Tyler.

The outlaws escaped more than a month ago from the Montague County jail. They were seen on the Tyler public square by W. D. Blackburn and F. O. Goen, agents of the State liquor control board.

With the aid of City Policeman K. H. Hamilton, the liquor agents attempted to arrest the pair. The outlaws leaped into their automobile and fled through the streets of the east Texas oil town, returning gunfire of the officers.

Judge, Son Seek U. S. Senate Seats

Reno, Nev., May 26 (AP).—Albert Hilliard, Reno attorney, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate seat now held by Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada.

Hilliard's father, State Supreme Court Justice Benjamin C. Hilliard, Denver, recently announced he would be a candidate for the Senate in Colorado.

Ickes would not comment on Britain's unemployment and relief problem as represented by the distressed Welsh coal districts he passed on the tiresome, 7-hour ride to London.

Hirota Falls; New Regime Speeds War

Generals Handed Key Positions in Japanese Cabinet.

150,000 More Troops Expected to Be Sent to Mainland.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, May 26.—A drastic cabinet shakeup today gave Japan a government designed for sterner prosecution of the undeclared war on China.

The reorganization placed two powerful retired generals and one of Japan's greatest financiers in the cabinet, and was expected to give the government a tighter rein on the army.

The new ministers were:

Kido Gets New Post.

Marquis Kiochi Kido, who was replaced by Gen. Araki as minister of education, remained in the cabinet in the newly-created post of minister of public welfare.

They were installed by Emperor Hirohito tonight.

Shinji Yoshino, minister of commerce and industry, also resigned. It was believed Ikeda would assume his post, combining under one head all economic and financial activities of the government in support of the army.

Some sources said Yoshino might remain as vice minister in charge of commerce, and Okinobu Kaya, retiring finance minister, also remain as an aide to Ikeda.

Authoritative sources said Gen. Sugiyama, war minister, would quit office Monday, to be replaced by Lieut. Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, one of the outstanding commanders in the China war. Itagaki was expected to leave China Sunday for Tokyo.

Inclusion of both Ugaki and Araki, long bitter opponents in struggles for army leadership, was believed to indicate an effort to rally all factions behind efforts to win early victory in China.

Parking Violators Threatened With Wholesale Arrest

Wholesale arrests for parking violations were threatened yesterday by Inspector William E. Holmes, traffic supervisor, unless District motorists learn to obey the new rule prohibiting parking within 20 feet of the building line at intersections.

The order, Holmes said, is designed to protect motorists and pedestrians alike. Intersections free from obstructions are necessary if the riding and walking public is to be safeguarded, he added.

Holmes said he also was making plans for the removal of overhanging tree limbs and leaves which obstruct the view of stop signs.

Russia blocked Britain's efforts to settle the Spanish nonintervention question, while the British tried again to lessen Czechoslovak-German friction.

British Forestalled.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 26.—Great Britain today sought to speed European appeasement by settling the Spanish nonintervention question, but Russia stepped squarely in her path.

At the same time, Britain sounded out Germany and Czechoslovakia on the idea of letting British observers help calm the Sudeten German furore.

She also promised to consider the dispatch of an international commission to investigate German-Czechoslovak border incidents, which have caused war fears in Europe.

Russia made it clear to the nonintervention subcommittee in London she would accept no plans for European appeasement which left her out.

She alone blocked British plans for a hands-off-Spain agreement expected to open the way for consummation of the Easter Anglo-Italian friendship pact, resumption of French-Italian negotiations for a similar accord, and ultimately Prime Minister Chamberlain's coveted four-power understanding among Britain, France, Germany and Italy.

All nine nations represented on the subcommittee accepted the British proposal that withdrawal of 10,000 foreign voluteers from each side, government and insurgent, should be considered sufficient to warrant the granting of belligerent rights to both.

But Russia blocked agreement by refusing to accept three other proposals the other members approved:

A 30-day closing of the French and Portuguese frontiers within 15 days after the arrival of nonintervention committee representatives in Spain to supervise troop withdrawals, plus a 10-day closure if the withdrawals proceeded satisfactorily.

Her Purpose Two-fold.

Russia's purpose was believed to be two-fold:

She believes the Anglo-French plan for Spanish nonintervention would doom Spain's government by letting the insurgents smash to a quick victory while choking off Barcelona's supplies by closing the French frontier.

She fears that kind of "Spanish settlement" would lead even-

Air 'Invasion' Charged.

By the United Press.

Prague (Friday), May 27.—Czechoslovakia's frontier crisis boiled with new complications early today as the government prepared to lodge representations in Berlin against border "violations" in which Czech army planes were said to have encountered German bombers over Czech territory.

Circles close to the government said steps would be taken to call Germany's attention to the incident involving the bombers.

The situation assumed deeper gravity when Deutsches Nachrichten Bureau, Germany's official news agency, questioned the sincerity of the Czech allegations and said they were designed to "save face with the western powers."

The reply appeared to refer to Germany's protest Wednesday regarding "hostile" frontier incidents involving Czech planes. The news agency suggested that the Czechs drew up their charges in order to have a "counter-claim."

An official announcement in Prague said 34 German planes had crossed the border since last Friday, once in military formation, and on one occasion traveled a long distance inland to circle over the large munitions plant at Pilsen.

The incident involving the German bombers occurred late Thursday, the government said, when two large German planes with the Swastika emblem visible on their wings appeared over the Bohemian town of Asch, home of Sudeten Minority Leader Konrad Henlein.

Czech military planes went out to meet them, it was asserted, and the bombers swerved and returned to German territory.

San Luis Potosi State Secedes From Mexico, Say U.S. Reports

By the United Press.

Laredo, Tex., May 26.—The legislature of the state of San Luis Potosi, by a manifesto written in the manner of articles of confederation, seceded from the central government of Mexico on May 15, according to information reaching this Mexican border city tonight.

Called into extraordinary session after President Cardenas sent government troops into the state to disarm agrarian followers of Gen. Saturnino Cedillo, the legislature reportedly named Cedillo commander in chief of the army and exhorted other states to join it in forming a provisional government for Mexico.

The reported manifesto proposed that a junta, after the overthrow of the Cardenas regime, name a provisional president until the next regular election. It contained 11 articles.

San Luis Potosi, Mexico, May 26.—The Mexico City-Laredo "Sunshine Special" train today was derailed, 26 miles north of here reportedly by rebels under the command of Gen. Saturnino Cedillo. The engine, two express cars and a second-class coach were overturned.

First reports said no one was kliled, but it was not immediately determined whether there were any injured.

A military train and a passenger train left here to bring stranded passengers and mail to this city.

It was believed that rebels in the vicinity of Santa Maria del Rio, where fighting occurred between insurgents and federal forces last week, had loosened the rails by removing the spikes.

Meanwhile, President Lazaro Cardenas moved to restore constitutional government in this state as

Gold Hoard Lost 200 Years Found In Paris Building

Paris, May 26 (AP).—A wrecker's axe led tonight to the discovery of 5,000 pieces of gold valued at 2,500,000 francs ($69,250) which had been forgotten since the eighteenth century.

The treasure was found in a city-owned building being demolished in the Rue Mouffetard in the ancient Latin quarter.

A yellow parchment was found with the gold. It bore the likeness of King Louis XV (1710-1774) and the legend:

"I, Sieur, Louis Nivelle, equerry, counselor and secretary to the king, bequeath my entire fortune to my daughter, Anna Louise Claude Nivelle."

New Bid Made ToCompromise OnUtilityLoans

Strong support was claimed in the Senate last night for a new proposal to arbitrate use of PWA funds to duplicate private power facilities, as the Administration fought to eliminate all curbs on public power loans and grants from the bill.

The compromise amendment was offered by Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, as action on the $3,247,000,000 spending-lending bill was delayed by a new outburst of charges that the Works Progress Administration is "oozing" politics.

Maloney asked that PWA funds be advanced for duplicating municipal power plants only when private utilities refuse a fair offer, with provisions for notice to the private utility that a locality is seeking funds to build its own system. Where the private system refused an offer, an arbitration committee of three, representing the municipality, the private utility and one neutral party, would determine a "fair and reasonable" price.

Barkley to Tell Stand.

Attempting to head off any concessions, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, who recently abandoned a compromise less generous to the utilities, indicated he would issue a statement setting forth the Administration's attitude toward the sizzling power issue.

While Maloney was predicting Senate approval of his arbitration plan, following a canvass of sentiment, Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, started framing still another amendment. Hatch proposed continuance of the present system of power loans and grants except in cases where the private company agreed to reduce its rates to those the municipality would have to charge.

The most turbulent fight on the bill promised to break around this issue raised when the Senate Appropriations Committee asked that no PWA advances be made to duplicate any going private systems now publicly regulated. The change in policy was proposed following promises by utilities spokesmen to create a "vast job pool" to take up unemployment slack if the threat of Government competition was removed.

Meanwhile Sentaor Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, revived the issue of "politics in relief" in another floor attack on Works Progress Administrator Hopkins for declaring for the candidacy of Representative Otha D. Wearin in his fight to unseat Senator Guy M. Gillette in the Iowa Democratic primaries.

Holt charged that Hopkins is deliberately "priming the elections." He predicted relief rolls will be increased in Iowa in support of Wearin's candidacy, and that opponents of Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, and George (Democrat), of Georgia, will "get WPA aid" in their fight to defeat those anti-Administration incumbents.

Calling for Hopkins' dismissal, Holt said:

"If Harry Hopkins is so dumb that he doesn't know there is politics in WPA, I wouldn't trust him with 10 cents, let alone with millions of dollars he would use to make Senators vote right."

He said he "wasn't foolish enough" to think the President would follow his advice. "He will probably give Hopkins a raise."

Says Speeches "Do Good."

"But I think this speech is going to do some good in West Virginia," he said. "Every time I make a speech they add hundreds of relief workers to the rolls in my State."

Holt charged Hopkins was using relief funds "not alone to punish hungry people to force them to get in line, but to force Senators and Representatives to vote as Harry Hopkins wants them to. If you don't think so, just try to buck Harry Hopkins and then go down and ask him for a project."

Holt charged enough money was spent in the Florida primaries "to pave a concrete highway from Key West clear to San Francisco." He charged WPA officials in Pennsylvania openly influenced relief workers to vote for Thomas Kennedy, sponsored by John L. Lewis, Senator Guffey and Postmaster General Farley for the Keystone State governorship.

Although he did not mention Barkley, of Kentucky, by name, he read some excerpts from the protest sent the President by the manager of Gov. Chandler's campaign to unseat the Senate leader, which charged in its full text that WPA was aiding Barkley's candidacy.

Later Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, charged that a number of WPA workers in New York City were afraid to vote for him in his mayoralty contest last year for fear they would lose their jobs.

Copeland took the floor in support of efforts to earmark every cent of PWA "pump priming" funds in the spending bill. He has offered an amendment to earmark $324,000,000 for specific rivers and harbors and flood control projects. Others would earmark the remainder of the funds to assure preference for PWA projects approved but not provided for under the last priming program. Copeland said the Senate could prevent "human misery being made a political football" if it would earmark the bill so Administration officials would not have complete freedom in making allotments.

Senator Vandenberg (Democrat), of Michigan, told the Senate "there is always going to be politics in relief, no matter how you operate it," and declared he saw "no prospect for a recession in the recession." Vandenberg made another argument for the Republican amendment returning administration of Federal relief funds to the States.

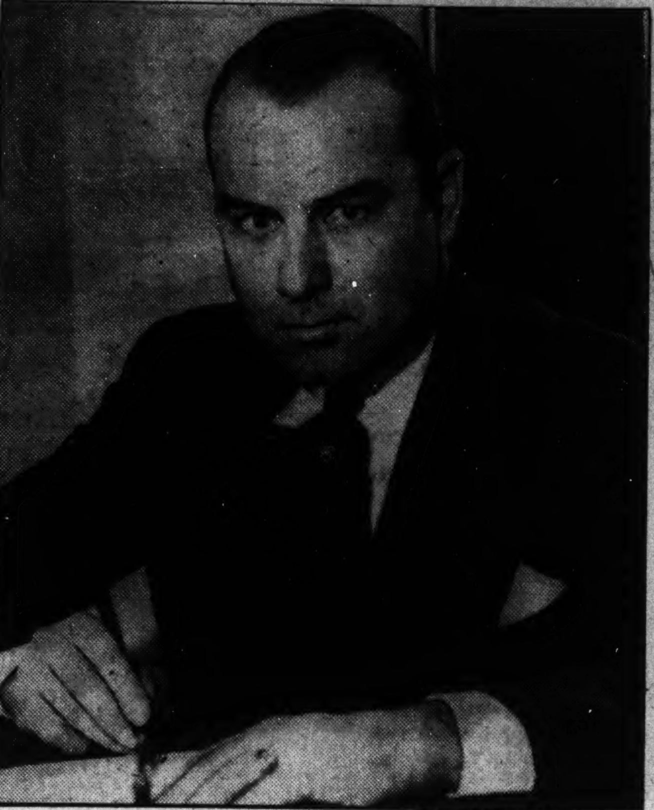
Congress Financially Liberal To Capital, Says Rep. Nichols



REPRESENTATIVE JACK NICHOLS.

D. C. Called Unappreciative of Vast Amount of Work by Committee; $5,000,000 More Than Offsets City's Services, He Says.

By Christine Sadler

Washington gets liberal financial treatment at the hands of Congress, in the opinion of Representative Jack Nichols, who was assigned to the District of Columbia Committee as he arrived here in 1935 and who thinks Congressmen serving on the committee usually come out at the "little end of the horn."

"Most of them would not chose this committee. They have to do a vast amount of work, most of it wholly unappreciated in the District and almost all of it unappreciated back home. The candidates who run against them are sure to tell their constituents that they were sent to Washington to represent the home folks, but have been giving over their time to the District of Columbia," he says.

In regard to the $5,000,000 annual contribution to the District from Congress, Representative Nichols declares: "I doubt that if the Federal contribution was based upon the amount of services rendered to the District government as against the services rendered to the Federal Government by the District it would be as much as $5,000,000.

"Also, I doubt it would be that much if measured by the amount of taxes which would be paid on the property, outside of parks, if that property were valued purely and simply as business property and not as Government buildings.

"Furthermore," concludes the young Oklahoman, "there is no reason why the Federal Government should be paying a contribution to the government of the District of Columbia."

Nichols is sure that every District resident with any plan to discuss or any suggestion to make gets a fair amount of time from the District committees and is considered by them. He believes, too, that the committees endeavor to be governed as much as possible by what the majority of District residents wish—as much as that can be determined.

"I am not sure, however," he says, "that the Congress always does what it is believed the District residents wish."

Although Congressmen find District committee work to be the least appreciated and understood, Nichols would not have the District's relationship to the Congress changed. He does believe, though, that the people of Washington should be given a more complete control over their local government.

"I think there must have been some very sound and fundamental reasons for feeling that it was necessary to hold apart this little spot in the United States which would be entirely separated from the State governments and be 100 per cent under control of the Federal Government.

"Now, if these reasons were sound 100 years ago, I know of nothing that has altered the situation.

"I do think, however, that some change should be made in the manner in which the citizens of the District of Columbia are governed.

"I doubt that the founders of our National Government envisioned a city of several thousand inhabitants in the District. Particularly, I think the citizens should have more complete control of the levying of their taxes and the purposes for which the taxes are expended after they are collected," he declares.

Nichols, who is up for re-election this year, is one of the most active young men in the Congress and has all the energetic and breezy qualities usually attributed to Westerners. Into his office stream Oklahoma Indians, cowboys, air officials, and a lot of plain Bill Joneses from his Second District. All receive the same jovial welcome, as their Congressman dashes around from committee meetings to House sessions and back to take them out to lunch. As often as not, he's wearing a cowboy belt adorned with his name in cut-out letters and sporting a white silk shirt that also has the cowboy verve. He learned oratory as a guide in the Colorado Cave of Winds, and, before taking to the law, worked as a hard-rock miner. His name is Jack, he assures, and never has been John.

On Monday—Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate Disthict Committee, will conclude the "Working for Washington" series.

Harlan Plot Trial Judge Bars Testimony Given Labor Board

By the Associated Press.

London, Ky., May 26.—A 38-year-old Harlan County coal miner stood up in court today and dramatically pointed out pudgy Ben Unthank to the jury hearing the Harlan labor conspiracy case as the man who had offered him "good paying" work with the Harlan County Coal Operators Association in which good marksmanship with a gun was a major requisite.

[A long line of witnesses at a night session swore deputy sheriffs employed by the coal companies invaded a union meeting near Evart, Ky., shortly after the Wagner Labor Relations act was passed and drove the miners away at pistol point, the United Press said.—Editor's Note.]

Testimony taken in the National Labor Relations Board hearings was barred as evidence in the Harlan trial today. Judge Ford ruled after a conference with attorneys. He held the testimony was adduced "under compulsion," in that the company executives had no alternative than to testify and could claim no immunity.

Unthank has been identified by several Government witnesses as chief field deputy for the Operators' Association whose designated job was keeping union organizers out of Harlan.

The miner, Ed Lewis, who said he worked for the Black Mountain Corporation, Kenvir, Ky., said Unthank offered him a job early in 1937.

"I asked him what he wanted me to do," the lean, dark-haired miner related.

"He asked me was I a good shot, and I told him 'yes, pretty good.'

"Then he said, well, he didn't think he would want me to kill anybody, but I might be asked to knock up some dirt around near some people. . . ."

Former Sheriff Middleton's name was brought in to the case as an operator by a lanky colored miner who told of having been given a job as a loader at the Green Silver Coal Co. after having "left" his job at Cornett-Lewis Co.

"Middleton said the union wasn't doing employes any good and he was going to break it up in Harlan County," Huff continued.

"He offered me a job to spot union men for him, but I told him I would not take the proposition."

Leaders Urge Unity of U. S., Labor, Industry

Co-operation Seen as Key to Permanent Prosperity at Industrial Forum.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 26.—Representatives of Government, management, and labor, speaking tonight from the same forum, agreed that a permanent solution of the economic ills of the country depended upon bringing all three groups together in a program of co-operation.

The forum was held at the annual meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board—an organization for research maintained by industrial concerns of all sizes and from all parts of the country.

The speakers were W. Averell Harriman, chairman of board of Union Pacific Railroad; A. A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State; George H. Houston, president of Baldwin Locomotive Works; Philip H. Murray, vice chairman of Committee for Industrial Organization and chairman of Steel Workers Organization Committee; Otto S. Beyer, chairman of National Mediation Board; and Donald Richberg, former executive director of National Emergency Council and administrator of NRA in its latter days.

Tolerance of Views.

Harriman, chairman of the Business Advisory Council of Department of Commerce, said co-operation must begin with labor and management, and declared tolerance of other people's views must be a prerequisit in any program.

"Too many now expect co-operation to be achieved on the basis of the acceptance of their own point of view by the others," he said. "For example, people in Government expect business to come back into the game and play the game according to the new rules, while business is convinced that its arms are unreasonably ted by the new rules and that these rules will have to be modified before it can make its full contribution."

Harriman proposed that the conference board take the intiative in arranging a "national movement of co-operation," getting together individuals from both groups "who have the courage to assume publicly the responsibility of leadership."

Houston declared the country is ready and willing to support a program by which Government, labor and management would "reach an agreement upon the essentials for recovery within the framework of our American system of free enterprise and without coercion or suppression."

A prime requisite for successful management, he asserted, "is that the manager shall be qualified to assume and carry the responsibilities and duties of citizenship as well as those of business direction.

"Too frequently we find business executives prepared to stultify their personal convictions with respect to matters of grave import to the national wellbeing by adoption of managerial policies injurious to the country, but which they seek to justify by claims of immediate necessity on the part of the enterprises for which they act."

Compulsion Assailed.

Murray, after urging support of President Roosevelt's recovery program, said: "There should be convened, under Presidential auspices, at an early date, a truly representative group of citizens to work with each other toward the accomplishment of prosperity and stability."

Richberg told the conference that "brutal compulsion, evidenced by the arbitrary use of economic power or by lawless violence, has been the most intolerable and destructive element in our industrial relations.

Upholding collective bargaining as an instrument for a more efficient conduct of industry and a means of giving workers a "fairer share of the gains of industry," Beyer said: "The final and constructive phase of collective bargaining will consist of systematic joint counseling between the representatives of management and labor on subjects of joint interest other than wages, hours and working conditions."

Berle asserted a solution would have to be found for economic maladjustment in which "the underprivileged look at the production and cannot get it and the producer looks at the want and cannot satisfy it."

"You cannot expect great masses of people, who have kept every contract of civilization they ever heard about, to stand around in sweet reasonableness very long waiting for someone to make the machinery work.

"This is particularly true today. There are various groups from overseas who claim to be able to solve the problem. They are not backward in telling the world that they have the answer, if only men will surrender their liberty."

As an approach to a solution Berle recommended a complete organization of business, industry by industry, to provide, in effect a national association to conduct an extensive survey of production resources, markets, prices, employment conditions and methods of distribution.

The Gallup Poll

By Dr. George Gallup.

Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, May 26.—Three important facts concerning the strength of the new third party formed by the La Follette brothers are revealed in a national survey just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion. The Institute asked voters in all sections: "Have you heard of the new National Progressive Party led by the La Follette brothers? Do you think you would like to join it?"

George Gallup.

The results show:

1. The new party will have to add materially to its present strength if it is to become important politically. Aproximately 60 per cent of the voting population has heard about the party, according to the survey, but of this number only one person in 11 says he would like to join it. Translated into votes on the basis of the total cast in the 1936 election (45,000,000), this would give the La Follette party about 3,000,000 sympathizers at the start, or approximately 7 per cent o' the 1936 Presidential vote. The elder La Follette, father of the two brothers, polled more than twice as high a percentage when he ran on an independent ticket i. 1924.

2. The new party draws twice as heavily from the Democrats as from the Republicans. Whereas six in every 100 Republicans in the survey say they would like to join it, the rate among Democrats in 12 in every 100.

3. Preliminary indications tend to show a slightly higher rate of draw from urban areas than from farm areas.

Survey First of Series.

The Institute survey is merely a first test of the amount of public sympathy which the new party commands. Whether the La Follettes can win over additional recruits, or whether the party will lose momentum, only time will tell. The Institute will conduct additional studies in the coming months to test the strength of the third party movement, as well as of the two major parties.

South Least Familiar.

The La Follette party appears to have attracted most attention west of the Mississippi, where more than 7 out of every 10 voters have heard of it. East of the Mississippi the attention is slightly lower. In the South the party has stirred the least interest, with only a little more than half of voters (55 per cent) saying they are familiar with it.

Strength in West.

The survey found that, in general, the sections most familiar with the new party were also the sections most inclined to join it. Thus in the West Central section, which includes the La Follettes' home State of Wisconsin, about one voter in five said he would like to join the party. The next highest ratio—approximately one in eight—was in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast States. Throughout the New England, Middle Atlantic and East Central areas the proportion was still lower—1 in 11—and in the South it was lowest of all—1 in 20.

On Capitol Hill

Investigation Asked on Hoeppel's Conviction; Senate Committee Approves Drafting Money.

A plea for a House investigation of the trial and conviction of former Representative John H. Hoeppel, of California, was made before the rules committee yesterday by Representative Voorhis (Democrat), California. His resolution proposing the inquiry is before the committee.

VOORHIS.

Hoeppel and his son, Charles J., were convicted here of conspiracy to sell an appointment to West Point. Hoeppel was paroled after several months in prison.

Voorhis, telling the committee that Hoeppel still contends he is innocent, added "many people think he acted in many respects to shield his son."

Drafting of the use of money in war-time was approved by the Senate Military Affairs Committee, which approved a bill with such a provision, offered by Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma. The measure provides that in case of war a census of the Nation's wealth would be taken, the amount necessary to carry on the conflict would be determined, and bonds to that amount would be issued. Each person could be required to buy bonds according to his wealth.

The House Interstate Commerce Committee was told by the Treasury Department that a bill to establish an unemployment insurance system for railroad workers was "not in accord with the program of the President."

A letter from Acting Secretary Wayne C. Taylor to Chairman Lea (Democrat), California, said the department questioned the wisdom of creating an unemployment compensation system outside the social security act. Railroad employes already have a separate pension plan.

Thomas Cashen, chairman of the unemployment insurance committee of the Association of Railway Labor Executives, who said he represented more than 1,000,000 workers, declared the bill would save the railroads several million dollars annually.

• • • •

Legislation to aid the railroads became a topic again yesterday but there was no indication that steps would be taken to revive proposed laws buried on account of the roads' plan to cut wages.

Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, discussed with President Roosevelt again the "advisability" of trying to get some kind of legislation at this session.

"Obviously, something is needed," he said later. "We could study the problem for 20 years and we would not know much more about it than we do now."

• • • •

Creation of a joint committee representing numerous national interests to draft a comprehensive revision of the tax structure, was called for in a resolution introduced by Representative Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts. The committee would include two members each of the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee, and six to be named by the President to represent agriculture, industry, labor, taxpayers and consumers, tax lawyers and accountants and economists.

Treadway said that "in the past, tax revisions have to a large extent represented too much of the Treasury viewpoint."

Members of the Federal Communications Commission are to be questioned about charges of Congressmen backing an investigation of monopoly in the radio field, Chairman O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, of the Rules Committee, told the Associated Press. Charges have mentioned alleged "debauchery practices on investors," "fleecing of stockholders," "bankrupting" of competitors, and "indecent programs."

Bills signed by the President yesterday included:

One providing the Social Security Board an additional $3,500,000 to cover States' expenses in administration of State unemployment compensation up to June 30.

Another authorizing the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to waive its claims for assessments against stockholders of insured banks which fail. It is intended primarily to remove double liability of bonk stockholders in 13 States.

Rival Concedes Cannon's Victory

Jacksonville, Fla., May 26 (AP).—Henry H. Filer, of Miami, conceded defeat today on the basis of unofficial returns showing him trailing A. Pat Cannon, Townsend backed, by more than 400 votes in their run-off race for Democratic nomination to Congress from the Fourth Florida District to succeed J. Mark Wilcox.

J. Tom Watson, of Tampa, congratulated Circuit Judge Elwyn Thomas on victory in the only contest for nomination to the State Supreme Court.

23 Millions More Earmarked for 16 Housing Projects

The United States States Housing Authority set aside $23,230,000 yesterday for 16 proposed slum clearance and low-rent housing projects.

The reservation of funds increased to $357,778,000 the amount earmarked out of the $500,000,000 slum clearance program funds, and brought to 95 the number of local communities participating in the program.

Of the $23,230,000 reserved today, $21,230,000 was set aside for local housing authorities which previously had not participated in the program. These included:

Los Angeles, $5,000,000; Oakland, Calif., $5,000,000; Marion, Ind., $500,000; Lexington, Ky., $1,350,000; North Bergen, N. J., $900,000; Brownsville, Tex., $500,000; Corpus Christi, Tex., $750,000; Dallas, Tex., $3,000,000; Waco, Tex., $900,000.

14 Are Injured, 3 Severely, in D. C. Accidents

Girl Hurt When Two Sreetcars Collide at 14th and H.

Fourteen persons were injured—three seriously—in streetcar and automobile accidents yesterday.

In separate accidents, two pedestrians were seriously injured when struck by streetcars.

John McIntosh, 34, of 212 Buffalo avenue, Takoma Park, Md., suffered a fractured skull and other injuries when he was hit by a streetcar at Third and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He was taken to Casualty Hospital. The streetcar was operated by George Sollers, 35, of 1540 D street southeast.

Knocked down by a streetcar at Seventh and I streets northwest, an unidentified white man about 65 years old suffered serious skull injuries. Taken first to Emergency Hospital, he was later transferred to Gallinger Hospital. Police said that Alton M. Lee, of 1725 New Hampshire avenue northwest, was the operator of the streetcar.

Mrs. Dorothy Collings, 19, of 3800 Fourteenth street northwest, received chest and spinal injuries and suffered severe shock in the head-on collision of two street cars at the intersection of Fourteenth and H streets northwest.

She was treated at George Washington Hospital. Seven other persons were slightly injured. Mrs. Collings' injuries were described as serious last night.

Tram Jumped Track.

Others treated were Irene Andrews, 1301 Vermont avenue northwest; Mrs. Guy Curry, 2120 P street northwest; Goldie Solganish, 1341 Newton street northwest; Simon Sarentree, 1332 Belmont road northwest; Agnes Webster, 1412 Massachusetts avenue northwest; Mrs. Bessie Permset, 3030 Twelfth street northwest, and Will Wilson, 1311 Riggs place northwest.

Police said the northbound Fourteenth and Colorado car split the switch which turns cars into H street and jumped the track. It knocked the southbound car off the track as it collided. Both were new streamlined, high-powered cars.

Motorman of the northbound car was Eulia Henderson, 46, 923 Virginia avenue southwest; the southbound car was driven by Otis Hinson, 34, 1607 Isherwood street northeast, a rookie, while Armel Howard, 23, 1347 Oak street northwest, stood by as an instructor.

Policeman in Crash.

Motorcycle Policeman Richard E. Lane, 27,321 F street northeast, of the Twelfth Precinct, suffered a fractured right knee when he collided with an automobile at West Virginia avenue and Raum road northeast. He was admitted to Casualty Hospital. The motorist, Edward F. Leitch, 30, 1221 Raum road, was given a ticket on the charge of failing to yield the right of way.

Two other motorists were slightly injured in a collision at Constitution avenue and Twenty-second street northwest. Clarence Stevenson, 23, 2211 H street northwest, received cuts about the head, and Burnette Kean, 26, 513 Massachusetts avenue northwest, suffered shock in the crash which demolished front ends of both of the autos. Both were treated at Emergency Hospital and released.

Robert Fletcher, 23, 4950 Canal road northwest, was treated for lacerations about the face at Georgetown Hospital and then released after an accident near Falls Church, Va.

People See Doctor More Than Dentist, U. S. Survey Finds

Inhabitants of small midwestern towns may neglect visiting the doctor and dentist when funds run low, but they try to keep the medicine chest filled, according to a study conducted by the Bureau of Home Economics, Agriculture Department.

In seven towns, where information was obtained on 3,118 native white nonrelief families, it was found that dentists were consulted less frequently than physicians and visits to the oculist are usually omitted entirely. However, a majority of families at all income levels reported expenditures for medicines and drugs during the 12-month period studies in 1935-36.

"Average amounts spent for medical care in low income groups were not sufficient to pay for routine services for all family members," said Dr. Louise Stanley, bureau chief.

'Un-American' Investigation Voted in House

Seven-Man Committee Is Named; Will Study Propaganda.

By the United Press.

The House yesterday approved a resolution calling for an investigation of "un-American" organizations and foreign propaganda in this country.

The resolution, introduced by Representative Dies (Democrat), of Texas, calls for creation of a seven-man committee to inquire into the activities of the German-American Bund, the Communist Party and any such group it chooses to investigate.

The measure was adopted by voice vote after two hours of bitter debate, in which opponents, led by Representative Maverick (Democrat), Texas, charged the bill itself is un-American and threatens free speech.

Fears Inflamed Nation.

A speech by Dies was assailed by Representative Stefant (Republican), of Nebraska, who cautioned the House against "inflaming the country against innocent people." He said there are many "innocent" German-Americans in the United States.

Maverick said:

"I believe it is the opening wedge of religious persecution. And don't think the Germans won't get the best of it, because there are more Germans than Jews."

Representative O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, read a letter from a former newspaper man he did not name. It advised him his home had been picketed by Communists and said:

"I have deposited affidavits accumulated during two years that I have been studying communism from the inside that will lead to congressional investigation of communism and in time of war would send many to the firing squad.

Says Mail Isn't Safe.

"Mail is no longer safe as there is a Communist within every New York branch postoffice. In the office, or at the phone of every large industry there is a Communist spy. They claim a unit in the New York fire department.

"No one is safe on WPA in New York City, who does not join the C. P. The light, heat, water and power plants of the Nation are at the mercy of Communist spies.

"Official orders from Moscow called for enlistment of Communists in the Army, Navy, National Guard and R. O. T. C. This order was issued officially December 28, 1937."

Relief Will Get Right of Way Over D. C. Bills

Aid Measure to Precede All Other Legislation on Senate Calendar.

No action will be taken on District bills now on the Senate calendar until a vote is taken on the relief bill, Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, announced yesterday.

King said he had been told by Majority Leader Barkley that no time will be allowed for other legislation until the relief bill is disposed of. He had previously declared that he would call up the Alley Dwelling Authority and District PWA act amendments under unanimous consent as emergency measures.

The two bills to aid District firemen, passed by the House Wednesday, will be referred to a sub-committee, but will probably not be acted on by the full committee at this session, King said. The District Commissioners' opposition to the measure on the ground that the District cannot afford increased personnel cost will have great weight with the committee, King indicated.

The Senate District Committee head was bombarded by consumer groups yesterday with objections to the fair trade practice bill passed by the House Wednesday.

Senator King indicated he classed the measure with the Millard-Tydings rider to the 1938 District revenue act which he fought unsuccessfully last year on the Senate floor.

"Before any action is taken on the Palmisano bill we will hold ample hearings," King said. "There will be no railroading of this bill through the Senate."

The chairman said he will name a sub-committee to hold the hearings probably next week.

Famed Engineer, Wife Begin Summer Cruise Here Today

Henry Howard, Nearly 70, Is Master of 52-Foot Ketch; Couple Will Visit New England and Turn Toward Bahamas Later.

A couple of jolly Republicans, he the master of the good ship "Alice" and she his mate and yachtkeeper, will weigh anchor today in Washington Channel and head for a summer of cruising up and down the New England coastline.

The fact that Mr. and Mrs. Henry Howard are Republicans, through, has nothing to do with this story. Nothing was farther from their minds than politics yesterday as they sat in the ship's cabin and patiently answered questions on their amateur seafaring.

But wait a moment. . . . Didn't Mr. Howard, who is one of the Nation's best known chemical engineers, say he had just come from lunch with Senators Pepper and Green, of Florida and Rhode Island, respectively? Both Democrats!

Still and all, the couple began their northward cruise in Florida and their home—when they are there—is in Newport, R. I., which may account for their apparent apostasy. Especialy does it appear so when one considers that there are no G. O. P. Senators from either Florida or Rhode Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard are equally well known, possibly she more than her husband. In his seventieth year, he is a former president of the Manufacturing Chemists Association, a stanch supporter of the American merchant marine and a yachtsman of repute from Halifax to the West Indies.

The former Alice Sturtevant, who is 10 years her husband's junior, is founder and president of the Amercian Merchant Marine Library Association and author of "The Seaman's Handbook for Shore Leave," now in its sixth edition. She writes for the slick magazines, is a Colonial Dame and a D. A. R. and, more to the point, is a "darn good helmsman," to quote her husband.

They spend at least half of every year aboard the "Alice," their favorite haunts being the West Indies. A boating fan ever since the age of 15 when he invested his entire savings ($75) in a 15-foot catboat, Mr. Howard's professional duties prevented him from undertaking any truly serious yachting until he retired about ten years ago.

Since then the couple has traveled thousands of miles in the "Alice." Last winter the 52-foot centerboard ketch was laid up in Miami but for the next eight months or so the Howards will spend few nights on land, if any. When autumn comes they will point the little vessel's bow toward the Bahamas.

The only help they have aboard ship are Ramon, the Spanish cook and steward who has been with the "Alice" for a decade, and a young deckhand who was hired for the season. Howard is navigator, pilot, etc. His wife takes her turn at the wheel, keeps the cabins tidy (though she is wont to apologize for their appearance, in true feminine fashion) and promotes the library association in every port.

The association is the one that gathers books and magazines for the use of seamen on vessels flying the American flag. She proudly points out that there are now 1,400 floating libraries, with a quarter million books in circulation and nearly 200,000 magazines given out annually.

Howard's great grandfather was a privateer in the Revolution and his grandfather was a Boston shipbuilder. The couple have four children, three of them married, who will come aboard when the Alice reaches New England.

"But not all at once," they said in unison, a sweep of the hand indicating the limited berth space. "They'll take their turns."

Teacher Who Beat Pupil, 12, Accused

Miami, May 26 (AP).—William A. Lang, elementary school principal, was charged with assault and battery today as a result of a whipping assertedly given Bertram Monzon, 12, a pupil.

Lane had been exonerated by the school board. Mrs. W. W. Todd, mother of the boy, said he was beaten for stinging another pupil with a rubber band, and obtained an assault warrant. Lang said a thin slat he used could not have caused bruises found on the youngster's body.

2 Killed, 3 Hurt In Ammonia Blast

Charleston, W. Va., May 26 (AP).—Two men were killed and at least three injured late today in an explosion in the big chemical plant of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Co. at Belle, near Charleston.

The explosion occurred in the ammonia department. About 1,500 are employed in the plant.

The dead were: Dennis Carte, of diamond, and Burton Hall, of Charleston.

Fleet Transfer East Held Slap At Dictators

Borah and Walsh Interpret Maneuvers as Warning to Totalitarians.

By Barry Sullivan.

The United States yesterday gave proof of its intention to stand by the Monroe Doctrine and the inviolability of the Western Hemisphere in announcing the Navy's plans for maneuvers in the West Indies next February.

Senator William E. Borah, ranking minority member the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, led other officials in viewing the coming maneuvers as a slap at European dictatorships. He said it was his guess that the shift of the fleet, which has been in the Pacific most of the time since 1932, was a caution to totalitarian states not to meddle in the Western Hemisphere.

"I don't know what the President and the Navy Department have in mind, but that may be one of their objectives," commented Chairman David I. Walsh of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

Two Objectives.

Another member of the Foreign Relations Committee, asking that his name not be used, said he had been informed authoritatively that the Navy has two objectives in view:

To impress Europeans with the desirability of foregoing any effort to promote totalitarianism in South America.

To display United States sea power to Central and South American nations as an earnest of this country's ability to carry out its "good neighbor" policy by helping prevent the overthrow of their constitutional governments.

The fleet's projected visit to the World's Fair is an excuse for the demonstration.

As usual the Navy Department's statement was disarmingly soothing. It said: :

"The Navy Department announced today that Fleet Problem No. 20 will be held during the month of February in the West Indies and the Atlantic Ocean at least as far south as the Equator.

"The fleet is expected to sail from the West Coast of the United States early in January, hold the fleet problem in February, conduct exercises from Guantanamo as a base in March and April, visit the New York exposition in May and then return to the Pacific."

Not Just Social.

Additional significance was found in the announcement because the projected maneuvers will be known as "Fleet Problem No. 20." War games of unparalleled magnitude completed in the Pacific early this spring were designated "Fleet Problem No. 19."

Furthermore, factors of strategy, "as well as sociability," entered into the decision to move the fleet, some naval officials said yesterday. Defense of the Panama Canal bulks large in all Navy strategy.

The Navy's defense line in the Atlantic, which Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, said "would have to be covered" in an emergency, extends from Maine through the Virgin Islands to Panama.

In recent years the Navy has maintained in the Atlantic only three obsolescent battleships of the training squadron, a few cruisers and a collection of miscellaneous secondary craft, such as destroyers and submarines.

Some 150 warships and 50,000 men will make the journey through the Panama Canal for the five-month stay in the Atlantic. Only one other such move has been made since the Nation's sea power was concentrated in the Pacific in 1932. That was in 1934, when President Roosevelt reviewed the fleet at New York.

The fleet from the Pacific will test its speed in crossing the Panama Canal. At conclusion of the 1934 maneuvers a speed test required 41 hours.

To operate "at least as far south as the Equator," the fleet will have to move into the waters between Brazil and Africa.

Some military and naval experts contend that any European encroachment on South America will come from the west coast of Africa to Brazil.

Fleet to Give Canal Biggest Job in History

By the Associated Press.

The fleet's forthcoming shift from the Pacific to the Atlantic will give the Panama Canal its biggest job in history.

In 1934 the fleet, which was smaller than now, made the voyage from its California bases to the East Coast for maneuvers and a review at New York by President Roosevelt. The armada passed through the canal in 47 hours on its east-bound trip, and 41 hours on the return. The loss of a lamppost at a lock was the only mishap.

At least 150 warships, carrying 3,600 officers, 50,000 men and 500 planes, are expected to test the canal next January and again on the return in June. The biggest problem will be squeezing the 33,000-ton aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga through the locks.

Quick Ratification Is Seen for Keech

Prompt ratification of the renomination of Richmond B. Keech as a member of the Public Utilities Commission was indicated yesterday when the matter was referred to the Senate District Committee for report.

Having served on the commission since 1934, Keech was given another three year term by President Roosevelt in recognition of his services.

Keech was an assistant corporation counsel and a people's counsel for a four-year term before being appointed to the Public Utilities Commission to fill out the unexpired term of Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick in 1934. He has been vice chairman of the commission throughout his service.

Mexico Offers U. S. Proposal To Pay for Oil

State Department Studies Intricate Plan; Welles Confers With Daniels.

Mexico's proposal for compensating American oil companies for expropriated properties was in the hands of the State Department last night.

The proposal was submitted to Undersecretary Welles by Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera soon after his return from Mexico, where he has been in conferences on the problem.

The ambassador would not discuss details of the offer, but indicated it contained potential methods of compensation and guarantees for payment.

It was understood the plan was lengthy and intricate, requiring considerable study by the Department, and possible explanation or amplification by the envoy before it can be sent on to the oil companies, as the Mexican Ambassador requested.

The State Department's action is in line with Secretary Hull's statement on March 30 that the expropriated properties must be paid for by compensation "representing fair, assured and effective value to the nationals from whom these properties were taken."

The ambassador was in conference with Welles for an hour. It was understood that their conversations did not touch on the claims of British oil companies, over which Mexico has severed relations with Great Britain.

Josephus Daniels, United States Ambassador to Mexico, arrived at the State Department while Castillo Najera was there, but said later he did not attend the talk between Castillo Najera and Welles. After the Mexican envoy departed, however, he did discuss the situation with the Undersecretary.

The president, apparently confident that the backbone of the revolt has been broken with Cedillo reported to be hiding in the hills, sent three nominations to the federal senate, convoked in special session to select a successor to Mateo Hernandez Netro who abandoned the San Luis Potosi governorship last week, presumably to join Cedillo.

Those nominated were Gen. Genovevo Rivas Guillen, present military commander here: Brig. Gen. Perez Gallardo, and Deputy Aureliano Beloc. Gen. Guillen was later named provisional governor.

The provisional governor will serve until new state elections erase all traces of Cedillo's power.

National Defense Minister Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho announced the Ninth Federal Regiment had defeated rebels, headed by a bandit called Leija, at Villela, in southeastern San Luis Potosi near the Guanajuato state line. Three rebels were killed and one government soldier wounded.

[Gen. Lezama led a six-plane squadron which bombed and machine-gunner an airdrome near El Rucio, 93 miles northwest of this provincial capital city yesterday, the Associated Press said.

[He said the airdrome covered a considerable area and the attackers direct hit two buildings, both of which exploded. The explosions, he said, signified gasoline and munitions had been stored within.

[He said a group of mounted Cedillistas appeared but fled.

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS.

was considered a sequel to the political crisis in April, when Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye threatened to resign unless warring elements in his cabinet were reconciled.

The shakeup was believed to mean that a lengthy behind-the-scenes argument as to whether Japanese armies should penetrate deeper into China had been settled by a decision to drive on to Hankow as soon as possible.

Some authorities believed the inclusion of Ugaki and Araki—and probably Itagaki—would give the government more effective control over its generals in the field, ending the semi-independence assumed by some of the commanders.

Vast Force Expected.

Shanghai Friday), May 27 (U.P.).—Military attaches today forecast that Japan would send a minimum of 12 additional divisions—about 150,000 men—to China as a result of the reorganization of the cabinet in Tokyo and the decision to hasten the undeclared Chinese-Japanese war to an early "knockout victory."

The present Japanese strength in China—estimated to total less than 500,000 men—was described as entirely inadequate for the vast campaigns which subjugation of all China and the crushing of the power of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek will require.

The creation of what is tantamount to an all-army-navy cabinet in Tokyo was received here with great concern.

Seen End to Mediation.

Representatives of the powers believed it meant Japanese domination of this country with a vengeance, an end to all efforts at foreign mediation, and the rejection of pending demands of the powers, led by Great Britain, for an immediate opening up of the conquered areas of China to foreign navigation, travel, trade and residence.

The news came while Chiang was returning to Hankow after a tour of the Lunghai Railway front.

The generalissimo reached Hankow at midnight and was reported to have gone into conference immediately with his associates. It was believed he would insist the struggle be continued even if it was necessary for the government to abandon Hankow and flee westward to the second of its provisional capitals—Chungking in Szechuan Province.

A Japanese land offensive in South China—to cut the railway from British Hongkong to Hankow over which most of China's munitions are reaching the Central area—was expected.

Other developments were:

Chinese soldiers continued bitter resistance in the center and western sections of their fortified Lunghai Railway line while the Japanese consolidated their conquest of the Eastern sector and hurriedly repaired the Tientsin-Pukow Railway to link their provisional capitals in Peiping and Nanking, which shortly will be merged into a "national government" for the conquered areas.

Chinese reported severe fighting in a number of villages between Kaifeng and Lanfeng, east of Suchow, which was captured by the Japanese last week. Japanese columns were flanking a number of towns and striking periodically from the rear on railway positions held by the Chinese.

The Japanese claimed "rapid advances and strategic gains on all fronts." They had consolidated their positions in the captured city of Chenjukow, and were sending thousands of troops across the Yellow River northwest of Lanfeng on a pontoon bridge. This opened up a new short communications line with the Japanese-held Peiping-Hankow railway north of the river.

The Chinese asserted their planes had bombed the pontoon bridge and dispersed 2,000 Japanese infantrymen in the Chenjukow sector. They admitted, however, Japanese forces still were crossing the bridge.

West of Suchow, the Japanese said they were closing in on a big Chinese garrison surrounded in the railway city of Kweiteh and still were shelling the Chinese holding Kaifeng, farther westward.

tually to Anglo-French deals with both Hitler and Mussolini which might give Hitler what he wants in Czechoslovakia and isolate Russia.

If the other members of the committee went ahead without Russia they could not legally prevent continuance of Soviet supplies for Barcelona.

Therefore, it was expected strong pressure would be brought to bear on Moscow, before the sub-committee resumes its sessions next week, to get her to modify her stand.

Britain's plan to offer unofficial "umpires" to Germany and Czechoslovakia to consider border incidents and help her in the role of peacemaker was said still to be indefinite.

Authoritative sources, however, said William Strang, head of the central European department of the Foreign Office, would report on the proposal after visiting British diplomats in Berlin and Prague. He left for the Continent Tuesday.

Germany was understood to be not unfavorable to the plan.

R. A. Butler, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons the government would "bear in mind" a suggestion to send an impartial international commission to investigate alleged violations of the German-Czechoslovak border.

Italians Sound Warning.

Rome, May 26 (U.P.).—The Italian press, in an apparently inspired move, tonight became more outspoken regarding the Czechoslovak crisis and warned democratic powers to "hold their tongue" until Adolf Hitler has approved a formula for a peaceful settlement.

Newspapers praised Germany's moderation toward Prague and warned other nations against mistaking this attitude for fear.

Democratic "mentality," as shown in the last five days, was described as a dangerous element for the maintenance of European peace.

Virginio Gayda, editor of the authoritative Giornale D'Italia, which often mirrors government views, ridiculed assertions the Paris-London axis had silenced Hitler and swerved him from forceful action in Czechoslovakia.

Franco Planes Bomb French Border Town

Cerbere Attack Seen as Accidental; Loyalists Isolate Key City.

By the Associated Press.

Cerbere, France, May 26.—Insurgent Spanish war planes tonight destroyed a group of houses near the international railroad station here in a combined bombardment of Cerbere and Port Bou, Spain, only 100 yards across the border.

The fact that Port Bou was raided first led frontier officials to believe the invasion of French territory was accidental despite the departmental prefect's statement that difference in lighting of the two towns made the attack on Cerbere seem "deliberate aggression."

Two Frenchmen Hurt.

Two Frenchmen were wounded in the attack, but were not believed to be in serious condition.

Eight planes dropped some 15 bombs in the vicinity of the Cerbere station, destroying three houses and shattering the station's doors and windows.

The planes returned within an hour after the bombardment but were driven off by Spanish government antiaircraft batteries at Port Bou.

Cerbere, across from Spain's northeastern corner, is the control point of the principal railway linking France and government Spain. Nearby Port Bou has been bombed 40 times, some projectiles on these occasions falling in French territory.

Rebel Town Isolated.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 26 (U.P.).—Loyalist commanders tonight reported the "virtual isolation" of Tremp, key to five big hydroelectric plants along the Noguera-Pallaresa Valley, after a large-scale encirclement that left 3,000 insurgents dead and 6,000 wounded.

The official loyalist press agency said two parallel columns under Gen. Vicente Rojo had cut the main highways east and southeast of Tremp along the Catalonian border, capturing Mount Bourgues and Clunea Hermitage.

The insurgents admitted heavy pressure on Tremp, particularly in the San Corneli Heights, on the northeast, but insisted four attacks had been hurled back by Navarrese brigades.

Near Sort and Llavorsi strong loyalist forces attacked insurgent positions in an effort to break through and relieve the government's Forty-third "Lost Division," caught in a mountain trap for six weeks. The attacks were made along the main road from Lerida to Luchon, vital to insurgent communications and controlling many Pyrenees passes into France.

plant—largest in Czechoslovakia—the German aviators were said to have flown 50 miles over Czech territory from the heavily guarded frontier.

The German News Agency said the Czechs charges were based largely on confusion between military and passenger planes and suggested that the Czech government drew up its its list of alleged "violations," choosing dates several days back, "in order to make examination of the charges more difficult."

"It is hardly to be assumed that the Czech authorities would hestitate one day in exploiting real German violations of the frontier, but would take diplomatic action, asking the whole world for help," it said.

"Inaccuracies" Noted.

The D. N. B. pointed out several technical inaccuracies in the Czech statement, saying that German passenger planes are marked with the Nazi swastika while military planes bear the iron cross.

One of the planes, described by the Czechs as bearing the letters "D A E A," probably was a passenger plane en route from Vienna to Breslau, the D. N. B. said.

As for the charges that 16 German military planes flew across the border in formation, the D. N. B. said they actually were cruising over Altheide, 9 miles on the German side of the border, and never left German territory.

Minister of Defense Frantisek Machnik left Prague last night to tour military garrisons along the frontier, while Foreign Minister Kamil Krofta consulted with the Czech ministers to Paris and London immediately after their arrival in Prague.

The ministers were said to have informed Krofta that Czechoslovakia could count upon solid Anglo-French support providing the government showed a generous spirit in its efforts to meet the autonomy demands of 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans.

CongressGroup Gives Weapon To Labor Board

Sub-committee Votes for Expanding Wagner Act as Miners Lend Support.

By the United Press.

A Congressional sub-committee yesterday voted to expand the scope of the Wagner act to every firm doing business with the Government as John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers rallied to the defense of the beleaguered National Labor Relations Board.

The dual move coincided with the filing of a petition by attorneys for employes of the Remington-Rand Corporation, asking the Supreme Court to review a lower court decision which upheld the labor board's order that 4,000 employes involved in a recent strike be reinstated. A similar plea by attorneys for the company itself was denied by the high court on Monday.

The Remington-Rand employes' council is an independent labor organization comprised of employes' associations at four company plants. The labor board ordered the company to withdraw recognition of the association at the Ilion, N. Y., and Middletown, Conn., plants.

Order Held "Erroneous."

Criticizing the board's order as "without warrant and erroneous," the council charged that reinstatement of the strikers would force the dismissal of an equal number of workers whose "only offense is a failure to join the union (an American Federation of Labor affiliate) favored by the board."

Action by Congress at this session on the widening of the power of the labor board appeared doubtful last night. As reported to the House Judiciary Committee by a sub-committee, the new bill would deny Government contracts, loans or grants to companies which the labor board has ruled are violating the Wagner act. It is supported by the Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization and opposed by the Navy Department and by business organizations.

Navy Serves Warning.

Navy spokesmen warned the sub-committee that disputes possible under the legislation might retard the armament program. They pointed to the difficulties faced last year when the Navy was unable to get steel due to restrictions surrounding the award of Federal contracts under the Walsh-Healey act.

Support for the board came from the executive board of the miners, which on Wednesday accepted the resignation of President William Green, of the A. F. of L., after accusing him of betraying the union and criticizing him for his repeated atttacks on the NLRB.

In a resolution, the mine group said the board's 11 straight victories in the Supreme Court "speak well for the fairness of the board's procedure and the quality of its justice." The resolution criticized "reactionary industries" for using "every legal technicality to delay board cases" and "powerful newspapers" for misrepresenting the significance of decisions of the Supreme Court itself in news story and editorial."

Burchell's, Grocer To White House, To End Business

After 82 years of service to the Nation's Presidents, the N. W. Burchell Grocery, 817 Fourteenth street northwest, will close its doors forever Wednesday.

The store was established in 1856 by Norval Wilson Burchell and his brother-in-law, W. M. P. King, at Fifteenth and I streets northwest. Since then it has occupied five locations and has served every occupant of the White House since Abraham Lincoln.

Mrs. Norval Landon Burchell, present owner and widow of the founder's son, announced that the stock and fixtures would be sold and the quarters converted to other purposes.

Bankruptcy Law Revision Favored

By the Associated Press.

A proposed broad revision of the Federal bankruptcy laws reaching from the largest corporations down to individual wage earners won approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee Wednesday.

Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, acting chairman, said it was the first "complete overhauling of the bankruptcy act since 1878" and was intended to "streamline the whole subject of credit and discharge of debts."

Criticism of the bill came from Senators King (Democrat), of Utah and Austin (Republican), of Vermont. King predicted it would force liquidation of many corporations now permitted to reorganize and complained about powers given the Securities and Exchange Commission to advise Federal courts on corporate reorganizations.

John L. Liccini Honored By Catholic University

John L. Liccini, Washington student at Catholic University, yesterday was announced as the winner of the silver plaque given annually to the outstanding senior in the School of Engineering and Architecture. Liccini will receive a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering at the forty-ninth annual commencement June 15.

Liccini won the award in close competition with four other students, the winner not being selected until an oratorical contest had been conducted before members and guests at the annual dinner of the Engineers Club. The Right Rev. Joseph Corrigan, rector of the university, and members of the faculty voted on the standing of the contestants.

Whooping Cough Vaccine Produces Heartening Result

Encouraging results with an experimental vaccine for whooping cough were reported yesterday by Drs. W. T. Harrison and Joseph A. Bell, of the United States Public Health Service, and Dr. Joseph B. Franklin, deputy State health officer of Maryland.

Precipitating a commercially prepared vaccine with alum, the researchers tested the product on 82 Cumberland, Md., children. One hundred and nine boys and girls living in the same neighborhood and of the same economic status were left unvaccinated.

The tests were launched in November, 1936, each child receiving only one small injection. The following year a whooping cough epidemic occurred in Cumberland. Only 10 cases of whooping cough occurred among the 82 vaccinated children, compared with 21 cases, or 19 per cent, among the unvaccinated.

Roosevelt Gives Decision Today In Tax Revision

Roosevelt

Roughly $5,300,000,000 annually. The measure is not intended to increase taxes, merely to change the rates and conditions around to make them easier on businessmen.

Where Angels Fear to Tread.

Undistributed profits would be a nice point for the children to start on, considering that infants dive head first into places where angels are afraid to tiptoe. The tax on undistributed profits originated in the theory that corporation profits should be taxed twice, once on the corporation and once on the stockholders when they get the dividends. But some corporations didn't pay out all the profits to stockholders and so the undistributed profits tax was devised.

Under the 1936 law, corporations were taxed 8 to 15 per cent on their profits, plus a special tax of 7 to 27 per cent on the portion of profits not distributed to stockholders. The new measure is supposed to be easier on most corporations, but is possibly more complicated. Corporations with net profits of less than $25,000 in one year will pay 12½ to 16 per cent taxes. Big corporations will pay 19 per cent, less a credit of 2½ per cent of the amount of dividends. An intermediate scale has been arranged for corporations close to the $25,000 borderline.

Capital Gains "No Mystery."

Capital gains, however, should be a "pipe" for a bunch of high school pupils. Captal gains are income from the sale or exchange of property—securities and real estate, primarily—in contrast to current forms of income, such as wages.

Suppose, dear children, you bought some land in 1930 for $1,000, and sold it five years later for $5,000. Your "math" teacher will tell you you made a profit of $4,000, but your tax collector can't do that. That profit was spread out over more than one tax year, and there are other reasons why the Government—and a lot of taxpayers—don't think you had a taxable profit of $4,000.

The 1936 law said it would tax all of a capital gain as ordinary income if the sale was made within a year after the purchase, only 80 per cent of the gain if the time lapse was between one and two years, 60 per cent on two to five years, 40 per cent on five to ten years, and 30 per cent on more than ten years.

But What If You Lose?

Suppose instead of a profit, you had a loss. Well, Uncle Sam said you could deduct capital losses from your income only to the extent of your capital gains in the same period, plus $2,000.

Substantially, these figures and methods will continue for corporations in the new bill, but for individuals it's different. If the gain occurred in a period of less than 18 months, it wll be taxed as ordinary income. A less-than-18 months loss can be offset only against a similar gain, but if the 18-months losses are larger than the 18-months gains, you can save some of the losses to figure in your next year's income tax. This is known as "carry over."

Now—this is getting easy—if the gain was realized in a period 18 to 24 months long, two-thirds of the gain is taxable as ordinary income. If a capital transaction was completed in more than 24 months half the gain is taxable as ordinary income. There's no carryover to the next year on the over-18 and over-24-months classes, but the taxpayer can check certain net losses against ordinary income for the year in which the losses were sustained.

Excise Taxes Are Easy.

Excise taxes aren't so hard, especially since the principal changes of the new bill are to repeal Federal taxes on chewing gum, sporting goods, cameras, furs, phonograph records, matches, and certain toilet preparations. The only addition to taxes in this classification is an increase from $2 to $2.25 per gallon in the levy on liquor.

Tax rates on gifts were not changed, but the exemption was cut from $5,000 per person per year to $4,000.

There are many more things, but these ought to be enough for one lesson, dear pupils.

Owner Loses Suit Over Dog Who Bit Officer, Got Shot

Opposing the theory that every dog is entitled to one bite, Justice Oscar R. Luhring in District Court yesterday dismissed a suit filed by Mrs. Grace Riley, 700 block of H street northwest, against Policeman Oscar Allen, of the Fourth Precinct, who shot and killed Mrs. Allen's dog.

The dog, a water spaniel called "Tippy," was playing with Miss Betty Riley, daughter of his owner, when the policeman came along. "Tippy" took a portion of the officer's uniform and also tore his shirt.

Mrs. Riley asked for punitive damages.

Coast Guard Gets 23 New Ensigns

Twenty-three cadets will be commissioned ensigns in the Coast Guard next Tuesday at ceremonies climaxing a three-day program at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., Rear Admiral R. R. Waesche, commandant of the Treasury service, announced yesterday.

The commissions will be presented by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Stephen B. Gibbons and academic awards by Admiral Waesche, following a commencement address by Chairman David I. Walsh, of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

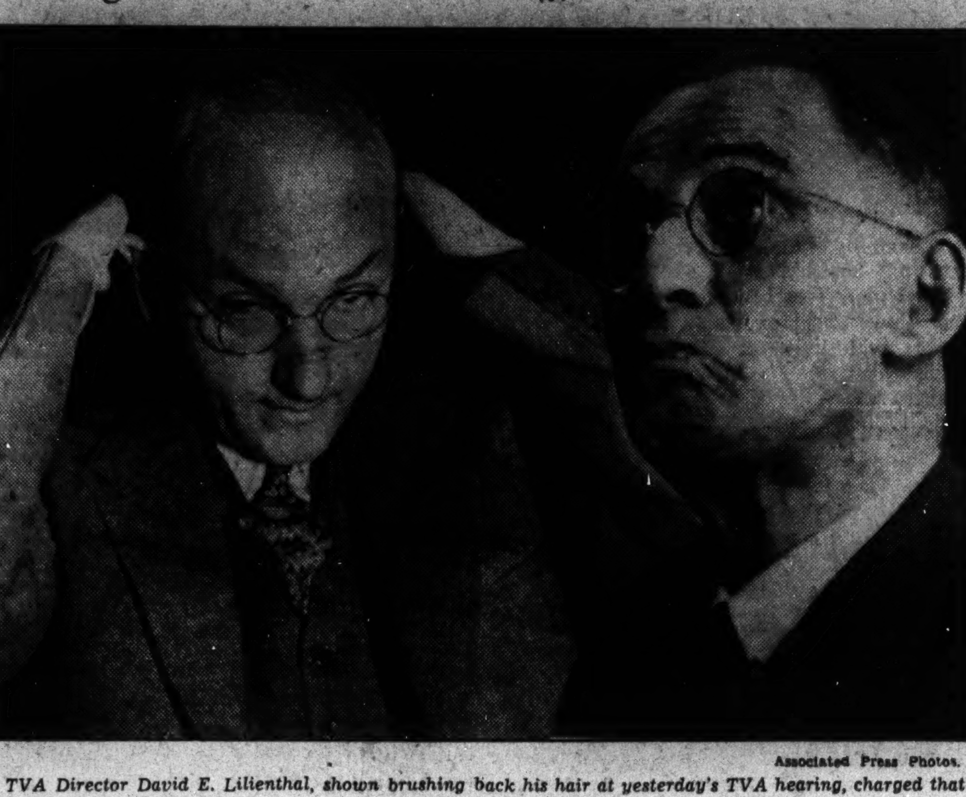
Morgan's Former TVA Colleagues Hurl Accusations



Associated Press Photos.

TVA Director David E. Lilienthal, shown brushing back his hair at yesterday's TVA hearing, charged that the record of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, ousted TVA chairman, in the suits of 18 power firms against the TVA "suggests" that Dr. Morgan was "seeking to find a way to secure a judicial decision against his own agency." Harcourt A. Morgan (right), the other TVA director, also shown at the Congressional hearing, accused Dr. Morgan of going beyond "proper limits" in disagreeing with other members of the TVA board.

Still Regards Self TVA Head, Morgan Says

TVA

Congress believe that he would prove them guilty of "personal financial dishonesty and corruption in the administration of a great public trust".

Corruption Not Charged.

The former chairman, in his appearance Wednesday, made clear that he now meant to bring no such charges of corruption, nor to indicate in any way that either of the directors had personally profited financially in any manner. He directed his attack at "more subtle forms of misrepresentation and misaccounting," at "petty dictation," "hidden subsidies" and what he termed "the false yardstick."

Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan each slashed at this "belated denial" after "months when he remained silent while the press, Congress and the general public have been shocked at the scandal which they were led to believe existed."

H. A. Morgan said:

"Arthur Morgan can never avoid responsibility for the most painful experience that I have suffered in nearly 40 years of connection with public undertakings. The reasons which prompted him to remain silent while this unjust and wholly unfounded accusation was outstanding against us, I shall never understand."

Lilienthal's Statement.

Lilienthal said:

"Arthur Morgan now says, almost three months later, that he did not intend to charge Dr. Harcourt Morgan and myself with corruption. But he did permit that construction of his charges to lay like black clouds over us and our staff all of these intervening weeks without raising a finger to dispel it. I do not intend to reply in kind . . . but in fairness to myself and my family I cannot pass over this incident without this comment . . .

"I doubt if in all records of American public life there can be found another instance of such an unfair attack upon the personal integrity of a colleague."

Indicating that he and Harcourt Morgan may yet sue A. E. Morgan for libel, Lilienthal continued: "Whatever other remedies may be pursued they will not be the concern of this committee."

Lilienthal, evidently eager to relieve his feelings after months of enforced silence in the face of Dr. Morgan's attacks, returned to the assault several times, once during a lengthy discussion of the Berry marble case, when he recalled former chairman Morgan's "unjustifiable slur" on James L. Fly, TVA counsel, and added that although this was "basically an attack on me, it is so rank and unjust that I feel called upon to ask this committee to weigh the manner in which Arthur Morgan assumes unnecessarily the role of character assassin."

No Cross-Examination.

The gray-haired chairman, his mouth working, sat quiet and outwardly composed throughout the long session, which was again free of cross-examination by the 10-man Congressional investigating committee under a resolution adopted.

The 38-year-old Lilienthal, assured of manner, took Morgan's charges of the day before almost point by point in his onslaught, repeatedly endeavoring to show that Dr. Morgan, by a masterly use of innuendo, sought to damage his own and Harcourt Morgan's reputations without ever proving his assertions. Of the 18 power company suits against the TVA, Lilienthal said that Morgan's attitude was not one of mere refusal to help but that "he entered upon a campaign affirmatively to obstruct and sabotage the conduct of the Government's case and harass the attorneys in charge. If his conduct did not have fatal consequences it was not his fault."

TVA attorneys concluded from questions asked them by A. E. Morgan, Lilienthal said, that he desired to have the courts invalidate the TVA's power activities. Lilienthal declared that Morgan obtained a list of the Government's witnesses and secretly conferred with them.

Faulty Data Charged.

In the midst of the trial, Lilienthal continued, Morgan charged that a TVA engineer had prepared faulty data for the attorneys and told the attorneys that several engineers had reported to him "their embarrassment at being called upon to give testimony of a misleading character." Morgan, according to Lilienthal, never named these engineers, despite repeated entreaties in order to clear the record and never withdrew his charges.

"Fortunately," according to Lilienthal, all of the TVA engineers, one by one, submitted statements saying that at no time had any one of them ever made such statements to Dr. Morgan. After that incident, the TVA board adopted a resolution upholding the integrity of both engineers and attorneys, but Dr. Morgan refused to vote on it, expressing the view that he had no confidence in the attorneys.

Document Presented.

In the Berry Case, Lilienthal attempt to dispose of Dr. Morgan's numerous charges by showing that the chairman, in his sudden and dramatic last-minute appearance in the condemnation proceedings, presented no new evidence of any sort except attacks on the integrity of his fellow board members. He presented a document from a TVA investigator in the case which allegedly showed that former Chairman Morgan had attempted to channel away from the TVA lawyers critically important evidence of bad faith.

During the hundreds of pages of testimony presented by the two remaining TVA heads, it was brought out that Dr. Morgan's far-flung activities have included the suggestion that a separate coinage be struck for the Tennessee Valley, another that the law be broadened so that farmers who misued their lands could be dispossessed, and another that a real estate code be drafted, with the proviso that real estate dealers who did not comply with it would be banned from all further dealings with the TVA.

Proposal Held Alarming.

Harcourt Morgan said of these proposals and many others stemming from the former chairman:

"Some of them were alarming to say the least. Some appeared highly impracticable and visionary or clearly outside the scope of our responsibility under the law."

Harcourt Morgan directly traced the former chairman's break with his colleagues to the fact that the former chairman was unable to prevent President Roosevelt's reappointment of Lilienthal to the board when Lilienthal's first three-year term expired in 1936. H. A. Morgan declared that all difficulties sprang from the fact that A. E. Morgan was unable to dictate the choice of a successor to Lilienthal (of whom Senator George W. Norris, Independent, Nebraska, has often charged that A. E. Morgan is "jealous,") and that while all votes of the board thereto had been unanimous, after Lilienthal's reappointment Dr. Morgan began to skip meetings and to stay away on protracted vacations during periods of great stress such as the annual budgetary sessions.

The hearings were adjourned indefinitely.

The demonstration that night assumed such proportions that the speeches were canceled by Vito Marcantonio, of the International Labor Defense, under whose auspices the Congressmen were to speak. O'Connell and Bernard stayed in New York that night.

Caseys' Words Cited.

Public Safety Director Daniel J. Casey yesterday refused O'Connell a permit to speak, as he had previously done. Casey warned the committee that anyone defying the ban "must, of course, suffer the consequences."

O'Connell likewise reiterated, as he had done on May 7, that he would speak "permit or no permit."

The Hudson County committee appealing to Gov. Moore cited Casey's words in its message to the State's chief executive as implying, "police brutality, the threat to lives, the liberty and the constitutional rights of the citizens of Hudson County.

Observer Refused.

"The Hudson County committee for Labor Defense and Civil Rights," the message continued, "calls upon you to uphold your oath of office and prevent the planned massacre of American citizens by mobilizing the National Guard in Jersey City tomorrow night to protect the life of Representative Jerry O'Connell and the lives of the citizens of Hudson County."

The Senate Civil Liberties headed by Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, had refused today in Washington the request of O'Connell that it send an observer to the meeting.

United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday ordered Arlene E. Blackwell, colored, 33, held for action of the grand jury on charge of violating the Jones-Miller narcotic act. Bond was fixed at $1,000. The woman, who lives at 600 Freeman's court northwest, was arrested May 18.

Bargain Sends Pay-Hour Bill To Conference

wart Administration men, but opposed to rigid wage and hour provisions that could not be adjusted to sectional conditions.

Further strengthening the South's fight for retention of some flexible features, Senator Copeland (Democrat, New York, advocate of uniform rates as provided in the House bill, agreed to step aside from the conference to which he normally would have been appointed.

Other Democratic conferees named were Chairman Thomas, of the Senate Labor Committee, who favors most elastic wage provisions, Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, who would modify somewhat the drastic House bill provisions, and Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, who has not disclosed his stand but would lean to Administration wishes.

Minority members will be Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, who favors a statutory wage "floor" but is opposed to several features of the House bill, and Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin), who has indicated he will stand by the Senate bill.

On the House side, Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, was expected to be the only Southern "differential" advocate named to the House conference committee.

Thomas Halts Debate.

Breaking into debate on the President's $3,247,000,000 spending-lending bill, Senator Thomas, of Utah, suddenly rose at 5 p. m. and moved that the bill be sent to confernce. Harrison said he had been advised that every section would be represented on the conference committee and thought a satisfactory measure could be worked out. He interposed no objection. Vice President Garner immediately named the seven Senate conferees, instead of the usual five.

Details had been finally worked out only a few minutes before at a series of conferences held by Senate Administration Leader Barkley. Leading Southern Democrats, including Harrison, Byrnes, of South Carolina, and Byrd, of Virginia, were called in, and prospective conferees were interviewed.

The conference concession to the South staved off a fight that might have postponed adjournment indefinitely. Southern Senators were prepared to talk indefinitely rather than consent to a simple motion concurring in the House bill. If they had succeeded in their effort to send the bill back to committee for amendment in the slightest particular, parliamentary requirements would have again routed it through the hostile Rules Committee when it returned to the House.

President Must Accede.

Prospects for a settlement were bolstered by word that the Administration itself leans to additional elasticity in the final bill, although the President is unofficially on record for the principle of a wage "floor" and an hours "ceiling." In a conference committee composed predominantly of Administration members, any compromise worked out is expected to be one the President himself is willing to accept.

The up-and-down battle for wage-hour legislation started last year in the Senate, which passed a bill providing for wages as high as 40 cents an hour and a work-week as low as 40 hours, with varying rates to be determined by a jurisdictional board.

In December, the House sent a similar bill back to committee, after it had been petitioned to the floor over opposition of the House Rules Committee. It remained in committee until late this session, when the Labor Committee worked out a more rigid bill, discarding sectional differentials. When the Rules Committee again refused right of way, this also was petitioned to the floor and last week it passed the House.

The House measure, which now goes to conference with the Senate bill, provides for a wage floor of 25 cents an hour, to be increased to 40 cents in three years. The hours "ceiling" would start at 44 hours a week, being lowered to 40 hours in two years. The rates would be universal for the country as a whole, and the bill would be administered by the Secretary of Labor.

In addition to the Southern fight to preserve the Senate bill's sectional differentials, Southern members also will seek in conference to delay the date of the law's application from nine months to a year. Harrison has indicated his willingness to discard Senate provision for administration by a board, in favor of the Secretary of Labor, if differentials are provided.

Choosy Thief Obtains $1,000 In Rare Stamps at D. C. Store

A collector yesterday stepped into a shop at 402 Twelfth street northwest, rummaged through the stock picked out from $1,600 worth of stamps for his album.

Police are interested, because the stamp-lover entered the shop before office hours, after breaking the glass door, and left without arranging for payment.

The theft was reported by an iceman. Police made an arrest within two hours and are now holding a middle-aged man for investigation.

The haul included three Graf Zeppelin covers valued at $40 and a mint block of eight $5 stamps of the 1918 issue, with plate number, worth more than $100.

Mrs. Alden H. Whitney, wife of the proprietor, found in the morning mail an inquiry from North Carolina from a prospective purchaser of the $5 block.

The intruder broke show cases, examined approval sheets and fingered through dozens of envelopes, she said, before completing his selection. He also took two catalogues listing current stamp prices.

A few hours after the robbery, Patrolman W. C. Groomes, of First Precinct, arrested Robert Manson Shockley, 38, of 642 Morris place northeast, at his home. Groomes said the stamps were found in Shockley's room.

Shockley was charged last night with housebreaking and grand larceny and was held at First Precinct station. Groomes said the window of the shop was broken with the brass cap from a sprinkler system intake pipe.

Two Men Seized In Numbers Raid Held by Turnage

Oliver C. Detective Sergt. George Deyoe said he raided the place, with Deputy United States Marshal Charles West and three vice squad officers, after receiving complaints that the janitor was writing numbers slips. A third man was detained but was released later.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Washington Composers Club presents a concert in the Arts Club, assisted by Alice Finckel and Emerson Meyers, pianists; Alden Emery, flautist, and the Washington String Quartet. Program: Sonata for piano and flute (Dorothy Emery), Second Movement of a String Quartet (Robert Barrow), Variations in C sharp minor for two pianos (Conrad Bernier), "Idyl," "Spring Fever" and "Enchantment" for piano and string quartet (John Alden Finckel), "Trifle," "Stars" and "Estudia Brillante" for piano solo (Mary Howe), "Meditation" for string quartet (Edward Potter), Three "Arabesques" for piano solo (Henry Gregor), Quintet for piano and strings (Deane Shure).

As I have had occasion to remark before, the Washington Composers Club is, in my experience, unique for its fraternal spirit and its tolerance of opposed principles. What may go on at the private meetings is known only to the members, but there is no reason to suppose that the debates are acrimonious, for the concerts to which the public is invited offer evidence of harmonious compromise and respect for individual freedom. Conservatism and radicalism are neighborly and on the best of terms.

On last night's program was presented more material than a hurried critic can discuss adequately, with his attention divided between the hands of the clock and his impressions of 14 compositions just heard for the first time. With certainty it can be said that the concert was one of the best the organization has given, and that there were no moments of boredom in the two hours of listening.

A thorough respect for form was manifest in Mrs. Emory's sonata for piano and flute, played by herself and her talented young son. The first movement, slightly Gallic in atmosphere, followed the strict sonata form; the andante has its melodic suggestions of nocturnal bird song, and the finale moved in a lively rondo.

The single movement from Robert Barrow's string quartet left one poised in dubiety over its possible relation to the completed work. The music is intellectual and a little astringent; what emotion it contains is sublimated to the mental plane, while the writing gives more independence than co-operation to the individual voices.

In his variations for two pianos, Conrad Bernier has composed a work attractive and viable on the concert stage. The music has imaginative vitality and technical adroitness, and the ingenious treatment of the theme is unflagging from the outset to the fugal finale. The organist in Mr. Bernier comes to the fore in the imitation of registers in one of the variations.

The fantasy which is spontaneous in John Alden Finckel enlivened each of his three pieces for piano and string quartet. He has a ready humor and indulged it freely in "Spring Fever." His writing shows a sure sense of instrumental values and balanced voicing.

Mary Howe modestly titled "Trifle" a piano piece that has the difficulty of an etude and the ideational content of a ballade. The opening and closing sections have the spirit of a bagatelle, but the intervening slow movement touches a Beethovenish solemnity. "Stars" is an interesting tone-poem of miniature dimensions, and "Estudia Brillante" fully justifies its name.

600,000 Kneel In Eucharistic Fete on Danube

Candlelit Barges Float Past Budapest in Solemn Religious Pageant.

By the Associated Press.

Budapest, May 26.—Six hundred thousand devout tonight lined the ancient banks of the Danube and watched the solemn religious procession of the Blessed Sacrament which brought to a close the second day of the thirty-fourth Eucharistic Congress.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Vatican secretary of state and Pope Pius' representative at the congress, led the magnificent candlelit procession down the river aboard a great barge bearing the Sacrament.

The cardinal blessed the four corners of the world as the fleet of illuminated craft paused in midstream opposite the royal palace.

Monks Kneel in Boats.

Four rockets roared aloft and sirens shrieked as Cardinal Pacelli raised a glittering golden monstrance above worshiping groups of bishops, monks and clergy kneeling in the procession of boats.

The hundreds of thousands of singing, praying pilgrims from over the world held candles aloft and sank to their knees during the impressive ceremony.

There were other thousands jammed along the route of the cardinal as he moved from historic St. Stephen's Dome to the river, surrounded by archbishops and bishops.

World Delegates Speak.

Prior to the river procession world delegates spoke before the international congress.

Archbishop John J. Glennon of St. Louis, Mo., in a radio speech broadcast to the United States, praised the character and faith of the Hungarians and the hospitality they accorded the American delegation.

Jean Cardinal Verdier, Archbishop of Paris, opened the day's ceremonies by celebrating high mass for 150,000 children in Heroes Square.

Newman to Fine Weight Cheaters $100 on Each Sale

Judge Hobart Newman declared yesterday that in the future he would fix a minimum fine of $100 on each case of short-weight selling brought before him, and require $1,000 bond of each person demanding a jury trial.

He issued the warning after refusing to accept recommendations from the corporation counsel's office that two of three persons charged with violation of the weights and measures act be fined $25 on each of three charges placed against them.

The two were allowed to withdraw pleas of guilty and demand jury trials. The three defendants, ordered placed under $500 bond each for jury trial, were Melvin L. Karsh, 300 Massachusetts avenue northwest, three charges of selling chickens short weight; Jacob Teitelbaum, 1014 First street northwest, accused of three short sales of meat; and Louis Miller, 1004 First street northwest, charged with three short meat sales.

Ramon Wins Annulment in Nuptial Mixup

Ramon Bayasca-Perna, urbane maitre d'hotel of fashionable Washington night clubs, won an annulment of his marriage yesterday, nearly four years after he had accused his wife of "purchasing" a baby and pretending that it was theirs.

The annulment was ordered after a brief hearing before Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat in District Court. Ramon, as he is popularly known, charged in his suit that his wife, Catherine, had not been lawfully divorced from a prior husband before she went through a ceremony with him.

In November, 1934, Ramon told of the alleged baby hoax in asking for a limited divorce. Earlier that year, he said, his wife had told him she was going to have a child. Summoned home by a nurse one day, he said, he found his wife with a small child and, like all fathers, he was "proud and happy."

Some months later, he said, he discovered that his wife had not given birth to the child, but had arranged for its delivery to her home, making it appear as if the baby had been born to her." The discovery, he said, shocked him to such an extent that his health was impaired.

Mrs. Bayasca-Perna, denying the alleged deception, said that Ramon could hardly have been so unmindful of worldly affairs as to believe that the child was theirs. Moreover, she said, he knew the child had been adopted from an orphanage.

'Friend' Admits Union Slaying In Minneapolis

Confession Leaves Similar Killing 6 Months Ago Still a Mystery.

By the Associated Press.

Minneapolis, May 26.—State and city crime fighting agencies tonight joined in investigating puzzling angles of the second slaying of a labor leader in Minneapolis in six months.

Although Police Chief Frank Forestal said he had a signed confession from Arnold Johnson, union organizer, that he shot his chief, William Brown, president of General Drivers Union 544, last night, County Attorney Ed J. Goff said:

"At first glance there appears to be more in this than what is on the surface."

"Both Pretty Drunk."

He ordered an investigation from his office into the case and added that a grand jury was subject to call as soon as police were ready. State crime bureau investigators also were aiding police.

In his cell, Johnson, Brown's bodyguard for a time after the ambush slaying six months ago of Patrick J. Corcoran, another labor leader, sobbed:

"He was my best friend. I can't figure out how it happened. Both of us were pretty drunk and I must have been drunk to do it."

The union, in a formal statement, ascribed the slaying to temporary insanity, saying Johnson had been under a doctor's care.

No Powder Burns.

Goff apparently referred in his statement to these items:

That the two men long had been friends.

That Brown's head bore no powder burns despite the fact Johnson said he fired at close range.

A note pinned to a suit in Johnson's rooms referred to his associations with "Trotskie friends."

That Brown's body remained in an automobile at a busy intersection for several hours before being discovered.

Rockefeller Signs New Union Treaty

New York, May 26 (AP).—Rockefeller Center, Inc., the Rockefeller family's huge skyscraper development in midtown Manhattan, today signed a new type of union contract. Th other signatory was the building and construction trades council, a central body of the various American Federation of Labor Building Workers' Unions to which the 1,098 plasterers, electricians, steam fitters, painters, engineers, watchmen, elevator operators, cleaners and other maintenance employes in the center belong.

The contract covers working conditions, hours and wages for three years and includes a no-strike, no-lockout clause.

Annapolis Sets 3 Honors, Picks Its Color Girl

Midshipman Dacey Is First With 6 Awards; Paul Schultz Second.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., May 26.—With the color girl and the honor men selected, the Naval Academy ended preparations today for the annual June Week beginning Saturday and ending with a visit of President Roosevelt and graduation on June 2.

Midshipman Elton L. Knapp, coxswain of the Navy varsity crew, and commander of the Third Midshipmen Company that won the interregimental competition, selected Miss Ruth Schiedinger, 18, of Monroe, Mich., his home town, for the color girl.

Midshipman John Elmer Dacey, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dacey, of Biloxi, Miss., won the graduating class honors, standing highest for the four-year course. His standing gave him two more prizes and he will receive six at a dress parade Wednesday afternoon.

Midshipman Paul Gibbons Schultz, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Schultz, of Roswell, N. J., won second honors. He will receive a gold watch for standing highest in marine engineering and a letter of commendation from Admiral Brown.

Third honors went to Midshipman Frank Cox Jones, son of Capt. C. A. Jones, U. S. N., and Mrs. Jones, of New London, Conn.

Baker Leading Howard in Poll For I.T.U. Chief

By the Associated Press.

Indianapolis, May 26.—Scattered, unofficial returns put Claude M. Baker, of Sna Francisco, A. F. of L. adherent, in a commanding lead tonight in his fight to displace Charles P. Howard, of Chicago, C. I. O. secretary, as president of the International Typographical Union.

Returns from the balloting in 74 cities in the union's biennial election gave Baker 25,291 votes against 14,476 for Howard. The returns included New York City's complete vote, which was 4,644 to 2,404 for Baker.

The I. T. U. is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, of which Howard has been a critic. Baker has favored continued affiliation with the A. F. of L.

Returns from the larger cities, including New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Indianapolis, Louisville, Dallas, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Washington, favored Baker. Cleveland gave Howard a majority, as did Albany, N. Y.

The Senate's Turn.

It was a real achievement for Representative Palmisano to clear the District calendar of bills in the House on Wednesday. Some of these measures are of great importance to local agencies. There is much satisfaction over the indorsement of the Alley Dwelling Authority which is implied in the unanimous adoption of its amendments. The lunacy bill and the amendments to the zoning act will permit the District to modernize activities that have long been in need of reform.

Hasty action on local bills, however, has its drawbacks as well as its advantages. In clearing the calendar of all District measures little discrimination was shown. The so-called fair trade practice bill did not receive the careful analysis it should have had. Likewise the House passed the bill establishing a five-day, sixty-hour, work week for firemen with little thought of its implications. The additional expense to the District is estimated at $500,000, and no provision has been made to raise that amount.

Firemen's hours of work ought to be reduced when the District can afford it. At present various other projects appear more pressing. Nor is there convincing point in giving police and firemen the privilege of retiring at 55, after 25 years of service. At present they can be retired at that age by the Commissioners if physically or mentally incapacitated. If they are still able to serve at that age, retirement would scarcely be justified.

The prompt action of the House serves to emphasize the need of facilitating the passage of really important local measures through the Senate. It is hoped that body will now give preference to the most urgent of these, including the ADA amendments and the bill to prevent discrimination against the District in PWA undertakings. The latter measure also awaits action by the House, since it was still in committee when the other local measures were passed.

And neither house should forget that the taxicab liability bill is still in conference.

A Test Of The Will To Peace.

At Buenos Aires 17 months ago the Latin-American republics and the United States manifested their eagerness to strengthen and consolidate the peace machinery built up in this hemisphere over a long period of years. This action was in heartening contrast to developments then and since taking place in Europe and Asia.

But oratorical invocations to peace and even solemn covenants of peace are, obviously, not enough. There must also be a willingness by all parties concerned to put such sentiments and treaty commitments into force. That is why the findings of the Chaco Peace Conference which President Roosevelt and the chief executives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and Uruguay now urge Bolivia and Paraguay to accept have a significance even transcending the immediate issue involved.

That issue is unquestionably of great intrinsic importance. To secure exclusive possession of the Chaco, Bolivia and Paraguay engaged in a bloody and exhausting war. And while, for some years, a state of armistice has obtained, normal relations between the erstwhile combatants have not yet been established. Nor have the two countries shown any disposition to settle the dispute by direct negotiation.

At the close of hostilities Paraguay was in possession of the bulk of the Chaco, including the valuable petroleum fields. She has insisted ever since then on the retention of the territory her troops had occupied. But such a settlement Bolivia has thus far scorned. To give point to this attitude, the Bolivian representative on the League Council during the recent discussions of the Ethiopian question took a critical stand with regard to the proposed modification or scrapping of the doctrine of non-recognition.

Precisely what the findings of the Chaco Peace Conference are has not yet been revealed. But insofar as these findings represent a compromise between the conflicting Paraguayan and Bolivian claims, as is likely to prove to be the case, they will serve as a test of the readiness of these countries to make peace. And, by the same token, the decision of the La Paz and Asuncion governments will throw a vivid light on the question whether the spirit of co-operation engendered by the Buenos Aires conference is strong enough to overcome particularist sentiments even in a region which has been a scene of violent conflict.

Certainly nothing could serve as better proof of the will to peace which is presumed to obtain in this hemisphere than a definite and final settlement at this time of the Chaco problem.

Vital TVA Issues.

In his testimony before the Congressional committee investigating the TVA Dr. A. E. Morgan denied that he has ever charged his former colleagues with dishonesty or corruption. Nevertheless, his personal attack upon them has naturally brought equally impassioned denials and countercharges. This airing of grievances, and public defense of individual administrative records, was to have been expected. But personal matters should be disposed of as promptly as possible, leaving the committee free to concentrate its attention upon the more fundamental impersonal issues largely responsible for the surface discords.

The root cause of the internal dissension is traceable to divergent conceptions of the proper policies to be followed in developing TVA power outlets in competition with private companies. Dr. A. E. Morgan charges that the accounting methods adopted by the TVA underestimate production costs and provide concealed subsidies which distort the so-called "yardstick." He alleges, furthermore, that delay in allocating the cost of the TVA dams to power, navigation and flood control, respectively, is due to "a deliberate effort to keep Congress and the public from knowing what those costs are, and the way in which TVA rates were established."

From the legal viewpoint the development and transmission of power may be an incidental result of the work done for navigation and flood control purposes. Actually, as Dr. A. E. Morgan states, the development of power has been a dominant consideration and one of the principal reasons for establishing the Tennessee Valley Authority. There is no doubt that the cost of the dams far exceeds the amounts that would have been spent if the Federal Government had been solely concerned with navigation and flood control. Consequently, it is truly a "subterfuge" to assume that the power output is a mere by-product, not to be charged with any part of the cost of dams or reservoirs.

As a result of this unrealistic, indeed disingenuous assumption, Daniel W. Mead, former president of the Society of Civil Engineers, recently estimated that the total cost of power installation in the Tennessee Valley is more than 2½ times the estimates of the Authority. This figure, moreover, does not include numerous cost items that would figure in private computations, such as interest on capital during the period of construction, taxes equal to those payable by a private company, and transmission costs.

In the course of the Congressional inquiry a statement should be exacted to show in detail how costs are computed. For the method of accounting is of great significance in indicating how honestly and fairly the yardstick method is being applied to test the efficiency of competing private power groups. With every desire to be scrupulously fair, TVA administrators will necessarily encounter difficulties in trying to allocate the production costs of the great undertaking under their supervision. And evidence so far available indicates that the methods now being followed are inexcusably defective.

The information acquired in the present hearing should afford material for the guidance of Congress in legislating for the TVA and other Federal power projects in the future. It is the duty of Congress to lay down rules for its administrative agencies to follow. If such rules assure fair treatment of private interests, without undue favors for any group, the difficulties that have heretofore beset the TVA need not recur.

Women And Children First.

When Gen. Franco in March subjected Barcelona to several days of unremitting and unrelenting bombing, to the accompaniment of a rising toll of civilian casualties, the civilized world cried out in protest.

Secretary Hull well voiced predominant American opinion when he expressed "a sense of horror at what has taken place in Barcelona." The British and French governments took an equally strong position. And to the denunciations of the statesmen was added the powerful voice of Pope Pius. In a direct appeal to Gen. Franco he urged a halt in "aerial bombardments of open cities." The reply from the Nationalist generalissimo, the Osservatore Romano, official Vatican organ, reported, was "reassuring."

For a time there was no repetition of these terroristic air raids, but only for a time. As the Nationalist victory which last March appeared in sight has faded, a new wave of bombings was set in motion. This week, in an attack on Alicante, 250 were killed and 1,000 wounded.

The 28 consular representatives in that city have attested in a letter to the civil governor that this bombardment was without direct military objective, in other words that it was a wanton act of terrorism. They have pointed out that "the attack was in the center of the city, far from military objects, and that victims principally were civilians."

Apparently the assurances given by Franco to the Pope last March were of only temporary value. Unable to break the redrawn government lines the Fascist leader has evidently decided to try again to destroy civilian morale by Schrecklichkeit. This is a sign not of strength but of weakness. And this time, as before, the effect on the Spanish people is likely to be the very reverse of that intended.

As much as anything it is these repeated bombardments of open cities which explains the determination of the republicans to fight to the bitter end. In the meantime the world is presented with the very sorry reminder of the impotence of verbal protests, even when they come from the very highest quarters, as a means of restraining those whose claim is that they wage a holy war.

Precept And Practice.

In a recent address over a Nation-wide radio hook-up Administrator Hopkins of the WPA explained the precautions taken to keep that agency free from politics. A letter sent out to all WPA workers, he said, contained the following warning:

> No supervisor may attempt to influence the vote of any worker or solicit contributions to campaign funds from the people who work under him. Any one who uses his position with the WPA in any way to influence the votes of others by threat or intimidation will be dismissed.

Mr. Hopkins has now violated the rule laid down for his subordinates. He has given public indorsement to Congressman Wearin in the latter's effort to unseat Senator Gillette in the Iowa primaries. This action undermines every protest that Mr. Hopkins has ever made against politics in the administration of relief. It shows that the head of the WPA is willing to use the enormous influence of his office to defeat candidates of whom he disapproves.

In the storm that properly arose in the Senate over this incident an effort was made to minimize its significance by pointing out that Mr. Hopkins was speaking casually to a newspaper man. If it could be shown that he spoke thoughtlessly in so vital a matter that fact alone would go a long way toward disqualifying him for the post he holds. And if, on the other hand, Mr. Hopkins deliberately lined himself up on one side of a political fight, his usefulness as the Government's dispenser of relief is certainly at an end.

WPA supervisors, using their influence over destitute men and women for political purposes, will henceforth have a splendid alibi. As Senator Wheeler pointed out, there would be little difference between the indorsement of an Iowa candidate in a prominent Iowa newspaper and the insertion of slips signed by Mr. Hopkins in the pay envelopes of WPA workers in that State. In both cases relief workers are put on notice that the big chief, who apportions the money for continuation of their jobs, wants Mr. Wearin elected and Mr. Gillette defeated.

Postmaster General Farley, head of the Government's biggest permanent business enterprise, intervened in the Pennsylvania primaries. Secretary Ickes, who will soon be passing out vast sums for public works, took a hand in the Oregon contest. But at least Farley and Ickes don't claim to be more than politicians. It is the pious pretensions of Mr. Hopkins which make the present scandal what it is.

The Senate, said Senator Johnson, of Iowa, ought to have the "guts" to denounce this action "in unmeasured terms." Denunciation of it by the Democratic voters of California, in the coming primary, would be more useful in teaching Mr. Hopkins some elementary political morality.

Not The Place To Cut.

One of the minor mysteries of the spending bill is why the Senate Appropriations Committee eliminated the relatively insignificant item of $120,000 for the Prison Industries Reorganization Administration. This agency was created in 1935 to devise ways and means of employing inmates of penal institutions in lines that do not compete with private enterprise. It has served a useful purpose and is still engaged in a number of surveys similar to the excellent study recently completed for the District of Columbia.

The work undertaken by the PIRA is directly related to the unemployment problem. Since 1932 there has been a decrease of 80 per cent in the direct competition between prison labor and that employed in private enterprise. Many factors have contributed to this change. Certainly, however, the PIRA has been the leading influence in giving it intelligent direction. That agency has not only worked to minimize this source of unfair competition. One of the largest elements in its program has been the development of non-competitive prison industries so that increased opportunities for private employment would not mean enforced idleness for a larger number of prisoners.

Moreover, the PIRA serves in an advisory capacity to the WPA and PWA in the allocation of funds for new prison projects. The Government has spent $30,000,000 on improvements of this sort during the last few years. The initiation of another spending spree is no time to cut off expert planning agencies designed to curtail wasteful expenditures. An agency that has been so useful and inexpensive as the PIRA should at least be permitted to finish the work in which it is engaged before its source of funds is cut off.

An insurance company statistician says an intelligent person lives considerably longer than a dumb one. Maybe so, but in these days and times it's pretty dumb of the intelligent person to do it.

Einstein says gravity is a useful force. Indeed it is. It's hard enough to hang on to this strange world, even with gravity co-operating.

A Berlin scientist says the world will end in 1950. Wonder what makes him think it will last that long!

Psychic Happenings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the world's worst bigots is the person who hermetically seals his mind to discoveries made in psychic research while utterly ignoring the fact that an incalculable amount of well-authenticated material (which defies ordinary explanation) of psychic happenings has been accumulated.

To insist, as many do, that "when you're dead you're dead" proves exactly nothing. A Hottentot, unfamiliar with electricity, would doubtless decide, upon seeing a light flicker out in an impaired bulb, that the force itself had perished. Many leading scientists see a striking similarity between electricity and the life current and believe the forces of being are indestructible.

The great Goethe compared the spirit of man to the sun, which although it apparently disappears at evening, in reality shines perpetually. Realizing that mind must triumph over matter, he said: "Do you think a coffin can impose upon me?"

Potomac Park Scene.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Perhaps you will be interested in publishing the following scene which is common in Washington life and in the development of its traffic problem:

Scene: The intersection of the entrance to East Potomac Park and the road leading to the Fourteenth street bridge.

Time: 6 p. m. any evening.

Characters: Forty automobiles and one cyclist.

The traffic signals flash to red and the cars begin to pile up facing each other across the road which leads under the viaduct into East Potomac Park. At first there are only 25 or 30 cars, but as time goes on the line on the north begins to stretch back as far as Water street.

There they stand, 40 or more cars facing a red light, no traffic whatever crossing them.

Finally, a lone cyclist pedals his unhurried way from under the viaduct and between the eight lines of panting motors, like a general reviewing his troops.

A few seconds later, the light changes to green again, there is a grinding of gears, and the cars are off once more.

It seems pretty obvious that the solution to such ridiculous spectacles is to operate these signals by hand during times when a check reveals that the preponderance of traffic is in one direction or the other.

But to operate the signals by hand would require policemen, and policemen are always busy looking for someone who has parked too long, or in the wrong time at the wrong hour, or in the wrong month on account it might snow. Ho hum!

Tennis Courts Gone.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was much interested in the Play Section in The Post of May 20, and being a tennis enthusiast, I was particularly interested in the section on tennis by Robert S. Cramer. There were some statements made about courts that were incorrect, however.

He said that there were ten courts in Monument Park, five clay and five cement. I'm afraid they would be hard to find as they have been non-existent for over two months having been done away with to make room for the dike running from the Lincoln Memorial to the Washington Monument.

Home Rule For Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With all the lawyers residing in Washington, including those occupying seats in Congress, it is quite to be expected that there should be a haze over the problem of how to provide for home rule for the City of Washington. Once the matter is stated in those terms, perhaps something will click in a few of the brains of the alleged constitutional lawyers, and they will remember what the trouble was in their own State legislatures over the same problem of home rule for some of their cities.

There is a rather simple, and very definite, line between what may and may not be done by a sovereign legislature in giving home rule to a subordinate municipality. The legislative body may give to the municipality authority to do things, to perform acts; but it may not delegate to the municipality any legislative powers. The essential functions of a municipality are administrative, not legislative. They pertain to the carrying on of the necessary activities of the various municipal functions, such as police, fire protection, sanitation and health measures, street and alley surveys and pavements, and the collection of the funds through taxation necessary to cover the expenses of doing all these and other essential things, including the holding of elections.

There is no occasion for the municipality to attempt any legislative function: that would be in the nature of defining its own powers, which is reserved to the superior legislative body and may not be delegated to the municipality.

Once in the City of Milwaukee there was much to-do about the matter of home rule. A special election chose the delegates to a home rule charter convention. A learned attorney was chosen to draft the home rule bill, which was then taken to the State Legislature. Before this charter bill was adopted, a layman warned the lawyers that they were trying to give the City of Milwaukee the power to define its own powers, legislative functions; and that the act would be thrown out by the Supreme Court. And it came about in just that way. There is no need of doing that in the case of the home rule for Washington act.

The people of the City of Washington ought to have the right to hold elections for the selection of their own administrative officers, and such Congressional representatives as may be provided for. They should have the right and the authority through their administrative officers to carry on all the essential activities of their city, including the levying and collection of taxes. The problem of taxation is complicated with the existence of an increasing proportion of Federal buildings and grounds. The adjustment of this on some rational grounds will emerge much more readily once the home rule principle is established and in operation.

If there are any other principles involved in this problem of home rule for Washington, they have not yet been presented in any discussion of the matter which has come to my attention. But this distinction between the legislative and administrative functions is vital.

On Persecuting Starlings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: So again someone has had to start the ball rolling for persecution of the starlings. This time it is a letter from James A. Vaughan, published in The Post of May 23.

All that can be said is that it is just too bad that he cannot be one of the human beings at present being forced from home in certain parts of the world so that he could feel what it is like.

The Embargo On Arms To Spain.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Miss Eleanor Finch apparently does not understand why Senator Nye has introduced a resolution to lift the embargo on the shipment of arms to the Spanish Loyalists. She feels that the public has forgotten the antiwar crusade of 1935 and has shown fickleness in changing "from absolute neutrality to active partisanship in quarrels that are strictly European."

The public has not forgotten, but the effects of sentimental pacifism begin to wear thin as the bandit powers continue to teach the realities of international politics. Americans are learning a few points, such as:

(1) That there are no "strictly European" or strictly Asiatic quarrels. The United States has a tremendous stake in law and order for the world. Specifically the building up of Fascist empires threatens the future security of the United States and involves us in terrific expense for armament.

(2) That the great propaganda for isolation as a cure for war has been merely emotional and futile. It has not been constructive; on the contrary, it has encouraged the military dictators in their plans of empire building. The world is not likely to be the kind of place we can safely live in unless the United States takes some responsibility for making it such a world. England and France cannot be relied on to pull our chestnuts out of the fire for us by making the world safe against dictators.

(3) That the danger of the arms traffic drawing us into war has been greatly exaggerated. British ships have been sunk in Spanish waters, as Miss Finch notes; but Britain has not been drawn into the war. We have sold arms to China and Japan and there is no sign of our being drawn into war thereby. Fifty-two nations imposed sanctions on Italy without war.

(4) That the pacifist fear of war with its climax in 1935 was an exhibition of cowardice which invited foreign countries to tread on Uncle Sam's toes, as the Japanese have done with considerable regularity. The first essential for staying out of war is a policy sufficiently vigorous that no country would dream of sinking our Panay.
T. A. B. BAREFOOT.

Washington, May 25.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a speech last summer, the President proposed that aggressors be quarantined, but the Spanish embargo, in effect, quarantines the victims of aggression.

The Administration repeatedly has called attention to this country's love for democracy; but the Spanish embargo succeeds in placing this country in the position of aiding those nations which, with bullying tactics, are doing all in their power to blot out democracy.

Mr. Roosevelt has, on numerous occasions, indicated that his administration is ready to follow the will of the people, that it is truly democratic; yet the embargo against Spain is left on the record in spite of the fact that conservative estimates place 75 per cent of the American public as favoring the Spanish people's republic.

The President has, on other occasions, called attention to this country's adherence to treaties and international law; yet the Spanish embargo is contrary to international law in that it refuses to allow a friendly democracy to buy the means of defending itself against barbaric war makers.

Many Government leaders have professed a belief in the cause of peace; yet the Spanish embargo, by aiding the war-making nations in their aggression, encourages war in the world of which we are an important part.

Many of us are too well aware of human misery and suffering. We see efforts to minimize suffering by all scientific means known to man, and yet know that there is too much of it from natural causes. It is a terrible commentary on this Nation if we encourage man-made suffering, which is the very theme of war.

The Post Impressionist

Three Houses.

THERE are three houses, each very lovely, and one is an Italian villa, and another a medieval castle and the third is a substantial Norman farmhouse. Sometimes I force matters and go to live in each of them in turn.

I think I like the Norman farmhouse the best. I do relish the Italian villa—its politely rarefied air, the profound voluptuousness pervading it and expressed in the very lines of its walls (though you have to be pretty alert and subtle to get that point), the whole thing veiled, anyway, in a pale asceticism, as if for the edification of children or of people at least who don't like to be confronted with fundamental things; small minds, you know and drink deep or taste not the Pierean spring and all that. And I like the villa's scenery—delicately calculated lawns dropping at an indicated point sharply into the Mediterranean. But the villa is not meaty enough, there's too much elegance of the mind. I don't like being so conscious of myself as all that; it annoys me to feel like a cardinal or like Petrarch.

And then the medieval castle is a shade too picturesque. You start thinking right away about the plumbing which you know is bound to be lamentable. And the people you meet in that place! Fat, ignorant squires, murderous robber barons, none too well washed maidens of high birth brooding long days over nothing better than, in the final analysis, themselves. I like the brawls all right, the smell of soil, the verdure, the simplicity; it's nice to be back where people aren't neurotics, though of course the Middle Ages are, strictly speaking, one vast neurosis.

Once, when visiting the castle, to my astonishment, I ran into Sir Launcelot and Sir Galahad just coming back from a session of deeds in the vein in which I might return from a session of poker. They looked pretty exalted, as they usually did after a session of deeds, though this time you might suspect that they had gotten in some particular good ones. Smug, I thought. And almost my first reaction after that of surprise was dislike. I never had liked the shining young Galahad I know in F. H. A., and there's a Launcelot on Ellicott street here that makes me sick to look at him. I noticed that the prototypes resembled these lads strongly, and I decided I didn't like Launcelots or Galahads in any setting and I haven't set foot in the castle since, though I still like to look at it.

But the Norman farmhouse, now there's something. It's as realistic as Friendship Heights, and as solid as the little house in Lafayette Square. It's a handsome place, where a man would be glad to say good-by to cocktail parties and work and charming people and world events; where he'd do some hunting and planting and poker and horseback as he pleased; where he'd do perhaps some good writing, where he might even get to read Gibbon's Decline and Fall. As a place it's not any more fantastic than the farm we're going to move to in about seven years, according to the family budget, though a lot grander and prettier, of course.

But the beauty is that I'm not confined to any of these lovely houses. They run up and down on my wallpaper ad infinitum, and my eye after them, stopping only here and there to think for a moment, as a little girl might stop to pick a flower. If the flower is a stinkweed like Sir Launcelot, I simply move on to the Italian villa, for I'm not going to spoil my morning with cynicism. There are tiny little pansies on the paper, too, just left and down from the castle, of a totally unheard-of hue.

At least I think they're pansies, and I think it's a castle, and I think it's a villa. The designer didn't bother to get very definite about it, and I think he must have been a great connoisseur of human nature, a man of insight, of deep sympathy, who knew perfectly well that a man waking up to have breakfast, to ride a trolley to work in an office, wanted to think of something else the first few minutes, and would want to build his own houses.

M. GARRETT NEALON.

A Mercy Killer.

Mrs. Kathleen Mumford, 40, formerly of Throstle Grove, Middleton, Leeds, was at Leeds assizes recently sentenced to death for the murder of her 5-year-old imbecile son, Derek, who died from gas poisoning. No evidence was called for the defense and H. B. H. Hylton-Foster, addressing the jury, said: "I am not instructed by Mrs. Mumford to say she has any regrets for what she has done. What she says is this:

"'There was no cure whatsoever for the child. He would never be normal with his hands, therefore what was the child to live for? All the days of his life he would have been an imbecile. Was it right that such a child live like that? Therefore, I ended his sufferings. I thought everything I did was in the interests of the child, and as God would not take him away I thought it my duty to help. If it were possible to have the boy back as he was, and me to have my freedom, I should say "No."'"

Justice Wrottesley, summing up, pointed out that there was nothing in law that could justify Mrs. Mumford in taking the life of her son.

Fair Enough

By

Westbrook Pegler.

Army's Blues.

AS TO THE ACCURACY of some of the representations in the following note of protest I have no information. It is an artillery officer's protest against the return of the blue dress uniform.

PEGLER.

Army people, he says, can be imposed on with impunity by politicians, and he strongly disclaims any desire on the part of conscientious professionals to strut at teas or crock parties in horsefeathers and gold braid.

"Orders have been issued from Washington," he writes "requiring all officers of the regular army to buy blue dress, heretofore optional. Representative Rogers (Democrat), Massachusetts has introduced a bill to appropriate $5,000,000 to put the enlisted men in blue also.

"Nothing is to be gained by retrogression, and the Army tends to be far too reactionary as it is. The blue uniform stands for the army of a simpler, more leisurely day when the most arduous duty consisted of watching evening parade, followed by drinks at the Officers' Club. The present day soldier works. A return to the leisurely ways of our pre-war Army might be desirable but, unfortunately, is not possible.

* * * *

"AUTHORITIES agree that the world is on the verge of a new and more devastating conflict that no one seems able to stop. This is no time for dress. It is a time for work. A dress uniform is part of that purposeless panoply of war which indeed seeks to glorify it.

"Ours is a citizens' army. The Regular Army is but a small part of our forces. With the regulars in blues we introduce a distinction which will breed only discontent. It is an unwarranted expense. An active second lieutenant gets about $130 a month, a general about $500 a month and a minimum outfit costs about $150.

"But that's only the officers, who can stand anything. The country is asked to make an initial outlay of $5,000,000 for blues for the soldiers, to go to Mrs. Rogers' Massachusetts woolen mills—$5,000,000 for gold braid, when there are exactly two batteries of modern anti-aircraft guns in the entire country, a mere hundred or so tanks; when our artillery is equipped with a model 1897 field gun, with not enough ammunition for training purposes. Our equipment and material in every department is far from efficient because of lack of funds to bring large bodies of troops together for maneuvers. Officers and soldiers live in dilapidated quarters because Congress won't build accommodations.

"Uniforms were first introduced for purposes of identification and discipline. Since, in earlier times, the Army constituted a superior caste, armies vied with each other to strut before civilians in the gaudiest possible combinations. Need we remind ourselves that the United States is supposed to be a democracy?

* * * *

"AS WEAPONS were then used only at close range, protective coloration did not enter into the matter, and the gaudy uniform could be, and was, worn to war.

"The purposes of a uniform today are discipline, identification and protective coloration. None of these calls for a blue uniform.

"One reason more—they say pride in the service. Is pride of service, then, a matter of blue cloth and gold braid? It is far more likely to be based on confidence on our Army's ability to fight rather than to look beautiful on social occasions."

As the officer says, all regular officers have been ordered to buy dress blues, but it is expected that the issue of blues for enlisted men will be bought out of the regular appropriation—with great benefit, no doubt, to Massachusetts mills. As to the rather disparaging references to the 1897 field gun, another artillery officer points out that this piece is the French 75 and insists that it will have to do until a better one comes along.

Certainly many officers do resent the gouge out of their salaries for fancy dress uniforms for social purposes when a proportion of professionals without private incomes already live in a state of genteel poverty. And it does seem a fair question whether it is more urgent to buy dress uniforms for the enlisted men than guns to augment the two batteries, if that is actually all the Army has, of modern anti-aircraft guns.

Revolt Of An Electric Horse.

(The electric horse introduced in the White House by Calvin Coolidge is now being used by New Dealers to keep fit.—News item.)

The Horse:
Help! Help! I am in deep distress—
My lot is tough, to wit:
I'm being used to keep a lot
Of Democrats quite fit!
Ghost:
Oh, why disturb my peaceful rest!
It leaves me very blue
To think New Dealers keep in shape
By commandeering you.
Horse:
It is the truth, the sacred truth;
I feel much like a rat—
Your pet now helps the Democrats
Shake off their excess fat.
Ghost:
How oft indeed you've jolted me
And made some portions black and blue!
I trust you haven't fallen down
At jolting those New Dealers, too.
Horse:
I jolt 'em all I can, ah, yes,
And put their muscles in a sling,
But, Cal, these Democrats are tough
And jolts to them don't mean a thing!
Ghost:
Oh, woe is me! Oh, woe is me!
Gone is my perfect bliss;
Whoever thought my White House horse
Would ever come to this?
Horse:
My plight indeed humiliates—
'Twas you who brought me here;
New Dealers leaping to my back
Ghost:
Don't spread the news too widely, horse;
I'd hate to have folks know
The horse I raised with tender care
Now takes fat off a foe.
Horse:
Dan Roper rides me every day;
Just now, when all alone,
I saw two men approaching me
Named Corcoran and Cohen.
Ghost:
Why must you sadden me with this?
Boy, how my spirits sink!
How terrible! The horse I raised
Keeps such men in the pink!
Horse:
I'm sorry if I'm hurting you—
To wake you was not nice,
But, Cal, I'm in a tough spot where
A fellow needs advice.
Ghost:
There's only one thing you can do—
Yes, truly, only one;
Blow out a fuse or something and
Then do not choose to run!

New York is now considering a tax on bookmakers and this department thinks it's about time. It will be nice for once to see the bookies forced to give somebody a break.

Colored Shirts And Dictators Declared No Signs Of Foreign Ideologies' Penetration; Economic Inroads Admitted.

By A. Curtis Wilgus,

Special Correspondence of The Post.

FOR SOME YEARS the world has been seeing red, but now it has become conscious of brown and black. Nowhere has color consciousness been more noticeable than in the Latin-American countries. For a century political groups have been known as the Reds, the Whites, etc., and in recent years the vogue for colored shirts has increased until gold, green and other colors have been adopted. No one, therefore, need feel surprised at an announcement that a Latin-American political faction has adopted a distinctive colored shirt.

Yet present day observers appear to be always searching for a sinister motive behind the wearing of colored uniforms and insignia. Moreover these same observers are almost sure to jump to the conclusion that a European dictator is behind the scenes pulling partisan puppets by hidden strings along a path leading to foreign domination and that foreign political parties are exercising a subtle influence in the national and international policies of Latin-American governments.

But nothing could be farther from the truth, despite the fact that some Latin-American political leaders look to European dictators or factions for moral support or for actual assistance.

Latin-Americans Said Political Individualists.

THE LATIN-AMERICAN is a political individualist, collectively as well as by himself. Since the winning of independence from a strong-willed, dominant, paternalistic mother country more than a century ago, he has foiled every attempt to subject his country to permanent foreign political control. And foreign political influence within the country has been as impossible of attainment as foreign conquest. The Monroe Doctrine, so often credited with this result, has apparently had little to do with keeping out foreign "isms" from Latin America, for there has always existed a natural suspicion on the part of Latin-Americans of all pernicious political influences from abroad.

But within Latin America during the past century political factions have multiplied rapidly and they are still multiplying and will continue to do so, for the political expedient of the moment and the practical politics of the leader demands this party multiplication and political division. Indeed, this process is one of the prime essentials of Latin-American political life.

It is just here in regard to this question that most people in the United States fail to comprehend the significance of Latin-American political changes, believing that it is a sign of decay or unrest. But to the Latin-American political change shows progress, whereas non-political change is an indication of stagnation and an inability to learn from past political experience.

In each Latin-American country during the century since independence there have grown up dozens of temporary political cliques and factions which cannot properly be designated as political parties. These political groups have existed under a variety of names: Liberals, Nationalists, Rightists, Leftists, Clericals, Radicals, Conservatives, Centralists, Republicans, Democrats, Coalitionists, etc., as well as under the designation of colors. But the names, like the aims, are transitory adoptions and express the needs of the hour.

Leaders And Motives Change With Conditions.

EACH Latin-American faction has a leader and a motive, and the leaders and motives have changed with the political exigencies of the moment and with the political whims of the people. Thus these groups are as unstable as their leaders and their ideals—and often they are so impracticable that the marvel is that they can hold together as long as they do. Often these factions lack sound concrete programs and they color the plans of their platforms with impracticable ideology and flowery verbiage. Occasionally two or more factions merge for a common purpose, but this, too, is a temporary expedient and runs contrary to the whole trend of political individualism in each Latin-American country. More often these factions are incapable of mutual political co-operation.

In many instances Latin-American politics becomes theoretical rather than practical and it breaks down into something very near to a religious fetish. Thus political faith is not only an ideal to be worshiped, but a pious desire to be consummated at the cost of one's life if necessary. In consequence, revolution has become a divine right. There is thus no room for foreign influence in such a concept.

Into this political picture has come since the World War the university student as a frequent decisive factor, with new blood and new ideas. In many universities teachers are men of business and busy with everyday affairs, teaching on the side to augment their income or because they like the contacts afforded them in the classroom. Being thus closely concerned with business, and therefore interested in politics, the instructors have introduced into their classes political, social and economic ideas, which until recent years were almost foreign to the minds of many Latin-American students.

Because many of the students are immature in years and experience they have acquired from the teachers a smattering of partially digested political half-truths which cause them to advocate any principle to which they may become converted. Outside of the classroom they speak their minds on political subjects and are listened to eagerly by the less literate portion of the population which considers them educated thinkers.

From the talking stage to the leading stage is a short step in Latin America. In this way politically minded students enter politics. It is not surprising today that students strike for changed curriculum, or for modified entrance requirements, or for greater university autonomy. And because the universities are under the control of the governments, the students ipso facto find themselves in opposition to the government. Thus a student party is born, which if it cannot elect its own candidate to office will support a candidate who will carry out their tenets. It is among students that colors and insignia are popular, but they have no more connections with foreign political groups than have the other political factions in Latin America.

Dictators Not New To Latin Americans.

THE OTHER great characteristic of Latin-American political life is the dictator. But the dictator has existed in Latin-American countries for more than a century just as totalitarian states have existed in Latin America before the rise of such states in Europe today.

A Latin-American dictator is an individualist expressing his individuality in politics. The one-man idea of political control—the leader—is as old as Latin-American and Iberian history. "Caudillo" is the term used in Latin America for the individualist and "personalism" in politics is rampant. The dictator is a man of ambition like Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini, and often he is as unscrupulous. But many are benevolent dictators, like the enlightened despots of the eighteenth century in Europe.

The dictator represents a compromise between republicanism, which the Latin-Americans were not entirely ready for when they achieved independence, and the absolute monarchy of the colonial period. Certainly ideas of dictatorship and totalitarianism have never been foreign to Latin-American political ideas. But they have no political relationship to European governments under dictators.

It is therefore evident to the student of Latin-American affairs that the present unrest in Latin America is only symptomatic of Latin-American politics as practiced for over 100 years and that it is not the result of European "isms" seeking political control in these countries. Fascism, nazism and communism have made themselves felt in Latin America largely through economic penetration, and although some political groups in the Latin-American countries have taken foreign political designations (or have been given them by their political enemies), the connection is always disavowed.

No Latin-American would copy a political idea from abroad; he would originate it himself, or he would so modify it to suit his political needs that no possible political pressure or influence could be brought to bear upon him from abroad. "Isms" are economically dangerous in Latin America today, but not foreign political dogmas.

Muddy Wells

By

John T. Appleby.

His Latest Scheme For Salvation.

MR. H. G. WELLS is without doubt one of the most determined optimists in the world today. It is impossible not to admire a man who, amid the rumbling of caissons, the construction of bomb-proof shelters, and the fitting on of gas masks, can propose so fantastic a panacea for all evils as that contained in "World Brain." Mr. Wells pleads for a new and better sort of encyclopedia, a synthesis of all the knowledge in the world, kept constantly up to date, and available to all, either in cheap editions or in centrally located libraries. It is to be "the mental background of every intelligent man in the world," and will "hold the world together mentally."

The importance of this project may be gauged by the fact that Mr. Wells declares "that without a world encyclopedia to hold men's minds together in something like a common interpretation of reality, there is no hope whatever of anything but an accidental and transitory alleviation of any of our world troubles."

Ignoring the tremendous implications of that remark, Mr. Wells goes blithely on to recommend a consideration of the great ape, who "could escape from most things, but not from its own mental confusion."

WITHOUT WISHING TO DRAW any invidious comparisons, one is tempted to wonder just how far Mr. Wells has succeeded in escaping from his own mental confusion. "A common interpretation of reality!" Before this common interpretation can be presented to the world at large, it must first be arrived at by the authors and compilers of the world encyclopedia. But is there any indication that such a common interpretation is held by the leading intellects of the day? There has never been a time when the world was in such a state of intellectual anarchy as it is at the present day. Each intellectual light has his own interpretation of reality, or denies that reality can be interpreted, or even denies that there is a reality in the first place.

If Mr. Wells had only confined his world encyclopedia to the presentation of known facts, he would be quite safe, but when he used that fatal word "interpretation," he went off the deep end. After all, an interpretation of reality is actually a philosophy. It is perfectly true that the acceptance of a common philosophy by all mankind, provided that it were a, or rather the, right philosophy, would accomplish wonders little short of those Mr. Wells envisions. The rub is in finding the right philosophy.

Although Mr. Wells would probably be the first to deny it, one cannot help thinking that he is at least unconsciously affected by the memory of the great encyclopedia of the Middle Ages. At that time the field of human knowledge was comparatively small, so that almost all of it could be compressed within the range of a great encyclopedia. There was also a common interpretation of reality. There was also a unity of thought and feeling and ideals such as the world has never known since. Was that unity the result of the encyclopedias, or did the encyclopedias arise because of that unity?

* * * *

"THE BROTHERS" is one of Mr. Wells' amiable fantasies. It concerns twin brothers, unaware of their relationship, who head opposing factions in a civil war. The Fascist captures the Communist leader, and they discover that they are brothers in more than blood, for they are both aiming for the same objective and using the same means, but a different set of catch-words.

The author is so intent upon proving the common brotherhood of man that he can take all these contradictions in his stride. Black is white to Mr. Wells, and white is black, and the twain have met and merged into an uncommonly muddy gray.

References to contemporary events are very thinly veiled. The locale is obviously Spain seen through the looking-glass. References to the Church in this volume and to Christianity, the Bible, and the Holy Land in "World Brain" have a bitterness and venom that are particularly offensive.

Mr. Wells is a muddled thinker and a slovenly writer. These two volumes show him at his worst in both fields.

Montana In The 80's

By Edmund S. Meany, Jr.

WHEN CHRISTOPHER P. CONNOLLY went West in 1886 he was 23 years old and eager to learn. He and the devil simultaneously received an education in politics, for during the next 20 years Mr. Connolly was a close observer of legislative and judicial jobbery in a commonwealth which had but recently "liquidated" its gold rush bandits.

Long after the eighties respectable and aged Montanans recalled their active participation in ridding the region of men like Henry Plummer, sheriff of Virginia City, whose own band made a fortune "protecting" stage coaches by methods dulled in the hands of modern racketeers. Mr. Connolly knew these surviving citizens and the kind of frontier life they had led was introductory to the capitalistic frontier which followed.

Copper superseded gold as a rapid way to wealth in the Montana of the eighties. But by this time the Territory was more advanced in sophistication, and the methods of gaining the baser metal were necessarily of a larger scale than those of obtaining gold. The struggle for control of Butte Hill and its treasure was fought by the devious means of industry and politics.

The mines which from their opening until 1905 yielded one-third of the copper of the world, at the same time produced a correspondingly large share of political and legal corruption. "This struggle between mining magnates," wrote Mr. Connolly, ". . . made hundreds of men and ruined thousands; it perverted the moral sense of entire communities; it destroyed promising careers, and checked worthy names from the scroll of State and national fame. It corrupted the machinery of justice and placed the lawmaking power on the auction block."

The rough-and-ready Marcus Daly opened up the Butte Hill mine, and entered into intense rivalry along all fronts with William A. Clark. Clark's ambition to hold a seat in the United States Senate provided the basis for a titanic political feud between the two men. Outright bribery of State Legislatures to the extent of about $500,000 won Clark his post, which was denied him ultimately by senatorial judgment. Violence above and below ground, in Legislature and court, continued when these two men were eclipsed in stellar position by F. Augustus Heinze and the Amalgamated Copper interests at the turn of the century. In the latter part of the account are glimpses of William E. Borah, Theodore Roosevelt and Thomas J. Walsh, who attained the peaks of public life after Mr. Connolly left Montana and became a muckraker in the national field.

"THE DEVIL LEARNS TO VOTE; THE STORY OF MONTANA," by C. P. Connolly. (Covici-Friede, $2.50.)

The Handicap Of Heritage.

Sons of the famous and sons of the infamous labor under like handicaps, as two recent news stories emphasize. Enrico Caruso, jr., living in a basement flat in Manhattan, complains that his famous name closes all doors to him. He cannot get a minor position in a business house because it would cost the firm prestige. His one asset is his voice, yet no one will judge it on its own merits, but only by comparison with that of his illustrious father. The comparison is as disastrous as it is unjust, for "I am not the old man," Enrico, jr., honestly admits. So he "starves" while diligently applying himself to his art.

On the other side of the fence is little Manfred Hauptmann, who cannot be allowed to live a normal life because his father was the man executed for the "crime of the century." If he breaks his leg, as he did the other day, it is news, and in every account of the accident his father's crime is mentioned. Is he to go through life plagued and hampered by this heritage? Nothing could be more unfair, yet nothing seems more certain. And Jon Lindbergh has, perhaps, no better chance than Manfred Hauptmann of living his own life. It is time society applied to the innocent son of his father an unbiased point of view.

Rents Doubled On Old Houses, Council Hears

Crowded 'Quadruplet' Row Homes Investigated by First Ward Group.

A row of 60-year-old houses which used to rent for $10 a month apiece and which now nets its lessee-agent a total of $92 a month was the target of angry comments at the meeting of the First Ward Neighborhood Council Wednesday.

"Who says poor housing doesn't pay?" asked Mrs. F. W. Alstork, housing committee member who presented the report on the "quadruplets," in the downtown northwest section.

Mrs. Helen Duey Hoffman, secretary of the Washington Housing Association, pointed out that high rents for such dilapidated buildings constitute an important obstacle to housing reform. Real estate firms dislike to build new low-cost housing developments when they can extract higher rents from slum tenants, she said.

According to Mrs. Alstork, the "quadruplets" are fairly typical of the Washington slum scene. They are subleased by an agent who in turn rents from the owner. The one-family dwellings have been partitioned into five or six "apartments," with as many as five people living in two dark rooms. The total rent collected from each house is about $38, whereas the agent pays the owner only $60 for the entire row.

Mrs. Hoffman, in suggesting a remedy for such housing conditions, told the council radical changes in Washington's health and building laws are needed. She urged passage of the zoning law now before Congress as a means of limiting the number of persons living in a building.

"As it is," she said, "the health laws don't count children as persons."

The proposed alley dwelling amendments, by providing funds for low-cost developments, would also ease the situation. If there were enough homes to go around, overcrowded buildings such as the "quadruplets" could return to their original status as one-family dwellings, she said.

Dr. Andrew R. Bird was re-elected chairman of the six-month-old council yesterday. Other officers are Mrs. Grace Parr, vice chairman; Harry Moore, secretary; Miss Dorothy Ellis, assistant secretary; Mrs. Belle Cutler Parker, delegate to the coordinating committee, and Joseph Duhamel, historian.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

Baker's Idea.

Jacob Baker's idea for the settlement of British-Mexican claims through the use of British-United States war debts, is likely soon to reach the floor of Congress. Already it has been viewed by the State Department and by Senator Borah, and more recently by Representative Byron Scott (Democrat), of California, who promises to bring the idea to the floor of the House.

Baker, one-time co-operative expert with the New Deal and now president of the United Federal Workers of America, sums up his idea, as follows:

It is understood that the face value, principal and accrued interest of the British war debt to the United States now stands at approximately $5,000,000,000. The latest evaluation put upon this debt was an offer four years ago by the British to settle at 10 cents on the dollar. While the instruments of debt at present are non-negotiable, the contract between the two governments provides that upon request of the United States, Britain shall furnish negotiable instruments subject to sale. That being the case, it has been suggested that the United States Government might lend $250,000,000 of British obligations to Mexico.

These, if valued at the British valuation, would be worth $25,000,000 and their transfer would create an obligation on the part of the Mexican government to the United States in that amount. However, since the notes themselves are notes of the British government and may be assumed to have all the value of any British instruments of debt, that $250,000,000 or whatever amount of notes is necessary, could be used to pay the British nationals out of hand the total amount of the claims they can justify for their oil properties in Mexico.

This, Baker thinks, would stabilize Mexico's internal affairs and build friendship between the United States and Mexico, besides creating confidence and security insofar as the whole of Latin-American countries view the United States.

A more concrete advantage exists in such an arrangement—namely the fact that the Mexican government would not be under necessity to make continuing cash payments on British oil claims, would permit all of the cash available for the purpose to be paid to the American holders of oil claims, Baker contends.

Also, such an arrangement with Mexico would undoubtedly make possible the formulation of a trade pact whereby Mexican oil production and distribution might be brought into correlation with that of United States oil and with the policies of the United States Petroleum Administration. These two concrete advantages are such as to make this possibility worth very serious consideration, he holds.

"There are existing precedents for the transfer by one nation to another of the obligations of a third. It, of course, is the commonest practice in ordinary business that is pursued whenever a note is rediscounted at or by a bank. It is feasible both economically and under international law and precedent. Once used, this formula has wide applicability, particularly as to the relations of the United States with Latin America," says Baker in concluding his case.

Notes.

A golf tournament will be held Friday, June 3, by Treasury Accounts and Deposits Athletic Association at Beaver Dam Country Club, Landover, Md. There will be prizes; players are asked to arrange their own foursomes. On the committee are: R. H. O'Malley, vice chairman of the association; J. W. Harvey, jr., G. E. Jones, J. C. Palmer, G. H. Jones, C. D. Johanson, J. F. Schoen, Everett Johnson, R. A. Bishop, C. M. Martin, R. H. Moore, J. H. Molster. All applications must be in not later than 3:30 p. m. of June 1.

A. F. G. E. AGO Lodge No. 2 has accepted into membership the following persons: Albert A. Baer, Joseph F. Burke, Ermine A. Edman, Carroll L. Klieves, Carrol L. Law, John J. McGuire, Catherine W. McNelly, Herbert Pipes and Abraham Teitler . . . Add flawless performances: the manner in which the NLRB conducted the Welfare and Recreation Association cafeteria elections here Tuesday and Wednesday. The whole performance was timed like a clock and went through without a hitch. The agents who conducted the election are herewith commended most favorably to their bosses in Baltimore . . . Those awnings that keep the sun from the FCA Building windows are causing trouble again. The chiefs are squawking because the last-leavers of the rooms don't furl the awnings as the regulations require. Which won't seem particularly important one way or another to anyone, but the already hard-working guards who each afternoon, have to walk from room to room to attend to something someone else wouldn't.

At the request of the A. F. G. E., Representative McReynolds has introduced a bill aimed at making uniform the practice in Government agencies regarding transfer of employes to new stations, for the purpose of assuring them that their dependents and household effects will be transported at Government expense when the change in station is for the benefit of the Government. The provisions wouldn't apply in the case of a transfer that has been requested by an employe.

The shook situation is not all that it might be.

Shook, which is, or are, the sides, tops and bottoms of wooden boxes, shipped flat to be set up at their destination, furnishes half the annual sales of the $70,000,000 wooden box industry, which consumes 15 per cent of the timber cut in the United States.

Movement of shook has decreased sharply in the current depression, delegates to the National Wooden Box Association convention said yesterday, and sales in 1938 will probably fall off 20 per cent from those of last year.

Blame for the latest business crash was firmly laid at the White House door by the 50 wooden box manufacturers in session at the Mayflower.

"What are they doing to us?" cried F. J. Daughtrey, of Emporia, Va., who led Southern delegates in a bitter attack on the wage-hour bill.

L. F. Powell, of Richmond, Va., charged that "not one of the last ten bills passed by Congress has considered the welfare of employers of labor."

Business men should play less golf and more politics, Powell urged, declaring that their interests are more directly involved in the political issues of the day than in the routine affairs which occupy many of their office hours.

Sole relief from the convention's gloomy atmosphere came when the beverage case division of the organization assembled to report steadily sustained activity in their branch of the industry. Manufacturers of soft drinks as well as alcoholic beverages are placing a heavy volume of orders, it was stated.

C. D. Hudson, of Washington, was renamed as secretary-manager of the association, while Nathan Tufts, Greenfield, Mass., was re-elected president.

Good Samaritans Elect Carruthers

The Rev. Dr. John F. B. Carruthers, visiting minister at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church has been named chairman of the board of directors of the Good Samaritan Foundation, it was announced last night.

Plans for expansion of the foundation's program to include family rehabilitation, with a campaign for $50,000 to finance it, also were made public.

Other officers elected include Dr. John W. Ruskin, pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church; the Rev. Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, and Representative Jennings Randolph, vice chairmen; Talma L. Smith, secretary, and Lawrence M. Proctor, treasurer.

Elected to membership on the board of directors were Vernon Lowrey, Dr. Don S. Knowlton, Helen L. Lyon, C. H. Maher, Merritt L. Smith, Mrs. William Wagner, Mrs. Marion Kirkbride, Wilmer Swift, Walter Harr, Mrs. Clara French and C. M. Walz.

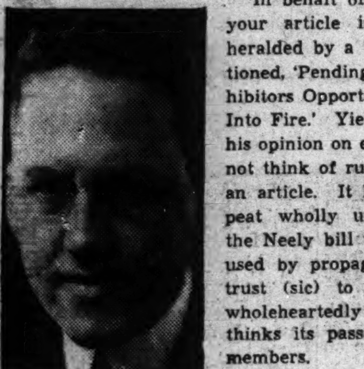
Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Mr. Myers, of Allied States Association of Exhibitors, Defends Neely Bill as a Piece of Needed Legislation

Cites Abuses That Are Said to Impose Hardships on Independent Theater Operators; Not All Pertinent to Washington; National Academy of Stage Training Moves to Country; "Petticoat Fever" Held Over.

UNDER date of May 24, a letter, far too long to reproduce here in its entirety, comes to this desk over the signature of Abram F. Myers on behalf of the Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, reading in part as follows:



BELL.

"In behalf of this association I must protest your article in Thursday's (May 19) Post, heralded by a box on the front page and captioned, 'Pending Legislation Seems to Offer Exhibitors Opportunity to Leap From Frying Pan Into Fire.' Yielding to every man the right to his opinion on every subject, I ordinarily would not think of rushing into print to answer such an article. It happens, however, that you repeat wholly unfounded statements regarding the Neely bill which have been and are being used by propagandists for the motion picture trust (sic) to defeat it. This association is wholeheartedly supporting the measure and thinks its passage vital to the welfare of its members.

"Your article conveys an erroneous impression of the bill because you assume that it would prohibit the booking of a suitable number of pictures in advance, whereas the bill by its very terms is directed only against 'compulsory' block booking. There is not a paragraph, line or word in the bill that would or could prevent an exhibitor from contracting with a distributor for as many pictures to be thereafter released as may be mutually agreeable to them . . . All that the bill provides, in this connection, is that the distributor may not say to the exhibitor, 'you must buy all of my pictures as a condition to the right to buy any.'"

It already has been conveyed to Mr. Myers that our previous column did not "repeat wholly unfounded statements" derived from any source other than our own estimate of the probable consequences of the passage of the Neely bill. It was stated then, also, that "there are, of course, arguments on both sides."

Mr. Myers goes on to say:

"The other requirement of the bill is that the distributor, in offering pictures to an exhibitor, must identify them by a brief synopsis. You are familiar, I am sure, with the enticing announcement books which the distributors issue at the beginning of each selling season. These contain the representations regarding the forthcoming productions on which they solicit contracts. But under the terms of the uniform exhibition contract these representations are not binding on the distributors. Regardless of their advertising and oral promises, the distributors can and do deliver whatever pictures they please. You will recall the uproar last year when one of the major companies refused to deliver six advertised pictures featuring box-office stars and insisted on reselling those same pictures to the exhibitors the following season at higher prices.

"You now begin to sense just how hot it is in that frying pan. With pictures unidentified, and distributors reserving the right to allocate the releases to the different rental brackets, it frequently happens that the distributors do not deliver the maximum number contemplated by their contracts and the deficiency always is in the low price brackets. Thus no exhibitor, when he signs a contract, can compute the film rentals he will have to pay."

This department never has expressed any defense of, or sympathy with, the breach of contractual agreements, no matter what their nature. It merely has contended, and still does, that an assured flow of product to the exhibitor is preferable to a condition that might make needed pictures difficult to secure.

* * * *

The portions of Mr. Myers' letter that have been omitted for lack of space cite instances in which attempts have been made to force a large number of "block" pictures—which the producer-distributors have not run in their own houses—upon exhibitors as a condition to their securing a single desirable "A" picture booking. Since Mr. Myers localizes his examples to Washington, it may be pertinent to point out a vital difference between the situation of the chain-theater operators and the independent exhibitors.

The first-run houses in Washington are all week-run houses, served by several producing companies each, making from 20 to 60-odd pictures a year per company. The downtown requirement in the Capital is for a maximum of 52 pictures a year; less if runs are extended, as frequently is the case.

Many independent exhibitors follow the double-feature policy with as many as four changes of bill a week. This imposes a requirement of more than 400 pictures a year and proportionately diminishes the power of selectivity. In 1937, the major producing companies, including reissues, released a total of 663 pictures. This, at best, would give the multiple-bill, double-feature exhibitor no more than a choice as between two pictures. The long-run houses are not confronted with this dilemma.

With the completion of the spring term of the National Academy of Stage Training, this professional school of the drama will move to Olney, Md., where, in conjunction with Stephen E. Cochran's proposed summer theater project, a 10-week course of instruction in the fundamentals of the theater will be given.

In addition to the usual courses in stage training given during the winter, radio and dancing classes will be formed and pupils will be grounded in the building and painting of scenery and stage lighting.

This hot-weather move does not mean the permanent desertion of the Capital by the Academy. It will return to town in the fall to continue the work in stage instruction that had its inception in 1932.

Speaking of the summer theater, with "Sweeney Todd," initial production of the Roadside Theater's fifth season, going into rehearsal Sunday night for presentation June 13, the wandering Roadsiders are being rounded up post haste. Director Anton Hardt arrives this week from New York and Henry Pearson, designer-technician, will leave Yale University over the week-end, as will Betty Wheeler Hall, prop mistress. Robert Beers is on his way back from Boston and from New York will come Virginia True, James Rawls and Howard Wierum.

Lee D. Butler, chairman of the board of the Washington Civic Theater, will be host to the members of that thriving group at his home, Brookside and Chamberlain avenues, Kenwood, on Saturday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. Members of the press graciously have been included in his list of guests.

Despite the prevalence of inclement weather, the Cross Roads Theater's first production of the season, Mark Reed's "Petticoat Fever," has been so successful that the engagement has been extended. This lively comedy will be presented at Bailey's Cross Roads throughout next week.

In commemoration of the holdover engagement of "The Adventures of Robin Hood," the first picture ever to play a second week at the Earle theater in the eight years the present house policy has been in effect. Zone Manager John J. Payette, of the Warner Brothers interests, yesterday distributed engraved gold pencils to the drama desks of the local press. A handsome and appreciated gesture for which many thanks. Now I can catch up on my writing.

Cinderella Girl Has New Contract

Convinced that her performance in Robert Louis Stevenson's "Kidnaped" will establish her as one of Hollywood's stars, Twentieth Century-Fox this week exercised its option on Arleen Whelan, titian-haired Cinderella girl.

The option was lifted six weeks in advance of the contract date after producers had seen rushes on Stevenson's "Kidnaped," a $1,500,000 picture in which she plays her first role, the leading feminine one opposite Warner Baxter.

No Birth Control.

Twenty or more additions to the family of Ian Hunter, the actor, are expected soon. Hunter disclosed today that three of his dogs, a Dalmatian, Doberman-Pinscher and a Welch terrier, are expecting blessed events about the last of May. According to past performances, that should add at least 20 members to the dog population of the Hunter household, which now totals five.

Trio Joins Skater In 'My Lucky Star'

Three additions were made this week to the cast of Sonja Henie's latest picture, "My Lucky Star," when Kay Griffith, Robert Kellard and Robert Lowery were handed assignments.

They will work under the direction of Roy Del Ruth, with Richard Greene, Cesar Romero, Joan Davis, Buddy Ebsen, George Barbier and others who have important roles.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., May 26.—Metro gave us previews of "Yellow Jack" one night and "Three Comrades" the next. Strong food. Preferred "Yellow Jack." Gripping story, simply, sincerely told, with natural comedy counterbalancing the grimmer moments.

HEDDA HOPPER

When those mosquitoes went to work on Bob Montgomery I started to scratch, which, in a faint way, made me realize what the poor devils who really made guinea pigs of themselves suffered. I don't mind a dash of history if I'm entertained. Not one bad performance in the lot. What versatility and charm Bob Montgomery has. Lewis Stone, so good, you forget to mention it—just take him for granted. We shouldn't.

"Three Comrades" rambled, getting nowhere. Utter futility. Perhaps that was the intent. Never seemed worthy of Margaret Sullavan's brilliant performance which should have moved me deeply, but didn't. Only German things in it were Franchot's haircut and Guy Kibbee's big tummy. Sorry, Guy—I know it was padded.

I hate to say it, but "Three Comrades" looked as though they had missed "The Road Back."

Those "Dead End" kids are now known as the Crime School boys. Instead of softening in our climate, as many do, they get tougher every minute. Look the other way—pretend you've never seen them—if they're ever called the Rover Boys.

Quoting from the British press, franker than ours: "Ernst Lubitsch will be very welcome. He played, before the war, at the London Coliseum as a red-nosed comic, had an ample paunch, brilliant mind, sense of humor. That Lubitsch touch consists, largely, of an uncanny ability to make naughty pictures. He's gotten away with more naughtiness, which never fails to pass the censor, than any director, and boasts a record of 67 pictures without a real flop. Modestly admits to average income, over the years, of $3,000 a week. Which, when you come to think of it, is a fairly big jump from red-nosed witticisms at the London Coliseum."

Bing Crosby is the idol of twin girls, aged 16. They haven't missed his N. B. C. show for two years. They arrive at 10 a. m. with lunch in hand, to see him come in for rehearsal. Wangle tickets somehow for every show—never leave till it's over. They once walked to his home in Taluca Lake, where Dixie took them in and fed them. She and Bing were photographed with them.

My manicurist, who created those celluloid fingernails six years ago for Marlene Dietrich—you'd be surprised to know how many are still wearing them—told a funny one on Mae West. During a love scene, two of her nails caught fire.

Jack Dunn, former skating partner of Sonja Henie, has been under contract to three studios and hasn't made a picture. Finally he is going to work in "Duke of West Point" for Eddie Small. Wish they'd use the Ice Carnival, playing here, so you could all see it—it's wonderful.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, May 26.

MANNERS: William Dodd, former Ambassador to Germany, was in Washington last week where he attended the party given by Judge Moore, of the State Department . . . Dodd saw Germany's Ambassador Dieckhoff, whom he knew in Berlin, and greeted: "And how are you enjoying your job over here?" . . . The Nazi diplomat turned his back undiplomatically—and walked away.

* * * *

CUSTOM: The March of Time repeated its effort to contact George Bernard Shaw via transatlantic telephone to secure his consent for broadcasting parts of his play, "Heartbreak House" . . . The radio officials phoned Shaw's home in Ireland, spoke to his maid, and asked for Mr. Shaw. "I'm sorry, sir," the maid informed, "but Mr. Shaw does not answer the telephone before 6 p. m." . . . At 7 p. m., London time, the phone call again was put through, and the same maid spoke. "I'm sorry, sir," she stated, "but Mr. Shaw does not answer the telephone after 6 p. m.

* * * *

CRIME: District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey has renewed his drive against racketeering in the electrical-contracting industry . . . Mr. Dewey seized the books of eight of the major electric contractors in New York. His investigation will be in connection with bidding on public jobs.

* * * *

SAFETY: On May 13 the police succeeded in capturing Morris Kutler, the Phantom Burglar of Queens, after a seven-month hunt . . . Kutler was taken to the police station, but refused to talk . . . The detectives, nevertheless, learned where he had been living, went to the apartment and recovered $10,000 worth of stolen jewelry there . . . The detectives warmed to their work, opened the window and were startled to hear a bell go off. Kutler, they discovered, had a burglar alarm system—to protect his stolen jewels.

* * * *

ENTERPRISE: Dick Brugiere, son of Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, soon will announce his entry into the professional prize ring. His affairs will be conducted by Neil Whalen, the fight manager, and William Richter, his mother's attorney . . . Brugiere, who is Enzo Fiermonte's friend, will fight as a heavyweight. He already has fought one battle. He used the name Richard Baton.

* * * *

EVIDENCE: The prosecution in the Federal Government's racketeering cases—against Gurrah Shapiro and other defendants—is taking no chances against any changing of testimony by witnesses . . . Special United States Attorney Amen brought the principal witnesses to private quarters, placed them in front of a movie camera and sound-recording machine, and recorded—both in sound and on the screen—all their statements which will be presented at the trial.

* * * *

TRIUMPH: Jack Kirkland, who wrote the drama version of "Tobacco Road," last night declared that he will not write another play—and has retired, permanently, to the Pennsylvania farm which the royalties from the play enabled him to purchase . . . " 'Tobacco Road,' " he explained, "has made a Jeeter Lester out of me. It's made me love the soil. But what is more important—it's given me the capacity to afford it."

* * * *

CHATTER: Some members of the vice squad are being investigated because of strange accusations made by ladies they arrested . . . The Mercury Theater will make recordings of all Shakespeare plays for use in the public schools of America . . . Louis Bromfield is writing a play about French politics . . . Cecil Beaton, the photographer, has written a special ballet for Maria Belita, the 14-year-old ice skater, for her recital in Paris next month. M.-G.-M. wants to sign Miss Belita . . . It's almost a certainty now that Magistrate Sabbatino will be elevated to the city court bench . . . John O'Hara, the novelist, has moved his wife and residence to London.

* * * *

PROTECTION: A number of Broadway's prominent citizens now have other initials placed inside their hats and in the inner pockets of their topcoats . . . One of them was asked to explain why he used initials other than his own . . . "Just remember one thing," he replied. "Remember what happened just because McManus' coat was found in Arnold Rothstein's room."

Home Sweet Home For Brice at Last

For 30 years the comedienne has lived in hotels, apartments and leased homes, but this week she began moving to her recently completed house in Holmby Hills. Four vans laden with boxes, trunks, and barrels of dishes and knickknacks collected during her three decades in the show business were delivered to the new residence.

Helping Miss Brice were her daughter Frances, son William and lifelong friend Ann Pennington. She estimates that about four weeks will elapse before rugs, draperies and furniture are completely installed. The comedienne will continue to occupy her present leased home in Beverly Hills until moving is finished.

Hard Work, Sun Taylor's Training

In his latest picture, "The Crowd Roars," Taylor plays a prize-fighter, physically perfect and healthily bronzed.

For weeks, Taylor has been working hard on his ranch, loading hay, painting his barn, riding horses and doing other chores. Last week, he assisted his neighbor, who owns a 5,000-acre ranch, in herding the cattle and driving them to high pasture in the Sierras.

Reporting on the set, he was hailed by Director Richard Thorpe with a compliment for utilizing "ranching work" as his trainer and Old Sol as his make-up man.

Death-Pact Boy Out of Senses, 2 Alienists Say

Believe Shot That Killed Charlotte Restored His Sanity.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 26.—Sixteen-year-old Donald Carroll, on trial for the murder of the girl who was to become the mother of his baby, heard four psychiatrists testify concerning the workings of his mind.

Two of these expert witnesses for the defense testified the boy was temporarily insane when he and blonde Charlotte Matthiesen, 18, decided to die together last March because she was worried about her condition and their inability to marry.

The experts, Dr. Edward M. Gould and Dr. Samuel Feigin, agreed the sound of the shot that killed Miss Matthiesen probably jolted her young lover back to his senses, with the result that instead of completing their death pact he called the police.

The problem of pregnancy was "not a normal problem" for adolescents to face, Dr. Feigin said. The very fact that they indulged in a final embrace, he added, indicated they were mentally deranged at the moment.

On the other hand, two other experts testified for the State the defendant was sane then and now and realized the consequences of his act.

"I don't believe he actually intended to kill himself," said Dr. John B. Byrne, jr. "I don't believe he was really in earnest."

This opinion was concurred in by Dr. Robert B. Casey, the State's other rebuttal witness.

Both sides rested after the noon recess and court was adjourned until tomorrow, when closing arguments will be heard.

Surgeons' Entry Skids to Victory In Turtle Derby

Baltimore, May 26 (AP).—Everybody had a good laugh, but the last one went to the surgeons, for their entry, an underslung amphibian named Bassini, was hailed today as winner of the Johns Hopkins Hospital turtle Derby in one of the slowest times on record.

A crowd of 2,000 saw Bassini, namesake of a highly regarded Italian surgeon of other times, win the eighth annual running of the Derby yesterday in the shameful time of 1 minute 13 seconds, as compared with last year's blazing record of 37.5 seconds.

Even so, Bassini had no trouble skidding his blue-painted shell over the 19-foot course well ahead of Galloping Consumption, entry of Trudeau Sanatorium, Saranac Lake, N. Y., which finished second, and Miss Filed II, of the History Room stables.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

A 'Minny' Remains a 'Minny'

Merely because the bidding has disclosed a "good fit" is no reason for setting a greatly enhanced value on what was originally a minimum bid. A "minny" remains a minny and should be bid accordingly. Consider the following hand:

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Team-of-four match.

North:
♡ A J 9 3
♢ A K Q 8 2

West:
♠ K J 6
♡ 10 4
♣ Q J 9

East:
♠ Q 8 5 3
♡ 8 6 2

South:
♠ A 10 7 4
♡ K Q 7 5
♣ K 7 4 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♢	Pass
2♡	Pass	4♣	Pass
5♣	Pass	5♡	Pass
6♣	Pass	6♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

I hasten to explain North's peculiar four-club bid. North was unfortunate in that his partner did not know the four-five notrump convention, hence North could not take recourse to that valuable device in his slam investigation. Nor were the partners using asking bids and, thus, the four club bid was simply a makeshift device by which North strove to convey the picture of an excellent hand. North was not quite strong enough to bid three diamonds over one spade, but when the two heart bid came North felt that a slam was by no means out of the question. He seriously considered jumping to four hearts but this bid did not seem to him quite strong enough. If, he reasoned, South had some such holding as Spades A K x x, Hearts K Q x x Diamonds x x, Clubs K x x he would not be able to take action over a four heart bid, and yet a slam would need very little luck for fulfillment. South, of course, had no choice over four clubs—a raise was his only conceivable action. But, when North then went to five hearts, South should have retired gracefully. He had started with an absolute minimum and this had not grown merely because North had bid clubs. As a matter of fact South should have been highly suspicious about North's club bid. North had first shown at least four diamonds with his two-over-one response and finally had guaranteed four hearts by his heart support at the five level. Hence he could have only four clubs if his bid was honest, since with no spades and five clubs he would have bid two clubs instead of two diamonds on the first round.

As it happened, West opened the club queen and 11 tricks were made without difficulty. Unfortunately this did declarer very little good since his contract called for 12 tricks.

U. S. Plane Order Filled.

Hagerstown, May 26.—Delivery of the last of 23 planes for the Bureau of Air Commerce was made yesterday by the Fairchild Aviation Corporation factory here.

Brown Considering Bike Registration

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, said yesterday he was studying possibility of asking registration of all bicycles in the District.

Maj. Brown said registration tags would assist in recovery of stolen bicycles.

Police Recover Body Of Sunday Canoeist

The body of Henry J. Kanczuga, 23, of 2201 Massachustets avenue northwest, State Department clerk who drowned Sunday while canoeing below Chain Bridge, was recovered by harbor police yesterday.

Police found the body floating near the Virginia shore south of the Highway Bridge. He was identified by Ervin Dehn and Albert Hansen, who accompanied him on the canoeing trip.

Another Autopsy Is Performed on Handyman's Body

A second autopsy on the body of Charles Adams, 71-year-old handyman found dead early this month on the Fenwick (Md.) estate of T. Morris Wampler, was performed yesterday at the request of attorneys for Wampler, former Washington attorney, and his wife.

Dr. Fred D. Chatpelear, of Charles County, who made the examination with Dr. James L. MacKavanagh, said their findings would be reported to Circuit Court Judge William M. Loker today or tomorrow.

Facing trial on manslaughter charges, Mr. and Mrs. Wampler are at liberty under bond. John Mudd and Gwynn Bowie, attorneys representing the Wamplers, said the results of the autopsy would determine whether they would attempt to obtain a change of venue for the trial, scheduled for next week.

World Farm Study Approved in Rome

Rome, May 26 (AP).—The Assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture today approved a United States proposal for a world survey of agricultural resources.

The project was presented by J. Clyde Marquis, American delegate, and supported by the American delegation headed by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture M. L. Wilson.

Sgt. Clements Is Winner In Marine Pistol Contest

The Navy announced yesterday Sergt. Brook E. Clements, of the Portsmouth (Va.) Marine Barracks, won the Marine Corps annual pistol competition at Quantico, Va. His score was 545.

Second place went to Sergt. Albert N. Moore, Mare Island, Calif., with 544, and third to Sergt. Therman E. Barrier, Quantico.

Gun-Toter Quails At Test on Self, Gets Year in Jail

Henry N. Williams, colored, 31, pleaded guilty to intoxication and carrying a loaded gun before Police Judge Hobart Newman yesterday.

"I just carried it for protection," Williams said, "I don't even know if the gun's any good or not."

Judge Newman whipped up the weapon and leveled it at the prisoner. "Would you like me to try it out on you?" he asked

"No, sir!"

Over the Coffee

By

Harlan Miller

Up in New York there's a financial gentleman who (believe it or not) hates Roosevelt . . . One day a friend espied a photograph of the President on the Roosevelt hater's desk.

"But why, feeling as you do, do you keep his picture on your desk?" asked the friend.

"Oh," said the Hater, "I just keep it there to remind me to hate Roosevelt all day long, every minute."

* * * *

Dave Lilienthal
. . . pranks?

With all the prattle about McNutt's "2% club" in Indiana, some politicians, think the Hoosiers are pikers . . . In certain other States office holders are expected to come to the aid of the party with contributions as high as 5% of their pay checks.

* * * *

THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING: Only about one Annapolis midshipman in 70 ever becomes an admiral . . . Maybe American congressmen should have alternates, like members of Norway's parliament, to vote on bills while they're at the ball game . . . Or away campaigning . . . Tom Corcoran, roving ambassador for the White House, occasionally refers to the President mystically as "The Top"—as "I'll see The Top about it tomorrow."

"—Dutch boy and Katzenjammers"

To listen to Dr. Arthur Morgan, you'd think he has been the little Dutch boy with his thumb in the dike, saving the TVA, while his colleagues, Harcourt Morgan and Lilienthal, have been the Katzenjammer kids trying to douse him with water pistols and play all sorts of pranks on him . . . And at other moments he sounds like Capt. Katzenjammer in the act of spanking.

Not since Bryan, Volsted and Dr. Townsend has there been such a monopoly of righteousness.

* * * *

Sign of American decadence. The annual ball game between the House of Representatives and the Press Gallery is now kittenball instead of the too, too strenuous regular, old-fashioned baseball . . . That must be the Congressmen's choice; the journalists seem as tough as ever . . . (Incidentally, I'll just mention this once that I hit a two-bagger in the Press-Solons tilt, and then say no more about it.)

* * * *

By an odd coincidence, cases involving two lies were prominent in the news the last few days.

One concerned a midshipman at Annapolis who tried to alibi about cutting a class, after 3 years and 8 months at the Naval Academy, just 4 months before his graduation. He was dismissed from the service.

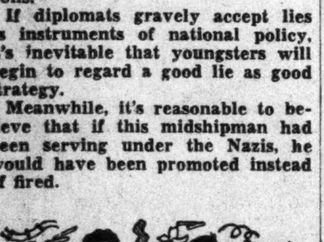
The other was the Nazi denial that Berlin was mobilizing troops at the Czech frontier, when Hitler actually was concentrating large contingents at the border.

* * * *

No one fired the Nazi who told the lie . . . In fact, the British, tongue in cheek, began to consider a Nazi proposal to "police" the Czech elections.

If diplomats gravely accept lies as instruments of national policy, it's inevitable that youngsters will begin to regard a good lie as good strategy.

Meanwhile, it's reasonable to believe that if this midshipman had been serving under the Nazis, he would have been promoted instead of fired.



"—a toy scandal for Congress"

Quite a few fathers and mothers of small children think an investigation of toys would go the roots of things better than the current probe of TVA. They argue that the average tin toy lasts a maximum of 36 hours after a tot gets his hands on it, even if it's an expensive tin toy costing from $1 to $5.

* * * *

These toys go to pieces in the hands of the tots, who are filled with a sense of impermanence and futility, and grow up into the kind of adults who are content to see the world going to pieces in their hands. What they want Congress to find out is why a $1 toy can't be made as honestly and ruggedly as a $1 kitchen utensil, tool or gadget for grownups. Why not a 25-cent toy as strong as a 25-cent can opener?

* * * *

CAPITAL CAVIAR: A Washington hostess learned last week that it's cheaper to serve champagne than mint juleps, because of the high labor cost of mint juleps; making mint juleps for 100 guests calls for mass production . . . The Capital's most exclusive and off-the-record club is the Alibi Club; its proceedings are more secret than what goes on at Cabinet meetings . . . Some of the Senators have sent home for their summer suits.

60 in Burleith Will Picket for Trucking Curb

Boycott on Stores Whose Drivers Offend Is Citizens' Plan.

Sixty Burleith residents last night declared their intention to boycott and picket merchants in their neighborhood who permit their delivery truck drivers to violate traffic regulations.

"We believe the safety of our children is more important than speedy delivery," they said in a "Declaration of Independence" unanimously adopted at the home of Walton Onslow, 3708 S street northwest.

Their declaration, which will be circulated among Burleith citizens, contained four major points. They were:

To call proprietors of retail stores and report all traffic violations by their drivers when seen.

When possible, to report traffic violations by delivery drivers to police, to procure warrants and appear in court as witnesses.

To send delegations to the business establishments owning trucks observed in traffic violations.

To boycott and picket stores whose proprietors refuse to cooperate.

"We deplore and condemn" driving tactics of delivery drivers, the declaration said. It took exception to "daily instances of total disregard of sensible driving" by the same drivers.

The meeting also decided to request the motor vehicle division to install stop signs on Thirty-seventh street northwest at Wisconsin avenue.

Meanwhile, a special committee of the Keystone Automobile Club, headed by Maj. F. McKenzie Davison, reported its belief that obscuring of traffic lights by buses and trucks "constitutes a serious traffic hazard in Washington." The committee suggested tree branches be trimmed and light positions changed.

WPA to Give 272 Jobs With 5 Projects Here

Cass Announces Launching of $202,835 in Work on June 6.

Five new WPA projects providing employment for 272 persons here will be launched June 6, Deputy Administrator Otto Cass announced yesterday. Cost for all projects will be $202,835.

Eighty persons will be employed at Gallinger Hospital where officials are anxious to decrease the hour-load per employe. Recently civic organizations have protested that many employes are working "beyond their regular time of employment." Cass said the additional help will ease the situation there.

Fourteen nurses, 10 ward maids, 44 attendants, 7 clerks, 3 technicians, 1 pharmacist and 1 dietitian, will be employed in this project, over a period of 12 months.

Census Bureau, Department of Commerce—102 persons at a total of $68,386 (8 months).

District Electrical Department—30 persons at a total of $19,010 (8 months).

Labor Department—41 persons at a total of $17,034 (6 months).

Persons now on assignment with local projects will not be placed on any of the new projects, Cass said. At the present there are more than 8,000 attached to District projects.

Jews Open Meeting on Social Work

Miss Epharim Says Cultural Exchanges May Pave Way to Peace.

Dr. Reissig Warns That Lack of Agreement Invites Fascism.

A cultural exchange of ideas may mark the pathway to peace for a war-seeking, phobia-ridden world, Miss Miriam E. Epharim, director of activities for the Pittsburgh Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association, told the National Conference of Jewish Social Welfare, in session at the Willard Hotel yesterday.

"A consciousness of sharing values will go far toward relieving tension," said Miss Epharim. "Each culture has so much to offer, a proving ground and a sort of symposium might be the result, the threats of persecution or war might be banished from the earth."

1,000 Delegates at Meeting.

Director of the National Association of Jewish Center Workers, Miss Ephraim addressed the more than 1,000 delegates as they opened their annual assembly here yesterday at a general round-table discussion of the life of the Jew in a rapidly-changing world and social scheme.

The delegates are executives and lay leaders in Jewish philanthropical, social service, community center and educational work from the United States and Canada.

Major emphasis was placed on some of the more pressing problems facing Jews and their communities in America at present.

A true democracy in America will be achieved if all her peoples are given the opportunity of continuing their cultural traditions in harmony with the conditions of American environment, Miss Epharim declared.

Fascist Struggle Basic.

"The war between democracy and fascism is one of the most basic wars in history," said Chest: Williams, assistant administrator of the Federal Forum Project of the U. S. Office of Education, in an address to the delgates.

He warned the center workers, however, that their help was needed to enlighten public opinion through their audit education projects and thus "take practical action while there is yet time to make America the first democracy in the world's history to justify the faith of the Revolutionary fathers of American independence."

A fundamental conflict between power-seeking leaders and the cooperative principle is responsible for fascism," Williams said.

A Majority Needed.

The condition under which fascism arises, threatening the rights of all minority groups with oppression, violence and suppression of civil liberties, is one in which a democracy finds itself without a majority party and the people "mill about in increasing confusion," Dr. Herman F. Reissig, of the American Committee for the Foreign Born, told the delegates in an address.

"The New Deal cannot hold its followers together," he asserted.

"We therefore might easily reach a point at which the New Deal might find itself completely hamstrung, unable to make any major proposal for meeting the economic crisis.

"'Then you would find the conservatives divided into two parties and the progressive forces split into three or four different groups.

"'One need not be an alarmist to see and warn that such a situation would beautifully pave the way for fascism."

Unclassified Clerks Petition U. S. to Make Jobs Permanent

"Stepchildren" of the Government, those Federal employes who do not come under civil service ratings, last night adopted a resolution petitioning the Administration to make their jobs permanent.

Meeting in the Democratic Club at 1500 Rhode Island avenue, the more than 100 delegates, representing 350.000 Government employes, non-classified, throughout the Nation deplored the fact that the reorganization bill has "bogged down," and called attention to the "usefulness of certain employes in the Government service."

"The board of directors," said the resolution, "continues to exert its efforts for the complete classification of all emergency employes through non-competitive examinations and we continue to maintain that our Civil Service Commission should be given a more elastic administration."

"The Government," continued the resolution, "may thus build a career system, which will attract the very best of talent in the Government, and give it its full share of men and women of outstanding ability.

"The resolution said such a system would benefit the Government, particularly in view of the failure of the reorganization bill.

The board of directors of the association, composed of Federal workers, late yesterday elected Harold P. Thoreson their president.

Named to the board of directors were George H. Blandford and Frank G. Morrison, of Washington; Reginal Martin, of Washington; Kenneth Stages, of Washington; Joseph Murphy, of New York; David D. Sokalor, of New York; Floyd G. Hall, of North Carolina; Kenneth Turner, of Florida; T. C. Ramsey, of Washington; Mortimer M Celler, of Washington, and Charles E. Reid, Lillian Brown and Jane Jackson, of Washington.

Bar Bandits Lock Victim in Icebox

Police yesterday sought two men who held up the Dixie Pig Barbecue at the Bladensburg Peace Cross and fled with nearly $600 after locking Odell Kelly, 25, night attendant, in an icebox. Kelly escaped by battering the icebox door down with a case of beer and rushed across the street where he found two Prince Georges County policemen eating breakfast.

The money was in a tin box in the storeroom of the establishment. Kelly said one of the bandits, who wore dark glasses, slugged him on the eye when he attempted to observe him for later identification. The colored janitor and a passerby both told police they saw two men leave the place in a small automobile, but heard no disturbance.

House Liability Bill Backed at Taxi Meeting

Seven hundred District cab-drivers last night voted almost unanimously in favor of the House taxi liability bill—as against the Senate measure—after a three-hour session at the Typographical Temple, 423 G street northwest.

The House bill, as explained to drivers by Col. Lawrence Crawford, chairman of the Board of Trade traffic committee, provides three methods of liability coverage—individual insurance policies, blanket policies protecting associations or the posting of a "sinking fund," not to exceed $75,000, from which damage claims could be met.

Representing only the drivers' preference between the House bill and the Senate measure, which would afford no alternatives to individual insurance policies, last night's vote was taken after Charles McClosky, vice president of the Central Labor Union and chairman of the newly-organized taxi drivers' local, warned: "Whether you like it or not, you're going to get some sort of taxi liability bill at this session of Congress. You might as well show which one you want.

"But if you weld yourselves into a union of 5,000 members you can go up to the Hill next winter with your own bill."

His listeners cheered repeatedly as McClosky urged an intensive organizing campaign among local cab drivers.

"With a powerful, legitimate union," he said, "you can drive off into Maryland and Virginia and tell this town you won't come back until you get a decent rate of pay."

The A. F. L. leader dismissed suggestions of a 5 cent increase in fares with the statement, "we don't want any lousy nickel." He pointed out that many taxi rides costing only 20 cents in Washington would run the meter up as high as 70 cents in other cities.

Charging that police are unnecessarily severe in stopping cab drivers from minor infractions of traffic ordinances, he said: "They use you fellows to keep up the District police department."

"There are only two things in this union we won't tolerate," he concluded—"communism and racketeering."

With 270 drivers signing up last night, membership in the local has now nearly reached the 1,200 mark, it was announced.

Commissioner Boom Launched for Locher

A Locher-for-Commissioner boom, with the possible backing of the District's A. F. of L. trade unionists, was launched last night by Charles McClosky, vice president of the Central Labor Union. John Locher is president of the group.

McClosky told 700 taxi drivers the demands of their union would soon get a sympathetic hearing at the District Building, predicting that "John Locher will be a Commissioner when September rolls around."

Son of Bishop Hughes Gets Connecticut Call

Indiana, Pa., May 26 (AP).—The Rev. Dr. Holt Hughes, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church here and son of Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Washington, D. C., said today he would leave next week to accept a pastorate at Bridgeport, Conn.

Dr. Hughes came to Indiana from Kenmore, N. Y., three years ago.

William W. Washington, Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas, and Sergt. George Berry Camps, Spanish War Veterans and James Reese Europe Post, American Legion, with its auxiliary, will conduct services at Mount Zion and Union Baptist Cemeteries at 3 p. m.

George Washington Post of the Legion and Col. John Jacob Astor Camp, Spanish War Veterans, will honor war dead at Rock Creek Cemetery at noon. The American Gold Star Mothers will hold services at 3 p. m. at the markers on Sixteenth street northwest near Walter Reed Hospital.

Women's Relief Corps units of the G. A. R. will meet at 6:30 p. m. at the Sisters' Monument, Connecticut avenue and M street northwest. Jane A. Delano Post of the Legion will meet at 5:30 at the grave of Miss Delano in Arlington National Cemetery.

Chemists to Elect.

Washington Chapter of American Institute of Chemists will meet tonight at 8:15 o'clock at the Wardman Park to elect officers. Work during the past year will be reviewed.

J. R. C. Thought a Lot of His Irish Setter

Naturally he felt pretty bad when his pet strayed away. Like a great many people in Washington, his first thought was to ask Post readers to help him find his dog. This three-line ad did the trick:

REWARD for return of Irish setter, female, age 5 months, strayed from Bradley blvd., Bethesda, Md. Wis. 5235.

A Post reader found the prodigal setter, and J. R. C. is happy once more. When you lose anything don't say "lost"—say

Knights Hear Dr. Phillips at Annual Rites

Pleas for a return to the belief in the motto, 'My hope is in my God,' to hold fast to the ideals on which Masonry was founded, and to reconsider their fraternal obligations from the standpoint of Christianity, were voiced last night by the Rev. Ze Barney Phillips, speaking at the annual service of the District Commanderies of the Knights Templar at the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, which led the local Protestant observance of the Feast of the Ascension.

"We must re-establish in our hearts, in our homes, and in our lives, a devotion to the ideals through which this fraternity has made us freeborn men," declared the speaker, Chaplain of the Senate and pastor of Epiphany Church.

Also participating in the program, which the guests attended in full regalia, were the Grand Prelate, the Rev. Knight James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House; Dean Emerson, of the Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, Ohio, and the full vested choir of Epiphany, which gave special music.

Attending an Ascension Day of prayer for missions, at Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church, some 300 women, including 100 from out of the city, heard Mrs. M. Edwin Thomas, president of the Women's Inter-Denominational Missionary Union of Baltimore, and former missionary to India, urge a deeper understanding of the virtues and backgrounds of other races and nations as a means of effecting world unity. She praised the schools for their efforts in that direction.

Miss Elise Kettler, Mrs. H. H. Meiners, Mrs. Paul A. Menzel and the Rev. Charles Enders, minister at the host church, also participated in the program. The collection was for the benefit of the Bethel Church, of New Orleans; the construction of a church at San Pedros Sula, the Honduras, and missionary education. The meeting was sponsored by the Baltimore-Washington Federation of the Women's Union of the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Playground In Southeast Near Fruition

Arrangements Completed for Area Opposite Buchanan School.

Hubbard Is Reappointed as Landscape Architect Member.

Completion of arrangements for a new playground to be developed opposite Buchanan School, near Thirteenth and E streets southeast, was announced yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Land still remaining to be acquired will be obtained by condemnation. Such action was recommended by Norman Brown, land purchasing officer, and approved by the planning body.

Opening its monthly meeting, the commission voted to assign to the District Commissioners Petworth and Turkey Thicket Playgrounds, now being built. They will be operated by the District playground department.

Hubbard Reappointed.

Chairman Frederic A. Delano announced the reappointment by President Roosevelt of Henry V. Hubbard as landscape architect member. His first six-year term expired April 30 and the new appointment is for another six years. Hubbard who, like the other members, serves without compensation, is on the faculty of Harvard University.

The executive committee, comprising Delano and Vice Chairman Arno B. Cammerer, was authorized to meet with the Arlington County Board to work out details for acquisition of Unit No. 2 in the George Washington Memorial Parkway, on the Virginia side of the Potomac above Key Bridge.

Buildings Approved.

Approval was given the proposed erection of buildings for the Municipal and Juvenile Courts in Judiciary Square as PWA projects. The President's 10-year building program, recently made public, was discussed but no action was taken on it.

At the final session today the major topic will be the Capital's southeast section and how it may be developed to keep pace with the constantly-growing northwest. Plans will be submitted and discussed by John Nolen, jr., director of planning, and William T. Partridge, consultant.

10 New Coffee Recipes Dress Up Old Flavor

Mrs. Ira Lee Law Wins First Prize for Mocha Spanish Cream; Many Other Uses Described.

EVER since the Arabs discovered the possibilities of the coffee bean five centuries ago coffee has been a favorite beverage. This week housewives showed how the beverage could score a five-star success in cooking. The fragrant, satisfying beverage was lifted from the breakfast menu and added to the dinner pastry or the sparkling party dessert. The flavor of a favorite cake was heightened by a frosting of mocha cream and an ice cream was given an Oriental touch by the addition of coffee and toasted almonds.

Coffee Spanish Cream.

Five recipes were awarded prizes, but scores of recipes were of prize-winning caliber. The ten recipes selected for honorable mention are listed today on this page.

MRS. LAW.

The first prize was awarded Mrs. Ira Lee Law, 921 Hamlin street northeast. Her recipe for coffee has a sparkling gelatin base. It can be served as a layered dessert with a whipped cream topping. Its mocha flavor makes it popular with coffee lovers. Mrs. Law recommends whipped cream as a garnish on party nights. On other occasions a whipped milk may be used. This latter recipe is different from the usual method of preparation and is included with her prize-winning recipe for your budget recipe file.

Coffee Spanish Cream.

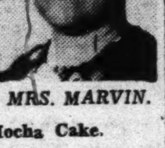
1 envelope of granulated gelatin
2 cups of strong coffee
¾ cup of milk
2-3 cup of sugar
3 eggs
2 tablespoons of lemon juice
¼ teaspoon of salt

Pour milk and coffee in the top of a double boiler and sprinkle the gelatin on top of both. Place over hot water, add sugar and stir until dissolved. Pour slowly on the yolks of eggs, slightly beaten with the salt. Return to the double boiler and cook until thickened somewhat, stirring constantly. Remove from stove, add the lemon juice and fold in lightly the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff. Turn into one large set of individual molds that have been rinsed in cold water and place in refrigerator. (This will separate and form a jelly on the bottom with custard on top. If you do not wish this separation in two layers, allow the custard to cool somewhat before adding the stiffly beaten egg whites.) When firm unmold and serve with whipped cream, or with this recipe for whipped evaporated milk:

½ teaspoon of granulated gelatin
2 teaspoons of cold water
1 cup of evaporated milk

Pour the evaporated milk in the top part of the double boiler and heat with the lid off until hot. Pour the cold water in a bowl and sprinkle gelatin on top of water. Add softened gelatin to the hot milk and stir until dissolved. Pour into a shallow bowl and chill until icy cold. Whip vigorously until stiff. This makes about 2 cups of whipped milk.

Mocha Cake



MRS. MARVIN.

Mrs. Charles F. Marvin, 6005 Thirty-fourth place northwest, likes coffee. Her recipe for mocha cake has a creamy, rich cocoa cream filling between the layers and a special mocha icing spread over it in uneven swirls. The light texture of the cake is emphasized by this double frosting. In making the icing, use strong coffee for flavoring.

Delicious Mocha Cake.

Cream two-thirds cup of shortening until light and smooth and gradually work in one and a third cups of sugar. Add one teaspoon of vanilla and three eggs, one at a time, beating until the mixture is well blended.

Sift together two cups of cake flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, ane one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Add alternately to the first mixture with two-thirds cups of milk. Transfer to two oiled and floured eight-inch layer cake pans and bake in a moderately hot oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes, or until firm in the center and brown on top. Remove from the pans. Put together with cocoa cream and cover with mocha icing.

Cocoa Cream.

Beat one-half pint of heavy cream with a rotary egg beater until it stars to thicken. Heat gradually one-half cup of confectioner's sugar and two tablespoons of cocoa. Spread between the cake layers when they are thoroughly cooled.

Mocha Icing.

Cream three tablespoons of butter until light like whipped cream. Gradually cream in four tablespoons of cocoa and one teaspoon of vanilla. Add six tablespoons of strong coffee alternately with sifted confectioner's sugar to make the icing sufficiently stiff to spread. This will be about four cups.

Iced Coffee

MRS. HARDESTY

Mrs. E. F. Hardesty, 3610 Connecticut avenue northwest. Serves iced coffee in summer. She has built an envied reputation on its service. She prefers making it with milk rather than whipped cream and brews it carefully in order to retain the rich fragrance.

Iced Coffee Supreme.

Make in percolator any desired amount of coffee. While it is still hot, make it sweet with granulated sugar and cool. When cold pour in the ice pan of the refrigerator, leaving in metal divisions and freeze. When ready to serve, take out cubes and place three or four in each tall glass. Pour over this iced coffee and milk that has been shaken in a cocktail shaker. Stir with a long spoon. This allows about ¾ cup of milk to each glass. This recipe for Iced Coffee Supreme is richer than coffee thinned with ice cubes made with water.

Custard Renversee

MRS. HESSLER

Miss Edith Hessler, 218 S street northeast, has collected recipes for many years. One of her favorite dishes is caramel custard made so that the caramel forms a sauce over the baked dessert. The sauce is good with plain baked cup custard, but when that custard is flavored with coffee the dessert is something to remember. This recipe is not expensive to prepare but has a quivery, jellied consistency, with a golden-brown sauce dripping over it when served.

Coffee Custard Renversee.

1 cup sugar
½ cup sugar
5 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoons ground coffee.
1 quart milk.
¼ teaspoon salt

Caramelize the first amount of sugar and pour a little of it into a custard cup, turning the cup around and around so that it will be coated with the caramel. Do this to the six custard cups. Then beat the eggs, add the remaining sugar, salt and vanilla, and pour in the milk, which should have been scalded for 20 minutes with the coffee and strained. Pour this mixture into the caramel-lined custard cups, set in a pan, pour in hot water to surround the cups about two-thirds and bake until firm in a moderate oven (350 degrees). When cold, unmold. The caramel will have melted to form a delightful sauce.

Glorified Gingerbread

Mrs. Frank E. Edwards, 7 Belle Grove road, Brooklyn Park, Baltimore, has a new slant on how to glorify gingerbread. The warm, rich spice bread has a mocha base and the top is cinnamon apple rings baked with a filling of nuts and chopped raisins. This unusual treatment gives a favorite dessert a more sophisicated appearance.

Coffee Gingerbread With Apple-Ring Topping.

½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup molasses
2½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup hot, strong coffee

Cream the shortening and sugar. Beat thoroughly and add the 2 well-beaten eggs. Add 1 cup molasses. Sift the flour, sugar, cinnamon baking powder, ginger and nutmeg and add alternately to the cream mixture with 1 cup strong coffee.

Pour into 2 well-greased and floured 7-by-11 pans. Core but do not pare 2 large apples. Cut into wafer-thickness slices. Lay in rows over the top of the batter. Place a mixture of ½ cup chopped nuts and ½ cup chopped raisins in the center of each ring. About ½ teaspoon is sufficient. Sprinkle generously with a mixture of ½ cup sugar and ½ teaspoon ground cloves. Bake in a 350 oven for 55 minutes.

Modern Brides Find Cooking Easier to Learn

New Recipes, Ideas Swamp Receptive Novice, Says Home Economist.

By Jean Green.
The Post Food Editor.

Reams of advice are being given in every book and magazine this month on ways for the young bride to hold her husband, but in the opinion of Mrs. Caroline King, pioneer home economist in the magazine field, the road to a man's heart still leads through his stomach.

Mrs. King spoke last night to members of the Home Economics Association of the District of Columbia at a dinner meeting held in the A. A. U. W. clubhouse. In an interview yesterday morning she said her advice to all modern women, especially brides, was to learn to cook well.

"The way to the divorce court is paved by restaurant eating," declared this home economist, who is woman's editor of a monthly magazine of national circulation. "One of the surest foundations for happy marriage is the bride's ability to be able to cook appetizing foods that will be eagerly anticipated by her husband."

Pointing out that it is easier to learn to cook today than it has ever been in history, Mrs. King added: "The radio, magazines and newspapers are constantly presenting new types of recipes and ideas for cooking. Commercial food concerns send out tested recipes free on request. If a young bride does not learn to cook it is her own fault."

Food Knowledge Needed.

Mrs. King believes the young girl today is virtually obligated to learn about food values and harmonizing foods on menus to make meals both adequate and attractive.

"Home economics training today is all embracing," she said. "It includes budgeting, housefurnishing, interior decoration, child care, food planning, cooking and marketing. The young girls who are being trained in high schools and colleges today are getting this information. It is those of us who graduated a few years ago and are now working in offices that have not obtained this knowledge. For them I recommend a bride's school."

1. Learn to buy wisely.
2. Learn to budget time and money.
3. Learn to plan menus intelligently.
4. Know the fundamentals of cooking.
5. Understand the proper care and use of cooking equipment.
6. Learn the psychology of food presentation.

Mrs. King advises brides to seek information from recognized home economics authorities or from some of their friends who have been married a few years.

Progress Is Rapid.

"The progress in home economics has been so rapid during the past few years that many older women have not made the effort to keep up and are thus giving trite advice and old theories," she said. "I do not believe that the older women are the ones who know everything in this day and age."

"Some of the recipes I published 20 years ago would not be accepted today," she said. "At the time of publication they were all right but the methods of cooking and the type of cooking ranges have changed. Recipes are not written to include these changes. Cooking today is standardized and more correct than it was when I was a bride."

Mrs. King feels that it is not only the bride but also the older women who must keep up with housekeeping. The fact that older women are recognizing this need is shown by the many letters which flood her magazine daily on methods of cooking and nutrition problems.

"Housekeeping today is more important than ever before," said Mrs. King. "It is not sufficient to know food values and the use of vitamins, minerals and proteins, but the housewife today, whether she be bride or older woman, should continue her eager pursuit of information on how to use these food values in, a well balanced meal, and how to cook so that these values will be preserved during cooking.

READERS FOOD FORUM

Colorful Salads.

Martha Russell, 1009 East Capitol street southeast:

Salad making has an appeal for me. We make them in the cafeteria and I never get tired of this assignment as there are so many ways of making them. I like to make butterfly salad best, then the vegetable salads like potato or Waldorf. In the cafeteria we use a custard cup to shape them. Attractiveness is very important, so I usually put a sliced radish on the vegetable salads for color and use a decorator to make whipped cream designs on the fruit salads. The decorator is very easy to use.

Party Desserts.

Annette Linsley, 703 Eighth street southeast:

I like party cooking and prefer making desserts. When I prepare them, I usually get good ideas for entertaining. My favorite dessert is apricot charlotte, light, fluffy, with a satisfying taste. I like to prepare the desserts with color such as cherry gelatin. It is fun working out color designs by decorating them with different colored whipped creams and fruits. These are desserts that take time to prepare but are worth it.

Holiday Dishes.

Eileen Goforth, 910 Seventh street southwest:

I like cooking at holiday time. Even at school many of the dishes have special color schemes and shapes. Last Christmas, we made salads in the shape of Santa Claus with a red coat and a white beard. For St. Patrick's Day the salad was a lime gelatin with pineapple and a green shamrock of green pepper on top. I guess I like to make salads best. I like to eat them and always have them at school for lunch.

Chocolate Fudge Cake.

Kathryn Powell, 910 Eleventh street southeast:

When I cook, I like to make cakes. They are attractive when finished and practically everyone likes them. I have "luck" with a chocolate fudge marshmallow cake that is double rich with chocolate and put together with marshmallows. The white filling gives it a color scheme. I cover the outside with thick creamy fudge frosting. It has a grand taste. On Valentine's Day I made a tier cake. This was a layer cake frosted with Seven Minute Frosting and on each layer I put a circle of red cinnamon hearts. I bought a celluloid doll at the dime store and put this in the center. I used a cake decorator to decorate it.

Unusual Breads.

Margaret Pruitt, 73 L street northeast:

Breadmaking at school is really fun. The bread is mixed in a large electric beater. The beater does all the work. Mmmm—but it tastes good as it comes from the oven. We have many kinds, like orange rolls made with pure orange juice and grated orange rind and iced with orange icing or potato rolls made light with yeast added to lukewarm potato water and riced potatoes. They are easy to make.

Flavorful Soups.

Miss Lucille Endres 719 D street southeast:

All the children at school like vegetable soup and I like to make it. I use many different vegetables for it, such as carrots, potatoes, onions and celery and cut them in different shapes. Sometimes I add A B C's to it. The carrots color it a deep orange. Vegetable soup needs to have a good flavor so I use a meat stock base in making it.

Gelatin Speciality

Margaret Davis, 342 N street southwest:

Gelatin making is my specialty. I like it because it shines and it is fun to whip the cream. At school we never seem to make enough of it. It is our biggest seller. Most of the teachers like it in orange and lime filled with carrots and celery. Personally, I like it plain with whipped cream on top.

Salad Ideas.

Frances Feagens, 1215 I street southeast:

Salad making is fun if you have ideas. The same foods can be used for so many different shapes. For example, with lettuce, cream cheese and pears you can make a stuffed pear salad that makes you hungry to look at it. With pineapple cut in half and decorated with cheese and raisins, you can have a butterfly. On George Washington's Birthday I made a banana salad by splitting the bananas lengthwise and putting a small American flag on top. The salad resembled sailboats. Arrangement and color is needed for salads and lovely things can be made by taking enough time with them.

Recipe Runners-Up

Ten recipes were selected this week for honorable mention in The Post recipe contest. Selections include:

Post Contestants Asked for Recipes With Blackberries

If you have ever tried to capture an elusive blackberry on its home field and coped with briars in order to obtain these giant juicy whoppers of the berry kingdom, then you will rejoice this week. Blackberries are on the market. The berries may be rather sour and uninviting in their native state, but in pies, cobblers and tarts, they are unsurpassed.

This week, the recipe contest asks suggestions for using them. The blackberries can fairly budge from a covering of pastry to form a deep dish pie, or fleck the surface of a well-done pan dowdy, or give a deep red transparency to freshly-made blackberry jelly. The tart sweet flavor of this fresh fruit makes these desserts commendable.

To enter your favorite blackberry dish in the contest, write out your recipe giving complete directions for preparation. Do not use trade names. Mail to Jean Green, Post Food Editor, before June 3. Five prizes will be awarded. The first will be $3, the second $2 and there will be three prizes of $1 each.

Strawberry American.

Historically, the strawberry is one of the "younger" fruits. It has been cultivated for only about six centuries. Found growing wild in America by the early explorers, the strawberry has benefited by travel. Early it went to Europe—returned later a much-improved berry. Now it grows in every country in the world that has a temperate climate.

Menus for Week-End Should Be Light Enough To Allow Ample Playtime for Whole Family

Roast or a Baked Ham Is Wise Short Cut for Holiday Time.

Picnic Season Officially Commences With Memorial Day.

In making your week-end memorable, do not try to be too ambitious in your menu selections. Simple, easily prepare foods that can be made attractive are best. This will allow playtime for the whole family.

In planning your market list for the week-end, you will probably want to count on one outdoor meal such as a picnic or lawn supper. The picnic season officially opens on Decoration Day.

Many shortcuts can be counted on to save holiday cooking time. The selection of a roast or baked ham for the Sunday main dish is wise. This can be tastily decorated for the dinner, then stored in the refrigerator until needed for sandwich making or for a hot supper casserole dish. Certain desserts can be made several hours before serving and kept chilled in the refrigerator.

Meals are apt to be irregular over the holidays and certain foods should be provided on the emergency shelf for quick meal preparation. Inexpensive dishes that have a wide appeal can be made from the canned tuna or salmon. The cans can be placed in the refrigerator and served as they come from the can. They can also be made into delicious frozen fruit salads, or in a refrigerator cake that will retain its flavorsome goodness for several days.

Hard-cooked eggs with crab meat is a delightful new entree to use for a luncheon or supper menu. The hard cooking of the egg may be done the day before if desired. However, the dish is simple to prepare. The combined color of the yellow yolk and the pink crab meat makes it particularly pleasing. And a parsley garnish always adds color contrast and subtle flavor.

Eggs Baked With Crab Filling.

1 can crab meat
6 hard-cooked eggs
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 egg yolks (raw)
1 cup sour cream

Remove the shells from the hard-cooked eggs. Cut off the rounded ends and carefully remove the yolks. Chop finely the flaked crab meat, yolks, and the pieces of egg white that were cut off. Add the melted butter, one of the raw egg yolks, chopped parsley, salt, pepper and two tablespoons of sour cream. Mix all ingredients thoroughly and heap in the egg whites. Place eggs in buttered shallow baking dish. Mix the remaining 2 raw egg yolks and sour cream. Season it to taste with salt and pepper. Pour sauce over the stuffed eggs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until sauce is firm. This will take about 30 minutes. The sour cream mixture thickens in the bottom of the baking dish and makes a custard like sauce with a tart zestful flavor.

The recipe here will serve about six people generously.

Creamed Chipped Beef.

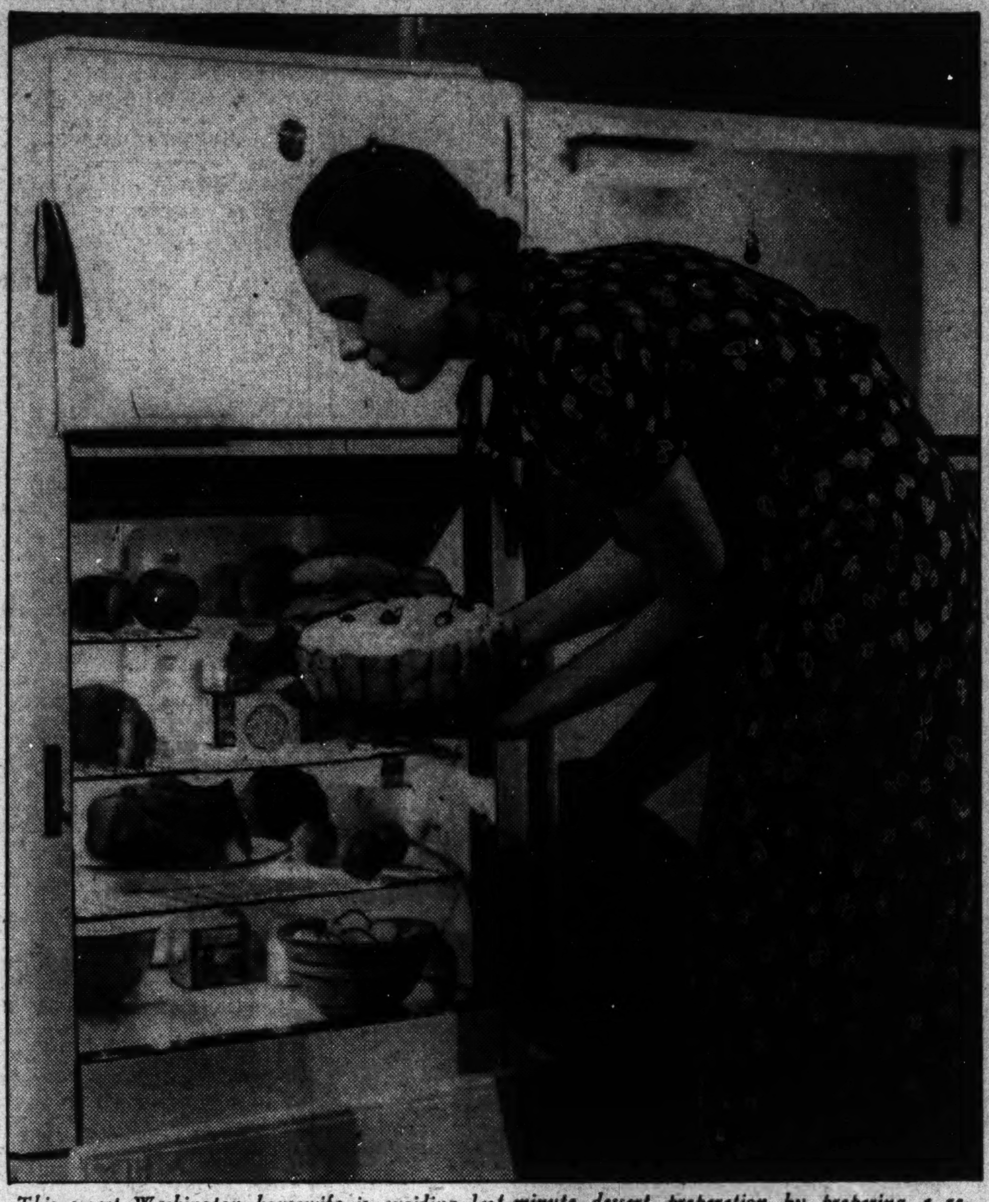
1 can of whole kernel corn (No. 2 size)
1 jar of chipped beef (2½ ounces)
2 tablespoons of butter
3 tablespoons of flour
1 small can of cream of mushroom soup

Drain the corn, saving the liquid. Flake the beef and place the corn and beef in the hot melted butter. Stir until slightly brown and dry. Blend the flour with the corn and chipped beef and continue browning. Add soup and ½ cup of the liquid drained from the corn. When thickened serve on hot toast.

Frozen Fruit Salad.

2 3-ounce cakes of cream cheese
2 tablespoons of cream
2 tablespoons of lemon juice
1-3 cup of mayonnaise
⅛ teaspoon of salt
1 cup of canned fruit cocktail (drained)
½ cup of orange sections
½ cup of chopped nuts
1 cup of whipped cream

Blend the cream cheese with cream. Add the lemon juice, mayonnaise and salt. Combine the drained fruit cocktail with the chopped orange segments and chopped nuts. Fold in the whipped cream. Pour into the freezing tray and allow to freeze in the tray without stirring. As soon as the salad is frozen turn the control back to half way and hold to serving time. Too long a freezing period gives an icy consistency.



This smart Washington housewife is avoiding last-minute dessert preparation by preparing a refrigerator cake the night before serving. Her wise planning of cooking time will give her more playtime over the week-end. The dessert is made with gelatin, fruit, whipped cream and lady fingers.

SALMON MOUSSE.

Dissolve 1 package of lemon-flavored gelatin in 1¾ cup of warm water. Add 2 tablespoons of white vinegar, 1 teaspoon of salt. Chill and set in a pan of ice water and beat until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Fold in 1 cup of flaked salmon, 1 cup of cucumbers, diced, salted and drained, ½ cup of mayonnaise and ½ cup of whipped cream and ½ tablespoon of finely minced chives. Turn into individual molds. Place in ice box until firm. Serve on crisp lettuce. Use a watercress garnish.

Crisp, Tender Cookies Delight Everybody

Crisp, tender home-baked cookies make a hit with everyone. In summer, especially, they are a grand addition to the picnic lunch. To avoid rolling them, try making a soft, short batter, and drop the dough from a spoon or pastry bag on the baking sheet. Press in shape with the bottom of a glass covered with a damp cloth. This is a simple method that works. From time to time dip the glass in water and pat the towel to remove the excess moisture. The last cookies in the bowl will be just as tender and crisp as the first,

Soda Used in Cleaning.

Baking soda will keep your refrigerator clean and sweet at all times. Whether it is an electric, oil, gas or ice refrigerator, clean it inside and out with a damp cloth sprinkled with baking soda, or wash it with a baking soda solution, a handful to a basin of water. Each week wash the ice tray with a similar baking soda solution. This prevents the development of stale and musty odors in the ice cubes.

Society Hopes for Chance To Fete German Prince

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Those members of Washington society who love nothing so much as foreign titles, no matter how much out-moded, are hoping against hope that Prince Louis Ferdinand and his bride, the former Grand Duchess Kira, will include Washington in their American tour. Chances are, the German and Soviet embassies are hoping just as much they won't.

The couple, who were married with much fanfare in the Castle of Doorn in Holland early this month, sailed into New York Harbor yesterday afternoon on the Bremen. According to interviews Prince Ferdinand gave before leaving Holland, both he and his bride hope to see President Roosevelt while they are in America and will make every effort to do so. Reports have it, however, that they probably will visit him at Hyde Park rather than here, thereby saving the German Embassy any slight embarassment that might arise if they came to Washington.

HOPE R. MILLER.

In earlier days of the Hitler regime, Prince Louis Ferdinand, who is the son of the former Crown Prince of Germany, was frequently mentioned as the leading candidate to return the royal house to power in his homeland. In more recent years, such rumors have gone the way of other anti-Nazi predictions, and the grandson of former Kaiser Wilhelm II has proved his interests among other lines.

Has Visited Hyde Park Before

A visit to the President at Hyde Park would not be a new experience for him. Back in 1933, when he was employed in a Detroit automobile plant, he had tea there in a company that included Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England. Reports had it then the President was highly entertained when Prince Louis Ferdinand recounted some of his experiences in this country. In those days, he was frequently referred to as "Prince of Prussia" and his amusing though somewhat evasive replies to questions from the press made headlines all over the country.

Later, when he returned to Europe and entered an aviation school in Berlin, he was quoted as saying he hoped to qualify as a reserve aviation officer in order to serve his country. At about the same time, he averred in an interview that he did not expect to follow his elder brother's pattern and marry a commoner. "I like American girls best of all in the world," he observed, "but I'll never marry against my grandfather's wishes." His romance with Princess Kira, daughter of Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, who now would be Czar if the revolution had not turned the tide, had former Kaiser Wilhelm's approval from the first.

Made First Trip To America in 1929

Prince Louis Ferdinand made his first trip to this country in 1929. During his visit he spent much time as the guest of Poultney C. Bigelow at his home, Malden-on-Hudson. Mr. Bigelow, who was at one time Ambassador to France, and has written many books on Germany, is the brother of Col. John Bigelow, U. S. A., retired, of Washington.

If the newlyweds do come here, they will be widely feted. Many members of the Diplomatic Corps have known the Hohenzollern scion and Kira for many years. Frau Thomsen, wife of the Counselor of the German Embassy, is one who might give a party for them, as she is a close friend of both. Shortly before the wedding, the Princess sent her a new photograph of herself. Incidentally, Dr. Thomsen, who left Washington several weeks ago for Berlin, and later accompanied Hitler on his visit to Rome, is expected to return the end of June. Frau Thomsen is planning to leave late this summer for a trip to Germany, England, Hungary and Poland.

Beckers Move To Estate Soon

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. J. Becker, who came to Washington recently from Atlanta, Ga., will move next week to their new estate near Warrenton, Va.

The property, which they purchased last year, belonged for generations to the famous Tyler family of Virginia. The original house burned down several years ago and in its place a large colonial house, typical of the Virginia hunt country, has been erected under the direction of George Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Becker are lovers of horses, and have several thoroughbreds. They have also established a large dairy on their farm.

Dinner Is Given By Justice Miller

The Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings were guests of honor at a dinner given last evening by Justice Justin Miller, of the United State Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, and Mrs. Miller.

Other guests were Senator and Mrs. Sherman Minton, Representative and Mrs. Clarence F. Lea, the Solicitor General and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Justice and Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner, Justice and Mrs. Harold M. Stephens, Justice and Mrs. Henry W. Edgerton, Justice Fred Vinon, Mr. and Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Judge Crawford Biggs, former Solicitor General; Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Kremer, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Wideman, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dean.

The Bells to Make Baltimore Visit, Then Move West

Lieut. Frederick J. Bell, U. S. N., and Mrs. Bell, accompanied by their 5-year-old daughter, Pauline Fairfax Glidden Bell, will leave next Wednesday for Baltimore, where they will visit Mrs. Bell's mother, Mrs. Edward Hughes Glidden, for ten days.

Later they will go on to the West Coast, where Lieut. Bell has been ordered to duty as aid to Vice Admiral Adolphus Andrews. The Bells recently had as guests here Mr. and Mrs. Gaines McMillan, of Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Gordon are planning to spend the summer this year, as usual, at their home at Bass River, Cape Cod, Mass.

Although "officially" they will not be off to more Northern and cooler climes until around the first of July, Mrs. Gordon will go up to their summer place about June 15 to get things ready. The family will join her at Bass River later.

Rain Forces Party Of Merrills Inside —Guests Have Fun

Another party that was rained out of the garden but proved a grand success inside was the tea given yesterday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill at their home on Belmont road.

Those assisting Mrs. Merrill were Mrs. Gilbert J. Rowcliff, Mrs. Emory Scott Land, Mrs. Ridley McLean, Mrs. McCook Knox and her daughter, Miss Kathleen Knox; Mrs. Gordon DeKay and Mrs. Humphrey Scott.

Polish, French Envoys Guests of the Espils

The Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Espil entertained at a dinner last evening at the embassy on New Hampshire avenue. There were 32 present.

NOTES OF SOCIETY

Official and Residential

Bound for the Beach at Rehoboth in June

Hesler Studio

Mrs. Harry D. Hoffman, wife of Commander Hoffman, U. S. N., and their two daughters, Nancy (left) and Baby Mildred will be off to Rehoboth Beach on June 6. Commander Hoffman will leave Washington on the same date for his new station in San Diego, Calif., where he will be attached to the U. S. S. Porter. Mrs. Hoffman and their children will join him on the West Coast in the autumn. The Hoffmans have been living in Washington for three years, while Commander Hoffman has been on duty at the Navy Yard here.

Count to Wed Miss Kingsland

Of wide interest here is the announcement made recently in Lenox, Mass., of the engagement of Miss Marian Kingsland, daughter of George Lovett Kingsland and the late Mrs. William Clarence, Duncan, to Count Hans Cristoph Scherr-Thoss, son of Count and Countess Hermann Scherr-Thoss, of Dobrau, Silesia, a district of Czechoslovakia. Countess Scherr-Thoss is the former Miss Muriel White, daughter of a former United States Ambassador to France, the late Henry White, who spent much time in Washington, where he lived at 1624 Crescent place. His daughter frequently visited him here.

The prospective bridegroom recently attended the wedding of the former Countess Geraldine Apponyi, his cousin, and King Zog of Albania. Miss Kingsland and Count Scherr-Thoss will be married June 2 at the home of the former's aunt, Mrs. Edgar Leonard, at Hicksville, Long Island. Soon afterward they will go to Europe to make their home.

Greevers Give Dinner Party

Senator and Mrs. Joseph C. O'Mahoney were the ranking guests at the dinner given last evening by Representative and Mrs. Paul R. Greever in the blue room of the Shoreham. The affair was in honor of Maj. and Mrs. Emil W. Leard.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Claude L. Draper, and Mr. and Mrs. James Patrick Murray. Maj. and Mrs. Leard will leave Sunday for their new post, Fort Warren, Wyo.

• • • •

Mrs. John Cudahy, wife of the United States Minister to Ireland, arrived in New York yesterday on the liner Washington.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis have left their Foxhall road residence and are at the Mayflower until tomorrow, when they will leave for Long Island to visit friends. They will later go to Mrs. Davis' home, Bayberry Land, in Southampton, to remain until late summer, when they plan a trip to England and France.

On their return to Washington next fall, Mr. and Mrs. Davis will occupy the home on Decatur place which they recently bought from Mr. and Mrs. Maxim Karolik.

Luncheon Given By Mrs. Grosner

Mrs. Clarence Grosner entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of Mrs. Abner Drury who will sail for Europe next month. The ranking guest was Senora Blanca Puig de Alfaro, wife of the Ambassador of Ecudor.

Others present included Senora de Recinos, wife of the Minister of Guatemala; Senora de Pastoriza, wife of the Dominican Minister Mrs. Royal S. Copeland, and Mrs. Fred Biermann.

Also Mrs. Frederick McKenzie Davidson, Mrs. Oscar Albertini, Mrs. Charles H. McInerney, Mrs. John J. Shugrue, Mrs. Robert E. Moran, Mrs. J. Joslin and Mrs. L. B. Norris.

Several members of the Beta Mu sorority met for a supper dance last evening at the Metronome room of the Wardman Park Hotel. Covers were laid for 14.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

FISHING—either for fish or for votes—will occupy the summer of a good many of the Congressional set. All the Representatives and many of the Senators are up for re-election.

DUDLEY HARMON.

A number of Senators who don't have to give the polls a thought are planning "away-from-it-all" vacations. Their destnation will be home so soon as Congress adjourns.

• • • •

SOME of those who will be missed are:

Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, who have started packing for the trip to their summer home on Lake Michigan, will go June 12 to Schenectady, N. Y., where the Republican leader will be awarded an honorary degree by Union College and appointed chancellor for a year. If Congress is not over by that time, the Vandenbergs will return and take lodgings until the legislators decide to go home.

Arthur Vandenberg, jr., who is his father's secretary, will be with his family this summer. Their older daughter, Mrs. John Knight, who lives in Grand Rapids, will spend part of her summer with them, and the former Betty Vandenberg, since March 29 Mrs. Edwin Pfeiffer, may stop in on her way to the West Coast with her husband

THIS will be a campaign summer for Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, as well as for her husband, Representative Bacon. She plans to take the stump in his behalf, as she has done in previous years. Mrs. Bacon formerly was vice chairman of the Republican State Committee. The Bacons live at Old Westbury, Long Island.

SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE and his tall, attractive wife will head for their summer home in Beverly, on the north shore of Massachusetts. The Senator probably will commute between there and Washington.

• • • •

SENATOR and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler and their family will go to their cottage on a lake in Montana. Mrs. Edwin Colman, the former Elizabeth Wheeler, who lives near Alexandria, will spend part of the summer with her husband's family at their home on Lake Geneva, Ill.

• • • •

SENATOR and Mrs. Warren Austin don't need to pore over travel folders for an attractive place to spend the summer. Their home is in Burlington, Vt., in the center of the Green Mountains. They plan to spend most of the summer there with perhaps an occasional motor trip. Mrs. Austin wants to garden, which she says she hasn't had time to do for seven years, or ever since her husband first came to the Senate.

Energetic Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Lowell, Mass., is looking forward to a summer of strenuous campaigning. It is her custom to visit every town and city in her district.

The Butlers Plan Party for Actors

Mr. and Mrs. Lee D. Butler will give a garden party tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock for the cast and crew of "One Third of a Nation" now playing at the Washington Civic Theater. The party will take place at the Butlers' home on Brookside drive, Kenwood.

Mr. Butler was instrumental in forming the Civic Theater and has been its president for the two years of its existence.

The final performance of "One Third of a Nation" will be given on Saturday evening and will end the second season. The annual meeting of the Civic Theater will be held Tuesday, May 31, at which time new members will be elected to the Board of Governors.

Mr. Noble to Wed Mabel B. Garvan

Mrs. Francis P. Garvan, of Roslyn House, Roslyn, L. I., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mabel Brady Garvan, to Robert Philip Noble. Miss Garvan is a sister of Francis P. Garvan, jr., who with Mrs. Garvan, the former Hope Jackson, resides at Westmoreland Hills here.

The future bride is a daughter of the late Francis P. Garvan, who resided in Washington for a number of years. She was graduated from the Chapin School and afterward attended Benningtotn College.

Mr. Noble is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Noble, of Greenwich, Conn. He was graduated from the Hotchkiss School and from Williams College in 1936. He is now studying at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. His sister, Miss Margarita Noble, will be married to Dr. Howard Paul Serrell, of Greenwich, June 2.

Jane Harper Sibley Picks Bridesmaids

Miss Jane Harper Sibley, whose marriage to Gordon Auchincloss 2d, will take place in Rochester June 11, has selected Miss Elizabeth Sibley, her sister, as maid of honor. The bride-elect is the daughter of Harper Sibley, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Sibley, of Rochester. Miss Sibley is well known in Washington.

Bridesmaids will be Miss Barbara Auchincloss and Miss Emily Tuckerman, of New York; Miss Anne McCormick, of Albany; Miss Mary Elizabeth Wyckham, of Springfield, Ill.; Miss Frances Porter, of Buffalo, and Miss Virginia Farr, Miss Marjorie Backus and Miss Dorothy Ferguson, of Rochester.

The ceremony will take place in St. Paul's Church with the Rev. Dr. George E. Norton officiating, assisted by the Rev. Leslie Glenn, of Boston. Mr. Glenn is a brother-in-law of Miss Sibley.

Signora Piussi Visits Italian Envoy and Wife

The Italian Ambassador and Donna Matilde de Suvich have returned from New York, where they went to meet the latter's sister, Signora Margherita Piussi, of Italy.

Signora Piussi will be here until about June 10, when she will return to her homeland, accompanied by Donna Matilde and the latter's children. The Ambassador will join them there later in the summer.

Off to New York.

Mrs. M. H. Boone, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mid Foy, will leave today for New York, where they will spend several days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Newton J. St. John at Garden City, Long Island.

Cosmellis Give Cocktail Party

Roses blooming richly against the polished surfaces of Renaissance furniture formed the setting for the cocktail party given yesterday afternoon by the Counselor of the Italian Embassy and Signora Valeria Cosmelli.

Guests—most all of them from the Diplomatic Corps—admired the spacious rooms of the house which the Cosmellis have taken on Woodland drive, and praised the spiced cheese sticks served from hot chafing dishes which Signora Cosmelli offered as an extra added delicacy to the usual buffet spread.

She wore a black and white print frock and greeted, among her guests, the wife of the Netherland envoy, Mme. van Haersma de With; the Counselor of the Argentine Embassy and Senora Nicol La Saigne de Ghiraldo; the Counselor of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. Victor Mircea Babes; and the Counselor, and Secretary of the Yugoslavian Legation, Dr. Vladimir Rybar and Rastko Petrovic.

Glimpsed also at the party were the Counselor of the Polish Embessy and Mme. Witold Wankowicz; the Counselor of the Belgian Embassy and Baroness de Gruben; Frau Thomsen, wife of the Counselor of the German Embassy, and Herr Herbert Scholz and Frau Scholz, also of the German group.

Seldom seen at parties about town, Msgr. Egidio Vagnozzi, of the Apostolic Delegation, made one of his rare appearances at the event yesterday.

The Italian contingent was well represented by Count and Countess Roberti, Prince del Drago, the First Secretary of the Italian Embassy; the Counselor for Emigration and Signora Bonardelli, and Capt and Donna Bianca Cugia. Also present were Count Leone Fumasini-Biondi and Miss Rebecca Wellington.

Wedding Plans Of Miss Brooke Now Completed

Bride's Twin Sister, Mrs. Dyer, Will Be the Matron of Honor.

Miss Elizabeth Clarabel Brooke, whose marriage to Lawrence James Simmons will take place Saturday, June 4, has completed plans for her wedding.

Her twin sister, Mrs. Ben Hobson Dyer, of Bethesda, Md., will be her matron of honor. The bridesmaids include Miss Kathleen Brown, Miss Dorothy Schutz, Mrs. Burr N. Edwards, jr., Mrs. Robert H. Fuchs, Mrs. Charles E. Sebastian, jr., and Mrs. James E. White.

Wilford Kener will be Mr. Simmons' best man. The ushers are Ben Dyer, Spencer Van Dyke, Frank Hodge, Elbert Scheffield, George A. Parker and Clair Stout.

The ceremony will be performed at St. Alban's Church at 4 o'clock in the afternoon with the Rev. Charles T. Warner officiating.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Edward Brook of Washington. She attended both American and George Washington universities and is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. The prospective bridegroom, who is an alumnus of the law school of the University of Utah, is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha.

Princess Feted At Tea Party

The pretty Polish Princess, Mary du Sayn Wittgenstein, was guest of honor at a tea given yesterday by Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin at her residence, 2019 Connecticut avenue. The princess has been visiting Mrs. Goodwin for several weeks, and has made a number of trips to the surrounding countryside and to Kentucky.

Slender, young and aristocratic looking, the princess is the daughter of Count Alexander Dzieduszycki, former Polish Minister to Spain and later Minister to Denmark. Her uncle, Jan Chiechienowski, was once Polish Ambassador to the United States.

The guests yesterday divided their time between the drawing room on the second floor and the library upstairs. Mrs. Goodwin wore a dress of black chiffon, appliqued with white flowers. The princess was in a simple black tailored frock.

Among those who called during the afternoon were the Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki; Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., in a gray tailored suit; Dr. and Frau Herbert Scholz, of the German Embassy, the latter in brown satin and furs and a brown hat; the Greek Minister, Demetrios Sicilianos; Mrs. George Barnett, in black with a sable scarf; Mrs. Eugene E. Carusi and Maxfield Dunlap. There were numerous members of the younger set there, among them Mlle. Nora de With, in a navy blue frock and a spring hat trimmed with posies.

Stewart MacDonald, Federal housing administrator and brother of Mrs. Goodwin, was also there, as were Mrs. Harold Sims and Mrs. Benjamin Thaw.

The princess will be in this country for an indefinite stay.

Belgian Secretary, Retiring, Is Feted By Bolivian Envoy

The Bolivian Minister, Dr. Luis Fernando Guachalla, entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of the retiring Second Secretary of the Belgian Embassy and Mme. Gerard Walravens.

The Chilean Ambassador, Manuel Trucco, and his daughter, Miss Marta Trucco, were the ranking guests.

M. and Mme. Walravens and their small daughter will leave this country for Brussels early next month.

Go to Devon Horse Show.

The German Ambassador and Frau Hans Dieckhoff left yesterday afternoon by motor for Philadelphia, where they will attend the Devon Horse Show. A group of German horsemen and horsewomen are participating in the event. The Dieckhoffs expect to return to Washington early next week.

Mrs. Woodring Heads Entrants In Flower Show

Exhibit Will Be Held Today From 2 to 5 at Virginia Army Post.

Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, wife of the Secretary of War, who spends a large part of each day digging in her garden on S street, heads the list of exhibitors at the first annual flower show of the Fort Belvoir Garden Club. The event will be held today from 2 to 5 o'clock in McKenzie Hall, at the Virginia Army post.

An international flavor will be lent the show by the exhibits of Mrs. John A. Crane, wife of Col. Crane, of Fort Myer, and Mrs. Edward F. Kumpe, of Fort Belvoir. Mrs. Crane, who spent many years in Japan when her husband was military attache there, will show a Japanese flower arrangement. Mrs. Kempe, who resided formerly in Mexico, will exhibit several luncheon tables set in the Mexican manner.

Mrs. Julian L. Schley, wife of Gen. Schley, chief of engineers, has submitted a breakfast tray arrangement, and Mrs. John J. Kingman, wife of Gen. Kingman; Mrs. Elliott J. Dent and Mrs. William E. Snow will also have entries.

From the Alexandria, Belle Haven, Chevy Chase and Foxhall Garden Clubs will come entries of flower arrangements for formal dinners.

One table will be reserved for children's entries, and will consist of miniature gardens made in a plate or dish and fashioned out of wild flowers, moss and bark.

Mrs. Russell Gordon Young, of Fort Belvoir, has charge of exhibits.

Thomas Thornhills Are Given Dinner By Mrs. Forrest

Mrs. Randolph Keith Forrest entertained at dinner last night in her Georgetown home in honor of her son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Thomas James Thornhill, jr. They will leave this morning for Philadelphia, where Lieut. Thornhill will be on a month's temporary emergency duty prior to leaving for the West Coast to join his ship early in July.

With the exception of Mrs. Charles C. Broy, a close friend of both the hostesses and her daughter, all guests at the dinner were relatives.

According to present plans, Mrs. Forrest will leave Washington on Sunday for a two weeks' stay in her home in Duxbury, Mass. She will return the middle of June.

David Hare Snaps Color Pictures of President, Envoy

The President, the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and the Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace all "held that pose" during a busy day Wednesday, while a young color photographer from New York City took their pictures.

Credit lines on the portrait studies will carry the name of David Meredith Hare, son-in-law of the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins.

With Mrs. Hare, the former Miss Susanna Wilson, he arrived in Washington Wednesday and took a speedy turn around the town with his camera. Mr. and Mrs. Hare returned to New York early yesterday morning.

John Whites Arrive Here From Calcutta

Mr. and Mrs. John White have arrived in Washington from Calcutta, where the former is United States Consul, and are occupying the home on Nineteenth street which they purchased several years ago from Mrs. John Henry Purdy. Mrs. White is a sister of J. Pierrepont Moffat, chief of the western Europan division of the State Department.

Mrs. Purdy and her sister, Miss Helen McKeever, will close their Massachusetts avenue apartment for the summer tomorrow and are considering a trip abroad.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hightower, of San Francisco, will arrive today and will be at the Carlton.

Skits Review the Work Of D. C. Voteless League

Lyrical Sketches Reveal Need for Teachers and Nursery Schools Here; Figures of Screen World Speak Group's Views.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The District of Columbia Voteless League of Women Voters, which works while it plays, set forth its program and reviewed its year's work last night in a series of amusing skits presented as department reports at its closing dinner in the Continental Hotel. Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, under whose leadership the organization has made valuable contributions toward the solution of civic problems during the past year, presided.

The song sheets, provided each guest by the department of government and education, of which Mrs. William H. Savin is chairman, included such songs as the following, sung to the tune of "Jingle Bells:"

Patronage, Patronage,
Generous will be;
Uncle Sam is Santa Claus,
Hangs it on a tree—

How's he going to pay for it?
Write him all your lacks.
Patronage, Patronage,
Slap another tax!

* * * *

Other lyrics pointed out the need for more teachers, nursery schools and an adequate school budget. The skit, prepared by Mrs. Savin and her commitee, was the final number on the program, which was presented as a radio broadcast, with Mrs. Hugh Butler, station director, and Mrs. Walter Couper, accompanist for all of the musical selections.

The "Three Little Maids of the League" were Mrs. Elton R. Shaw, Mrs. Carl Williams and Mrs. Byron Van Ness, who sang an original version of "The Three Little Maids From School," signs on their parasols calling for "local autonomy," "simplified. budget" and a "new school code." Mrs. Cooper was the teacher and others who appeared in the skit as pupils were Mrs. Savin, Mrs. Cornelius Cochrane, Mrs. H. R. Leslie, Mrs. Allen Moore, Mrs. Marguerite Wykoff Zapoleon.

Child Welfare Problems Presented

The child welfare department, of which Mrs. Gordon Wagenet is chairman, also "said it with music," to the tune of "I'm Wishing." Mrs. Floyd Walsh, in the role of Dorothy Lamour, sang:

"I've found it, I've found it for the Welfare Board,
A balanced unexpended today."

Another, to the tune of "Whistle While You Work," dealt with the public health question:

"We asked for nurses ten—
We got but nurses five and so we start right in again
To ask for more and more—"

The role of Charlie McCarthy in this skit was taken by Mrs. Annie Solem; Edgar Bergen, Mrs. Merrill Murray; the Stroud Twins, Franklin Ryan and Mrs. Joseph Mackenzie; the Senator, with a red carnation in his buttonhole, Mrs. Walter Ufford, and Don Ameche, one of the chief characters, Mrs. Karl Bradford. There were also three little dwarfs, Mrs. Audley Smith, Mrs. William Cameron and Mrs. Wood Gray.

Grumpy Tells League's Views

Mrs. M. O. Lorenz, chairman of the department of government and foreign policy, presented a skit dealing first with the present neutrality act, which was discussed by Mrs. Ernst Faesch, as Snow White and Mrs. Irene Faurote and Mrs. O. L. Kline as two of the dwarfs. Grumpy expressed the view of the league when he observed: "It won't work, nohow."

This was given as a "March of Time" program with Mrs. C. S. Duncan as the announcer. Mrs. Lowell Leake, as Congressman Fullpan, heckled Mrs. George Maxwell in the role of the Secretary of State, on the matter of the trade agreements. The collective peace system was brought forward in the third part of the skit with Mrs. William Slade as Premier Chamberlain, Mrs. G. D. Morgan as Haile Selassie, and Mrs. Farrington Carpenter as Mrs. Quincey Wright, national chairman of government and foreign policy for the League of Women Voters.

"Four Star Final" was presented by Mrs. David Cushman Coyle and her co-workers in the department of government and economic welfare, reviewing their work in surveys of relief and housing, their "get acquainted" bus tours, designed to show officials conditions "in the shadow of the Capitol" and the appearance of members before the Congressional appropriations committees.

Mrs. Donald Blaisdell wrote and directed the skit, Mrs. Hanina Zinder was the interviewer, Mrs. William Blaisdell, the relief applicant; Mrs. Blaine McCallum, the voice off-stage; Mrs. Adrion Casgrain, the visitor; Mrs. Elcanon Isaacs, the hostess; Mrs. Coyle, the Congressman; Mrs. Ruth Hoffer, the delegate, and Mrs. Jack Levin, the musician.

Professor Quiz Conducts Class

Mrs. Pearl B. Klein was Prof. Quiz in the "broadcast," presenting the work of the department of government and the legal status of women. Members of the class were Mrs. Edna Johnston, Mrs. Lillian Detre and Capt. Rhoda Milliken. The questions dealt with the "so-called equal rights amendment," women offenders and the conditions in penal institutions in the District.

Under the title of "News Flashes," the department of government and its operation, of which Mrs. Charles Weston is chairman, presented developments in the tax situation and announced that a bill on the merit system, which is to be introduced this session and which has the approval of the District of Columbia Commissioners, is, in general, in accordance with suggestions made by the league. The "news" also included a report of District suffrage hearings. Mrs. Weston introduced Mrs. Harry Lee Parkinson, who delivered the broadcast.

Among the guests at the dinner were two girls from American University, Dorothy Shepherd and Erva Barger, who have been among the 40 students taken by Mrs. J. C. McCaskill, chairman of the college education committee, to visit District institutions, the Receiving Home, National Training School, Juvenile Court and Gallinger Hospital. The coeds told of their impressions.

At the close of the program, corsages were presented by Mrs. Ottenberg to Mrs. Wagenet, Mrs. R. Thomas West, Mrs. Jesse Adkins and Mrs. Richard Hogue, who were members of the league committee which worked successfully for the passage of the juvenile court bill.

Visits Are Begun By Mrs. Meyers

Mrs. Susannah V. Meyers, who was installed in January as president of the Department of the Potomac, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, has bengun her official visitation of the circles in her department.

Gen. Beck Circle will be the next she will visit and in June she will go to Abraham Lincoln Circle, No. 3. On the evening of April 27, accompanied by the other department officers and her staff, she visited U. S. Grant Circle, No. 1, of which Mrs. Alice M. Burke is president. The program was in honor of the birthday of Gen. Grant.

Officers of the department, in addition to Mrs. Meyers, are: Miss Rebecca L. Blaine, senior vice president; Mrs. Lucille C. Tamm, junior vice president; Mrs. Susie Kunsman Owry, counselor; Mrs. Alice N. Howard, treasurer; Miss Amy D. Putnam, chaplain; Mrs. Anna Hausman, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Mary H. Fortier, registrar; Mrs. Blanche Covert, Mrs. Christine Houlehan and Mrs. Jessie F. Thomas, council members; Mrs. S. Alice Wright, secretary; Mrs. Laura Hott, inspector; Miss Mable Wyatt, musical director; Mrs. Bess Pearce, conductor; Mrs. Katherine Hood, guard; Miss Vera Redfern, assistant conductor; Mrs. Cora Dorsey, assistant guard; Mrs. Alice M. Burke, chairman of sunshine committee, and Miss Emma F. Hayward, press correspondent.

U. S. Grant Circle and Abraham Lincoln Circle conducted their joint memorial exercises in the rotunda of the Capitol on Sunday.

Georgetown Medical Fellows Hold Dinner

Fellows and former fellows of the Georgetown University School of Medicine met last evening for their final social event, a dinner in the Wardman Park Hotel, followed by dancing.

The company was seated at a horseshoe-shaped table, with red and white peonies forming a colorful centerpiece, and silver candelabra holding white candles on either side.

Women Observe Club Ceremony

Undaunted by rain, more than 100 members of the Chevy Chase Woman's Club gathered at the site of the new clubhouse, Connecticut avenue and Dunlop street, yesterday morning for the ground-breaking ceremony. Mrs. Joseph Travers Maguire, the club president, turned the first shovelful of earth and Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, the president of the building company, turned the second.

MRS. FREDERICK KERBY.

The original plan had been to have a steam shovel and workmen ready to begin work the moment the ceremony was over, carrying forward the actual building project with the same dispatch with which the women have raised the $8,500 fund which had to be assured before ground was broken. The downpour of rain prevented work being started at once, but failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the club members.

They stood on a broad rubber tarpaulin spread out for them by the fire department across the street. The Fire Department, with customary promptness, sent men to the rescue when it learned of the situation. Under the protection of raincoats, rubbers and umbrellas, the club officers went through the program on schedule.

Dr. William Hollister, minister of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, offered the invocation, and the club song, "Maryland," words for which were written by Mrs. Eugene Stevens, was sung in unison. Mrs. Arthur Davenport read the club collect and Mrs. Joseph Burkart, the club history—all to the accompaniment of rain.

Mrs. Maguire gave recognition to past presidents of the club; Mrs. Linzel to members of the building company and Mrs. Frederick Kerby to members of the committee for the $8,500 funds, of which she is chairman.

Less than $500 remains to be raised, according to Mrs. Kerby, who has devoted practically all her time since April 1 to the campaign for the clubhouse. More than 50 per cent of the money pledged has already passed through her hands in cash, and 90 per cent of the total has been contributed by club members. She is still woking not merely toward the goal, but to go over the top.

Among those who attended the ceremony yesterday were Mrs. Edith Newlands Johnson, daughter of the late Senator Newlands, whose extensive holdings included the site of the clubhouse; Alan Ladd Johnson, his grandson, and Countess Frederika Strachwitz, his granddaughter.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

THE ALTRUSA CLUB has elected officers. Mrs. Lucile McMurry is president; Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist, vice president; Miss Edith Macaauleu, secretary, and Miss Libbie Myers, treasurer.

The club is looking forward to a visit of the international president—Mrs. Harriette Quisenberry, of El Paso, Tex.—the middle of June. A diner will be given in her honor.

THE REGULAR "patrons" of Montmartre Noctambule have accepted with reluctance the announcement by Felian Garzia, its moving spirit, that tomorrow night will be the last meeting of the season.

Some of the Capital's best-known musicians and actors have contributed to the impromptu programs given Saturday nights at the Maryland avenue restaurant, which has been their gathering place. Among them have been M. and Mme. Germaine Johnson, who have hardly missed an evening, appearing in French costumes and giving French songs and stories; Charles Tuttle, Floyd Miller, Mary Mitchell, Mrs. Flora McGill Keefer, Justin Lawrie, who has sung solos and led the guests in singing; Miss Frances B. Johnston, who showed lantern slides of the French foire aux croutes; Mrs. Frederic E. Farrington, who last week told of her world tour, and many others.

Tomorrow, electrical transcriptions of the ensemble singing will be made.

And will the meetings be resumed in the fall? Well, if their popularity this season is an answer, they will be.

THE ANNUAL outing and excursion of the Daughters of America and Junior O. U. A. M. to Marshall Hall Park will be held tomorrow. The City of Washington will leave the Seventh Street Wharf at 10 a. m., 2, 5:30 and 8:30 p. m.

There will be athletic events in the afternoon, with Mrs. Margaret Taylor and Clifford Long in charge, and a colonial drill by the "daughters" in the pavilion. Marie Stephenson, State councilor, is in charge of tickets.

Mexican Writer to Talk At Peace Dinner Today

The Washington branch of Keep America Out of War Committee have invited members of Central and South American embassies and legations to dinner at the National Press Club this evening. Salomon de la Selva, Mexican writer and journalist, will speak on the "good neighbor policy" of the United States.

Senor de la Selva, and his sister, Melida de la Selva, Mexican artists, will arrive in Washington today.

Other speakers at the evening planning-for-peace dinner will include Morris Ernst, civil liberties attorney; Stephen Raushenbush, author and formerly chief investigator for the Nye munitions investigations, and Sherwood Eddy, author.

Congressional Club Will Hear Concert

Miss Katharine Frost's class of students in piano will give a concert at the Woman's Congressional Club at 2:15 p. m. tomorrow, when members of the club meet for the last time this season.

On the program will be Miss Jane Ellison, Miss Anne Rogers, Miss Ann Watkins, Miss Suzanne Marshall, Miss Lisette Littlehales, Miss Elizabeth Watkins, Miss Harriet Eldridge and Miss Virginia Spencer.

A distinguished audience heard members of the class give a recital last Sunday at the Phillips Memorial Gallery. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. C. Law Watkins, Commander and Mrs. E. P. Eldredge and Mr. and Mrs. James Bonbright.

All Souls Church Club To Hold Final Meeting

The Business and Professional Women's Club of All Souls Church (Unitarian) will hold its final meeting of the season at the home of Dr. Julia M. Green, founder of the club, Saturday afternoon, June 4. The members will gather at 4 o'clock and will have a picnic supper later.

A sketch from a "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be read by Miss Ada Louise Townsend, member of the club.

St. Rose 'Tech' Pupils Will Present Operetta

Students of St. Rose Technical School will present the operetta "In Old Vienna" at 8:15 o'clock tonight and Friday at the school auditorium, 2200 California street northwest.

Economics Unit Picks Mrs. Ellis

Mrs. N. R. Ellis was elected president of the Home Economics Association of the District last night at the business meeting held in connection with a dinner at which Mrs. Caroline King, woman's editor of Country Gentleman, was guest speaker. Other guests of honor were Mrs. Robert L. Olesen, new president of the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women at whose clubhouse the dinner was held, and Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, out-going president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Miss Ruth Shedon, retiring president of the association, presided at both the business meeting and program following. Other new officers chosen were Mrs. Hazel Schertz, a teacher in home economics, corresponding secretary, succeeding Miss Marion Smith, and Miss Sheldon, councilor, succeeding Mrs. Harris Baldwin. The vice president, Miss Mary Rokahr, and recording secretary, Mrs. Ralph Phillips, hold over from last year.

Mrs. Ellis, who is a graduate of the home economics department of the University of Wisconsin, is from the home makers' group of the association—the first president in several years who has represented this section.

Miss Florence Hall, of the extension service of the Department of Agriculture, was in charge of the dinner, assisted by Miss Margaret Munn, a member of Home Economics Women in Business, who is house manager of the A. A. U. W. Mrs. Faith Rasmussen, chairman of the Home Economics Women in Business, was among those at the guest table, and Miss Marjorie Black, also a member of this group, introduced the speaker.

Benefit Opening At Rippon Lodge

Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis will open their historic colonial home, Rippon Lodge, for a garden party to be given Thursday afternoon, June 2, to benefit the Washington Association for Preservation of Virginia Antiquities. The hours are from 3:30 to 6:30 p. m.

There will be music during the afternoon presented by Mrs. Guy Withers, who will sing folk songs, accompanied by Sophocles Papas.

Mrs. Ellis is chairman of entertainment, with Mrs. Joseph Stiles Wall, vice chairman. Miss Laura Dorsey, of the Calverton Apartments, is in charge of reservations for the trip. Those who are not driving their own cars will meet at the Pennsylvania avenue entrance of the Willard Hotel, where buses will leave promptly at 2:30 p. m.

Rippon Lodge, which is the oldest colonial house in this section of Virginia, was erected in 1725 by Richard Blackburn, who came to this country from the cathedral town of Ripon, England. It was he who also designed Mount Vernon for Lawrence Washington.

Rippon Lodge has a beautiful setting of woodland and rolling hills and on the grounds still are the "tea bushes" brought from Bermuda to be used as a substitute for tea in the days of the Colonists' protest against the tea tax. The house also has a secret passageway, leading to a nearby ravine, which is believed to have been constructed as a protection in case of Indian raids.

3 Women in Congress Relate 'Big Moments' in Their Lives

'Most Scared' When She Made Her First Speech, Senator Caraway Says; Representatives Jenckes and Honeyman Also Address Democrats.

Three women members of Congress—Senator Hattie Caraway, Representative Virginia Jenckes and Representative Nan Wood Honeyman—last night described their "big moments" in entertaining talks at the closing dinner of the Woman's National Democratic Club.

In one respect the experience of all three was parallel—none took an interest in the woman suffrage movement but all availed themselves of the vote once it was granted and were in favor of women holding any offices for which they were qualified.

Senator Caraway said the greatest moment of her life was when she was married, the proudest that when her first son was born and the "most scared" the occasion of her first speech, which, she said, was described by those in the audience as the worst they ever heard.

She said the position of a Senator was "not always an enviable one," the work not easy, and the responsibilities heavy. When she went into the Senate she made up her mind, she said, that nobody should tell her how to vote.

Describing her campaign, in which she received more votes than all six men running against her, she explained she was not crowing over the men—"they are fine people, but I think I was pretty good myself to come out ahead of them."

She made a brief reference to yesterday's session of the Senate when someone asked her "Are we on the relief bill?" to which she replied, "No, we're 'on' Mr. Hopkins."

The greatest thrill of her lifetime, said the Senate's only woman member, will be next August 9 if she is re-elected to the job.

Representative Jenckes said when she was elected to Congress she was determined to refute the charge of a political opponent that "if you send this woman to Congress, it will be two years before she knows where to hang her hat."

She went onto the floor the first time wearing a bright hat, bought for the occasion, defying all precedent, and at least 20 members of the House, Democrats and Republicans, stepped up with the offer, "Mrs. Jenckes let me show you where to hang your hat."

Mrs. Honeyman, who was the first speaker, described her experience in looking into a seething volcano as her most inspiring moment. She likened the commotion within the crater to the chaotic state of human affairs and called it a symbol of progress.

Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, president of the club, presided at the dinner and introduced the guests of honor.

Among those attending the dinner were Mrs. George M. Morris, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, who entertained a group of friends, Mrs. Royal H. Brasel, Mrs. Edward B. Keating, who had with her Mr. and Mrs. Merle Vincent and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Keating 3d, Mrs. Augustus F. Kempton, Mrs. Hedley Vickers Cooke, who also had guests with her, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Miss Portia Oberly, Miss Mildred Turner Hill, Miss Helen McCormick, Miss Agnes Winn, Mrs. J. Craig Peacock, who was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson Compton, Miss Sara Marcum and guests, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. McNeese, Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Coit MacLean, Mrs. William L. Beale, Mrs. Florence Coyle and daughter, Mrs. Edgar B. Kay and guests, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Ferguson, jr., Mrs. George P. Frysinger and Miss Grace Frysinger, Admiral and Mrs. Edward R. Stitt and Mrs. Eugene Tighe.

Grosvenors Plan To Open Home for Hospital Benefit

Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of women's board of George Washington University Hospital, and Dr. Grosvenor are opening their home, Wild Acres, at Bethesda, for a buffet supper to benefit the hospital equipment fund. The supper will be given Friday evening, June 10, at 7 o'clock.

The women's board is active in support of the hospital and sponsors various benefit parties during the year to raise funds for equipment. This will be the final affair of the season.

On the committee assisting Mrs. Grosvenor are Mrs. Edward Goring Bliss, Mrs. Walter A. Bloedorn, Mrs. Robert W. Bolwell, Mrs. William Cline Borden, Mrs. Walter Willard Boyd, Mrs. E. C. Brandenburg, Mrs. Eugene Byrnes, Mrs. Wilbur H. Collier, Mrs. Frederick V. Coville, Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel, Mrs. William Thornwall Davis, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Mrs. Carl Droop, Mrs. Gustav H. Emery, Mrs. Frederick E. Farrington, Mrs. Arthur Grahame, Mrs. Irving P. Hall, Mrs. W. Y. Handy, Mrs. Miriam B. Hilton, Mrs. Philip O. Pelland, Mrs. Barton Richwine, Mrs. Charles Augustus Simpson, Mrs. Leonard Stejneger.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

'Magazine Man' Says Agents Are Needed by Writers Who Aim at Top-Flight, Popular Magazine Field.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: On the subject of selling manuscripts to magazine editors, I felt your reply to "Ambitious," of May 25, left several possibilities unexplored. I should like to augment what you had to say from my knowledge of what really happens to manuscripts in magazine offices. I am speaking from the editorial standpoint and perhaps I can, therefore, supply specific information many writers seem to lack.

* * * *

Don't attempt to market anything until you have written a great deal and have reason to believe your product is marketable. . . . Then, the best rule to observe is this: Risk the direct approach only in the field of publications of limited circulation, those of high cultural content edited for a small elite reader group, or those of a local or sectional nature.

* * * *

Any magazine of popular appeal with a national circulation receives an enormous volume of unsolicited manuscripts. Editors have told me that long experience has proved it is scarcely worthwhile to maintain a staff of readers to wash the "gold" out of this muddy stream of doubtful attempts. True, a small percentage of gold there probably is, but it will be too costly to get it out. So, on many magazines, these thousands upon thousands of unsolicited manuscripts are returned unread. And that despite anything to the contrary editors may state publicly. They cannot afford to let the public know their policy in this respect. It would hurt circulation.

* * * *

If "Ambitious" wishes to sell in the popular magazine field, he must have a literary agent, and an able one at that. Agents are both loathe and eager to take on beginners. What I mean is, they are eager for new writers who will make money for them, and fearful of annoyance by those who never will. To obviate that danger, many first-class agencies will read any manuscript submitted, in return for a reasonable reading fee. If the manuscript proves to have qualities which make its author seem a good "literary bet," the fee will be waived. The writer henceforth becomes a client of the agency in the true sense of the word. The agent will now read anything he writes without charge and will attempt to sell such manuscripts as he believes salable, taking his profit in the form of a 10 per cent standard commission on all sales.

* * * *

It is a mistake to believe that agents try to sell all contributions, even of their most famous and well established clients. They do not. Many a manuscript is returned for revision, or flatly rejected because it "does not hit any market." The agent who sells most and gets highest prices for what he sells is the one who has close personal contacts with many magazine editors. Such a one is apt to be "choosy" about taking on new writers, but he will take on those with real talent. Less important agencies have little influence in the top-flight national magazine field, but they do sell the "pulps" and small sectional magazines.

* * * *

So, first, before making any agency connection, "Ambitious" must decide what his goal is to be. If he is an essayist on philosophical or social problems, or a writer of stories directed at a strictly elite audience, he may mail his contributions direct. He will probably need no agent and his checks, if he does sell, are apt to be small. If he wishes to write for the "pulps," he should choose one of the agencies which handles pulp fiction. And if his product is aimed at the large circulation popular magazines, he must get an agent who is close to them and knows their needs.

* * * *

I advise him to pay a reading fee if one is demanded, for if he turns out to be a "winner," he will find agents clamoring for the honor of handling his work. Even after a writer becomes successful, he still needs an agent, who can argue and fight for—and get—the higher prices. Authors are fairly greedy, but they are seldom astute businessmen! Sincerely,

MAGAZINE MAN.

* * * *

DEAR M. M.: Thank you for your kindness in providing "Ambitious" with so much specific (and, I assume, such incontrovertibly authoritative) guidance, in the matter of launching himself as a writer. Certainly your contribution has all the earmarks of being authentic "inside dope," of a kind not usually made available to the unknown writer knocking hopefully at the door to Success. M. H.

Paging "Middle Westerner!"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Having read the letter in your column of May 24, signed "Middle Westerner," I am writing to ask if you could put me in touch with her. I am a girl in my late twenties and also like bicycling, dancing, hiking, etc., but, as she says, there is no fun doing these things alone. I have just recently heard of a club where one might meet congenial people, but hesitate to go alone. Perhaps she and I could join this club together. I am inclosing my name, address and telephone number, to be given to her if she is interested. Sincerely,

MISS K. B.

* * * *

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I find that "Middle Westerner" has the same problem I have had since coming to Washington. I do all the things she does and have been trying to find someone who plays tennis, so I may have some fun as well as recreation, but all to no avail. I am in my early thirties and it seems one fits in nowhere at that age. I am inclosing my name and telephone number and wonder if you could bring us together. Yours,

MISS M. A. C.

* * * *

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am particularly interested in "Middle Westerner's" letter and because I appreciate her problem, I should like to meet her, if possible.

EASTERNER.

* * * *

DEAR CORRESPONDENTS: If "Middle Westerner" should be interested in meeting you, she has only to come out of her anonymity and say so. I shall be glad to give her your names and addresses. In soliciting suggestions from this department, she did not reveal her identity. M. H.

Today's HEALTH TALK

by Logan Clendening, M. D.

Music as Medicine.

I attended a concert the other night that was, so far as I can remember, a unique event. It was a program of music that at one time or other in the world's history has been used in connection with medicine.

The effects of music on sickness, especially nervous sickness, has been known for a long time. David was called upon to play before Saul, when the melancholy fit was on the king. Everyone must have experienced the change of mood that can follow listening to a great symphony. Songs can charm you out of depression, and grouches vanish before the spirited rendition of a dance number.

The pieces I heard the other night were three. The first was a melody composed by the court jester, who was also the court musician, to soothe the great Duke of Mantau in the early sixteenth century, when he lay very ill. It was a light and airy apostrophe, urging him to be once again his gay self, and to forget the cloud of disease that hung over him.

The second was the tune called "The Tarantella." It was played under remarkable circumstances. In the Middle Ages in certain parts of Italy especially, it was supposed that the bite of a spider, the tarantula, caused the victim to dance and jump around.

"Ha! Ha! The fellow is dancing mad. He hath been bitten by the tarantula."

This impulse to dance returned every spring and whole communities would give way to it, whirling and spinning about for days at a time. Of course, it was a form of hysteria, not due to the spider's bite at all. But when this wave of wildness would hit a village, wandering musicians were called up to play these tunes, which were named "The Tarantella" and which finally calmed the excitement.

Lastly, was played a great hymn of supplication to St. Sebastian, who was the patron saint of the plague, asking him to remove the plague from the land.

It was all very impressive and made one feel that music should be used more than it is for purposes of treatment, especially in nervous and mental disorders.

Jean Desses Gives The Bolero Jacket A Featured Play

Paris (U.P.).—Take your boleros straight, long, short or with a dash of embroidery. But be sure to consider them as necessities for pepping up an appetite for fashions.

Jean Desses' summer creations sanction the bolero vehemently. Some may not want their bolero separate. Very well. Then the same effect may be gained by deep raglan sleeves which terminate at the shoulder end in inset colored bands following the armhole curve, but set in so deep on the bodice that they give the effect of a bolero.

As for more orthodox boleros, they range in materials from velvet and silk fringe to mousseline and grosgrain. If you happen to have a last year's black and white print silk dress and matching bolero a deep peplum of black mousseline which follows up the front and fastens itself in a fluffy bow on the left shoulder.

Light Jackets Top Dark Frocks for Summer

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, May 26.

MISS OLYMPE Bradna, aged 17, and very pretty, turned up from Hollywood the other day in a broadtail coat, a rust-colored Tyrolean hat, and a small dither. Oh Lamp, to give her the English, is a little French dancer who came to this country four years ago, and is now breaking into pictures nicely.

ALICE HUGHES.

The Bradna child's slight huff was caused by some press agent stories, and she proceeded to lift her rust-colored pumps and nudge the lads in the rumble seat. Story 1, told to build up her girlish innocence—she has never been kissed. Story 2—has never had a date. Oh Lamp had her answers pat. "I have been kissed by Louis Da Pron in a picture called 'College Holiday,' and I am kissed by Gene Raymond in 'Stolen Heaven,'" she said firmly—but left a very strong impression that this was merely professional, and didn't count in the box score.

"Of course I don't go out with boys, because I am only 17 and have to mind my parents," she said. "But I'll have dates when I'm 18, in August," she added. "When you're 21!" opined Mama Mme. Bradna, firmly. This seemed to be a moot point. But a resourceful local reporter named Smith settled this by getting Mom to permit him to walk Oh Lamp around the block, unchaperoned. So the child has been kissed (for the camera) and has had a date (for the newspaper), and the little dolling is only 17! Whither is our youth drifting?

* * * *

Oh Lamp also carries her own teacher on tour, and writes a little piece about every city she visits. All in all, a very cute little number, and a worthy member of Hollywood's Gallic troupe, which also includes Smong Smong and Dannielle Darrieux. And she's a fresh sight for our movie star oglers!

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The enormous variety of reasons for divorces and annulments never fails to startle me. We came up with a brand new one only the other day. Mrs. Sarah Edwina Tout Durkin, a 24-year-old stenographer, prayed our supreme court to turn her loose from John Durkin because he refused to go to Salt Lake City with her for a second ceremony according to the Mormon rite. She charged that John reneged on a promise to make this trip—but why all this twitter-twatter wasn't threshed out and settled before they went before the justice of the peace baffles me. And no doubt such things cause many a wise and honorable judge to blow his topper!

Jackets This Season Display Every Color in the Spectrum

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

THIS is a season when jackets abound—in all colors of the spectrum, numerous clever stylings, and about 1,001 kinds of materials. The jacket adds swank to a new costume and does wonders in rejuvenating one that is not so new. It is an ageless accessory, being equally appropriate for every woman in the family. As an introductory costume to warm days when you discard your topcoat, the jacket in any of its interpretations is as chic as it is comfortable.

Selecting the right jacket however, requires thought and planning. For example, to top a dark sheer frock purchased at the beginning of spring, try a patterned pique, pastel flannel, Indian print, or cotton string affair of multi-colors. If your problem is a print, dotted or striped frock, then a jacket of solid color is the only correct choice. It may be white or tinted, depending upon personal choice and the color tones in the frock; your color sense will have to be the judge in this case. White jackets are appearing in uncrushable linen, sharkskin, flannel, pique, faille silk, hopsacking and numerous other effective fabrics.

In regard to styling, jackets for summer cover a wide range, from miniature boleros to fitted versions which are softly tailored, and boxy affairs in varying lengths. Some have long sleeves, others have short or three-quarter sleeves; collarless jackets vie with those flaunting unique collar or scarf treatments. Many of the jackets button up the entire front, others have no means of fastening at all; some have many pockets, others none. Whatever your idea of the perfect jacket, you will undoubtedly find it this season, and in material to complement the frock of which it is to be an integral part.

Other accessories may either match the jacket or repeat the predominating color of the frock. Hats and jackets are a smart and popular merger; also jackets and handbags or gloves. Sometimes the jacket is the only note of color contrast for the entire ensemble; if wisely chosen, this can be most effective. For light summer frocks, dark or bright jackets are dramatic and chic, often lending character to an otherwise simple frock. They are grand acquisitions for the sunback costumes; with the jacket for town and without for resort wear.

YOUR FIGURE MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain.

Venus Well Proportioned Despite Charge She Was Hefty.

By Ida Jean Kain.

NOBODY EVER ASKS whether Venus de Milo was a blonde or a brunette, or whether she wore a size 16 or a 38. Her sole claim to fame—as far as anyone cares—was a perfectly proportioned figure.

In the first place, she had a waistline. It may have measured 23 inches or it may have had a span of 28 inches. What matters is that it was 9 inches smaller than the bust measurement—about 3 inches less than the average Mrs. America's. Reports vary, but according to the most persistent this classic beauty had a hip measurement only 2 inches larger than the bust. Those differences in measurements are symmetry itself, and still are the specifications of a beautiful figure.

If you are built on the statuesque order, you probably agree that Venus was as beautiful as pictured. The average size girl seems to regard the Greek goddess as a bit hefty. But before you cast any aspersions, take your own measurements and see whether your figure is as perfectly proportioned.

Depends Upon Chest.

The bust, waist and hips are the three pivotal measurements. The normal bust measurement depends upon that of the chest and may exceed the chest by 1 inch to 2½ inches. The breasts are glands, and apparently glandular functioning has nothing to do with skeletal proportions. The slender girl may have a well-developed bust which exceeds the chest by 1½ inches, while the more sturdily built girl with equally good proportions may have a smaller bust in comparison with chest structure.

The size of the bust, however, seems to be greatly affected by vitality and weight. The underweight girl with extremely low vitality almost always has a small bust. The normal weight girl with exuberant vitality is most likely to have a lovely bust. The excessive overweight is characterized by a large bust, for these tissues are particularly susceptible to fatty deposit.

The overly large bust caused by excess weight must be reduced by diet and raised to normal position through exercises which strengthen the pectoral muscles. To develop this measurement, increase the food intake. Be sure to add plenty of milk to your diet. Also, stay out in the fresh air as much as possible.

The waistline of the short stocky figure is the most difficult to control and often the difference between the bust and waistline will be as little as 4 inches. Specific waistline exercises are an absolute necessity for the short stocky girl.

The hip measurement is an almost universal figure problem. While the hip measurement should not exceed the bust by more than 3 inches, it is frequently as much as 6 inches out of line. To slim down in the hips, exercise must be regular and vigorous.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

The Philosophers.

"You know I just wonder sometimes . . ."

"So do I. I just think, what's the use?"

"Now, you take the office—who are the ones that get ahead?"

"I know what you mean. There's no justice or anything."

"That's what I say. What good does it do you to do your part and be so hardworking and dependable and loyal and everything? Nobody appreciates it."

"Sure they don't."

"You know, life is a funny thing."

"I'll say it is."

"Well I know I've always tried to do the right thing by everybody and I just ask you—where has it gotten me?"

"Where has it gotten me?"

"You know, it's a funny thing but—well you take women. Who are the ones who get the best husbands?"

"I know what you mean. And then all the good women—look at them!"

"Of course! It doesn't make sense does it?"

"Well, I suppose it's just one of those things."

"I can't figure it out. Another thing—you take the girls we know. I just ask you—who are the ones that have the most beaux?"

"I know what you mean . . . And everybody thinks just as much of them."

"Honestly, it just makes you wonder what's the use."

"I'll say it does."

"Well, I know one thing—if I had it all to do over again I'd do a lot of things differently."

"Me too. The whole trouble is we don't know how to live until it's too late."

"Well, such is life . . . I guess."

"You know—I suppose I oughn't to say this—but sometimes I wonder what the whole thing's about anyway—all this struggle and everything."

"Say! I've felt exactly the same way lots of times! The whole point is, where does it all get you?"

"That's what I want to know. Sometimes I just stop and wonder to myself, 'Why do we do it? Why don't we just sit down and think?'"

"I'm too tired even to think most of the time."

"Me too. I'm so rushed I don't have time to think."

"Well it's a funny world."

"I'll say it is! Let's go to a movie."

"All right. Let's do."

School Presents Original Models

National Art Pupils Put on Shows.

Fifty original models, designed by the costume-design students of the National Art School, under the direction of Marian Halstead, instructor, were presented to the press and the public this week in a series of style shows. While practicality was the aim of the young designers, each costume was given a frivolous name to lend interest. For example, "Hayseed" was a cotton-print garden dress in rust tones styled along dirndl lines; "Chanticleer," a play suit of blue Indianhead with wide red bands and red roosters as the decorative medium; "Tin Type," a printed chiffon evening gown with long gloves in solid color, simulating sleeves.

Several suits and coats for fall also were included in the presentation; collarless, fitted silhouettes with zippers or buttons. An outstanding model in this realm was a three-piece suit consisting of navy wool skirt, chartreuse blouse and plaid cape lined with the blouse material. Play clothes made up a large percentage of the showing, shorts and slacks competing with culottes for first place. A clever outfit was made with short culottes of white trimmed with gay stripes and long-sleeved, high-necked blouse of the stripes. White pigskin as an accessory material was displayed in a short fitted coat, handbag, gloves and toque, worn with a medium green crepe shirtwaist dress.

Chinaware Clips.

Paris (AP).—Some of the newest belt buckles in Paris look like chinaware. They are shiny white porcelain, and are echoed in chinaware clips to wear at the neck. New gold buckles are hung with bangles. These, too, are matched with bangle-hung clips.

Taste Governs Proper Dress For Graduates

Girls Should Wear Gowns Not Too Sophisticated or Cut Too Low.

By Margaret Wallace

What to wear to graduation dances is a problem of moment to the young girl and young man in many social circles in Washington.

In most cases the graduation dances are informal functions where simplicity is essential. While there is seldom a set rule as to the type of dresses to be worn to these dances, the girl with good taste will select a costume that is not too sophisticated. The best type of dancing dress, in the opinion of most mothers of girl graduates, is one that is long and graceful, yet short enough not to sweep the floor. It is also considered good form not to have the dress cut too low, and to have some kind of sleeve, even though it be a very tiny one.

"Summer Formals" Proper.

While the escorts of girls may follow the rule of wearing evening clothes after 6 o'clock and dinner clothes for an informal dance, other regulations can be made by such groups. In Washington the so-called "summer formals" for men, consisting of white flannel trousers with dark coats, have the stamp of approval. This type of summer garb can be found in even the so-called fashionable Washington circles when the evening is a warm one. Tuxedos are always proper for such dances, chiefly because many young men do not own full dress suits.

There is a code of good form for the young man whom a girl graduate has honored with an invitation to her dance. He must, of course, answer the invitation promptly and inform himself of all the details, such as the time he is expected to call for her and what type of clothes he is expected to wear. He should call at the home of the girl he is to escort before the event, and leave cards, not only for her, but for her parents. It is also a graceful gesture for the young man who is invited to the graduation ceremonies of a young woman to send flowers.

A graduation gift from a young man to a girl graduate should be flowers, a book, a picture, an article for her desk or something equally suitable.

It is not good form for a young girl to send a young man graduate flowers, although it is sometimes done. It is quite proper for her to give a book or a note book or some such memento.

After the graduation party the young man who has been a guest will call on the girl who invited him, and her parents, and express his enjoyment of the party. The young girl who has been a guest of a young man at such a party should tell him how much she enjoyed herself. It is good form to invite him to dinner or luncheon as an expression of her appreciation. If her escort's mother or some friend has been the chaperon she should call as soon after the party as possible.

Black Tulle Applied By Molyneux in Gown

Paris (U.P.).—Black tulle—a big favorite—is used by Molyneux in a bouffant gown which has large black tulle bows appliqued on its skirt of the same tulle. Instead of the dropped shoulders it has a low, straight decollete and tiny string-size shoulder straps.

Chanel uses a big black bow—this time of stiff taffeta—on the shoulder of a fluffy white organza whose off-the-shoulder neckline is bordered with a sizable ruching. Again the black tulle crops up in one of Lelong's outstanding evening gowns, very full-skirted, tight-waisted and with a summery wreath of pink roses round its low round neck.

12 From Capital To Get Degrees At West Point

Twelve Washingtonians, among them the son of Maj. Gen. George A. Lynch, Chief of Infantry, are among the 301 members of the first class at West Point who will be graduated June 14. They will receive degrees as bachelors of science and commissions as second lieutenants in the Army.

Cadet James H. Lynch, son of the Chief of Infantry and Mrs. Lynch, Wyoming Apartments, holds the rank of cadet lieutenant, is captain of the West Point golf team and a member of the ring committee. He will be commissioned in the Field Artillery.

Seeks Flying Course.

Cadet Joe R. Brabson, son of Mrs. Joe R. Brabson, 4000 Cathedral avenue northwest has requested a detail in the Air Corps to attend the flying school at Randolph Field, Tex. He played third base on the baseball team in his plebe year.

Cadet George W. Bixby, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Bixby, 2130 Pierce Mill road, is a cadet lieutenant and has participated in fencing. He was assistant manager of the football team in his third year and has been a member of the Cadet Chapel Choir, Glee Club, concert orchestra and ring committee. He will enter the Engineer Corps.

Cadet Clarence E. Beck, the son of W. C. Beck, 1409 Kennedy street northwest, has requested a detail in the Air Corps for training at Randolph Field. In his third year he was a cadet sergeant. A participant in field sports and football, he has been a member of the Cadet Choir and Glee Club. For four years he has been a company representative for the Howitzer, cadet yearbook.

Won Post in Examination.

Cadet Merrick Bayer won his appointment by high standing in competitive examinations while a member of the District of Columbia National Guard. The son of Mrs. Joanna Zielinski, 55 M street northwest, he has requested aviation training at Randolph Field.

Cadet Harold N. Moorman, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moorman, live at 6905 Fifth street northwest, has been cadet lieutenant and battalion adjutant. A lacrosse player, he has been hop manager and a member of the West Point players. He will be commissioned in the Infantry.

Cadet Vincent M. Miles, jr., has requested a detail in the Air Corps. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent C. Miles.

Harvey Active in Sports.

Cadet Clarence C. Harvey, son of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. C. C. Harvey, 1429 Forty-fourth street northwest, has attained the rank of cadet lieutenant. He has participated in soccer, swimming and track activities, and was assistant manager of the track team in his third year, he has been hop manager and is a qualified pistol marksman. He will enter the Field Artillery.

The son of Mrs. Florence B. Heflebower, 5209 Fourteenth street northwest, Cadet Roy C. Heflebower has attained the rank of cadet captain. He participated in gymnastics and lacrosse and is vice president of the first class. He will be commissioned in the Field Artillery.

Winning high honors in a competitive examination, Cadet John R. Hopson, son of Mrs. E. H. Hopson, 3415 McKinley street northwest, was appointed to the Military Academy while a member of the New York National Guard. He will receive a commission in the Field Artillery, but has asked for aviation training at Randolph Field. He is a cadet lieutenant and has been captain of the wrestling team in the past year. He was a member of the Cadet Players and the election committee, and has been on the Howitzer staff.

Way to Make Steel Lacking Rare U.S. Mineral Claimed

New York, May 26 (U.P.).—A new method of making steel that may solve one of America's most serious "war industries" problems—the lack of manganese in this country—was unfolded tonight before the Iron and Steel Institute by Dr. Richard S. McCaffery, professor of mining and metallurgy at the Univtrsity of Wisconsin.

Dr. McCaffery said that four things could be claimed for the new process, which involves the use of a silica slag instead of the manganese for removing oxides from the metal:

It is cheaper in production than the old process; it produces a high-quality steel by economically successful methods; it makes use of low-grade iron ores, as low as 30 per cent in iron content, and it can produce steel without the use of manganese, one of the six basic raw materials necessary for war purposes that are not available in any large quantities in this country.

Magruder Dies; Won Renown in American Navy

Rear Admiral Thomas Pickett Magruder, retired naval hero whose career was one of the most colorful in the history of American sea forces, died yesterday of heart disease at his summer home in Jamestown, R. I. He was 70.

As a young officer in the Spanish-American War, he led a handful of men in an open boat past blasting shore batteries to cut a cable from Cienfuegos, Cuba, to Spain. His spectacular exploit brought him honors from his own and foreign governments. His activity against submarines during the World War gave him added renown.

In 1927, while commandant of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, Admiral Magruder disagreed violently with the naval administration and drew a reprimand for criticism he wrote in conjunction with articles by Maj. Gen. "Billy" Mitchell, of the Army Air Force, and Maj. Gen. Smedly Butler, of the Marine Corps. For 20 months he was kept "waiting for orders," but the articles were credited with promoting reforms.

A native of Vicksburg, Miss., and the son of Gen. Lawson W. Magruder, of the Confederate Army, he retired from active duty seven years ago.

He held many decorations, including the Distinguished Service Medal and the French Legion of Honor.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a. m. tomorrow in Fort Myer Chapel by Capt. R. D. Workman, of the Navy Chaplain Corps. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Admiral Magruder is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rosa Boush Magruder; a daughter, Mrs. Adelle M. Magruder Greig, wife of Commander Stuart O. Greig, U. S. N. (retired), of Newport, R. I., and a brother, Capt. Cary W. Magruder, U. S. N., who is on duty at the Naval War College at Newport.

Mrs. Anna Hullfish Rites Are Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Louise Hullfish, mother of Comdr. Wilson S. Hullfish, U. S. N., will be held today at 2 p. m. at the V. L. Speare funeral home. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Hullfish had long been a resident of the District, leaving several years ago to live with a son, Prof. H. Gordon Hullfish, of Ohio State University. She returned to Washington when Comdr. Hullfish was stationed at the Navy Department here. Her home was at 1305 Emerson street northwest.

Besides her sons, she is survived by two grandchildren and a niece.

Mrs. Mary Burdine Dies Here at 74

Mrs. Mary Louise Burdine, 74, widow of William A. Burdine, former sea food merchant here, died yesterday at her home, 1417 Twenty-second street northwest. She had been ill six months.

Born in Washington, Mrs. Burdine spent 14 years in Chicago after her marriage before returning to this city 60 years ago. She was a member of St. Stephen's Catholic Church.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. J. F. Allison, of Washington, and Mrs. Theodore P. Heap, of Langley Field, Va.

Requiem mass will be held in St Stephen's Church at 9 a. m. Monday. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

George W. Prather Dies; 20 Years on Washington Post

George W. Prather, for nearly 20 years a member of the advertising staff of the Washington Post, died Wednesday in his home at 860 Whittier place northwest after an illness of three months.

Mr. Prather was 63. He and his mother and father, the late Mary and George Prather, were native Washingtonians.

He attended the public schools here, worked for the Woodward & Lothrop Co., and was engaged in the roofing business before coming to The Post. His health had been failing since his retirement in 1933.

Surviving are his wife, a son, George Campbell Prather, and two sisters, Mrs. E. L. Franzoni and Mrs. Robert Fletcher, both of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow, in the W. W. Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin street northwest. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Alpha E. H. Carver Is Dead in Takoma

Alpha E. H. Carver, 81, of 113 Carroll avenue, Takoma Park, Md., died suddenly Wednesday. A native of Ball Lincolnia, Va., Mr. Carver lived here for many years. For the last ten years he had worked as guard at Griffith Stadium.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Elsie M. Stout, with whom he lived, and three sons, Alpha B. Carver, of Atlanta, Ga., and Clyde B. Carver and Stanley G. Carver, of Washington.

Services will be held at the home today at 1 p. m. Mr. Carver's cousin, the Rev. Charles Cummings, and John McNeil, an elder in the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Fairfax, Va.

It's Important to Know This about Gin: Gordon's has the Advantage of LIQUEUR QUALITY & HIGH PROOF, 94.4

● This is an important advantage — because Liqueur Quality means richer flavor, velvety smoothness—and High Proof, 94.4, means sustained flavor! That's why drinks never taste thin with Gordon's Gin. So, ask for Gordon's — and enjoy the advantage when buying gin by the bottle or the drink.

Privilege Tax Deadline Is Put Up to June 17

32,000 Applications Yet to Be Filed, Brooke Announces.

The District Commissioners yesterday extended until June 17 the deadline for obtaining a business privilege license. The original deadline was May 31 midnight.

Administrator A. F. Brooke announced yesterday a total of 2,500 thus far had applied for renewal of the licenses. More than 32,000 remain to be filed, he said. Penalty for failing to secure a license within the prescribed limit is $5.

Jo V. Morgan, newly-appointed one-man Board of Tax Appeals, yesterday said any garage owner renting space to other persons is required to obtain a license.

The license will be free to those who obtain $2,000 or less per year from garage rentals.

Arts Academy Gives Diplomas To 11 Students

Eleven young women were awarded diplomas by the Livingstone Academy of Arts and Sciences at commencement exercises last night at 1138 Connecticut avenue.

Mrs. Eleanor Mary Spear, graphic arts expert and a graduate of the class of 1927, spoke on "The Graphic Arts, Etching and Drypoint." A farewell letter written by Anne L. Strickland, who was unable to attend, was read by Marcella J. Neville.

Each graduate spoke briefly, outlining plans for the future. Elizabeth M. Nystrand gave soprano solos.

Jessica Livingstone Dickinson, president, addressed the graduates on "Great Futures in the World of Design." A talk also was given by Robert Brennan, Charge d'Affaires of Ireland, whose daughter, Deirdre Brennan, was a graduate in costume design. Leona B. Register and Rosa B. Ingram were honored for having perfect attendance records. Other graduates were:

William E. Buffington Rites Set Tomorrow

Masonic services for William E. Buffington, 65, former controller of the Postoffice Department, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the S. H. Hines funeral home. Mr. Buffington, a graduate of George Washington University, was a member of Almas Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine; Washington Centennial Lodge and the Mount Vernon Chapter, Royal Arch Masons.

Catherine Healy Given Poster Prize

Miss Catherine Healy, of 1402 Morse street northeast, was awarded yesterday the $25 first prize in the Dental Health Poster contest, conducted by the District Dental Society. The presentation was made at a meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club by J. L. B. Murray, the club's president.

The poster designed by Miss Healy, which was entered in the divisional contest for junior high classes in parochial schools, will also be entered in the national contest sponsored by the American Dental Society.

Memorial services for seven members of the Cosmopolitan Club were held at yesterday's meeting. They were conducted by Dr. Oliver J. Hart, club chaplain.

PHILIP TRENT tracks down an Elusive Forger!

"Your tip was right, Trent—this is the mysterious forger we've been hunting. But how did you know it was 'The Dude'?"

"Like a good rye, this bad egg has a trademark—he left his fingerprint on a check. I looked him up in the rogue's gallery and trailed him to his hide-out."

"What's that about a good rye's trademark? I've spent as much time hunting for real rye as 'The Dude' will spend in Sing Sing!"

"Then you've been looking for the mark of BLACK HAWK—that's the clue to fine rye flavor!"

90 PROOF

THE "FINGERPRINT" OF AMERICA'S MASTER RYE!

Good rye is the hardest of all whiskies to make—but it's easy to track down the one with rich ripe flavor! Look for the clue on the label—the mark of BLACK HAWK. Its record reveals that it's the product of Hiram Walker's 80 years of rye-making experience—that BLACK HAWK is made in the world's largest distillery. That's the evidence that it tastes right! Just try BLACK HAWK and let your own palate be the judge!

Nats Score Two Runs in Ninth to Beat Browns, 12-10

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—Down on Josephine street, in the little huts hard by the railroad tracks, the folks have a special interest in the goings-on in New York tomorrow night. They sho' would like to hear that Henry Jackson did it again.

POVICH.

Because Henry Jackson is Henry Armstrong and he's one of their boys. They are his people, those folks in the overalls and aprons who go to work on the levees and in the yards. The Jackson's were those kind of people and little Henry was one of a flock of Jackson kids doing odd jobs for pennies to help keep down the overhead.

The featherweight champion of the world whom they now call the greatest fighter for his pounds and inches in the entire fistic universe, grew into a scrawny, 17-year-old kid before he lit out from the lean pickings to seek the more abundant life—westward.

He was a 115-pound type then, eight years ago, and he had put in the usual life of the neighborhood kids. He had sold newspapers, he had shined shoes, he had been a messenger for a downtown hat store and, when he began to sprout some muscles, he got work with a section gang.

Then one summer day in 1929, Henry Jackson hit the road—a member of the growing army of youthful hoboes whose numbers had begun to alarm the Nation. He was hopping freights, looking for hand-outs and apparently following the usual course of the floating mobs of kids in their teens who, unequipped for the struggle, lived as best they could.

* * * *

Had to Battle.

But Henry Jackson was not long for that life. Back in St. Louis' Harlem, the best corners belonged to the newsboys who won 'em with their fists, and the choice shoe-shine spots must be defended with a kid's fists. Henry Jackson always peddled his papers from the best corners and shined his shoes in the most profitable spots. He could fight.

And so, when he reached California, late in the fall of 1929, and discovered that these same little fists represented ready cash—not much, but enough to tide him over—he took to fighting for pay. He didn't startle anybody with his talents, but he was a crowd-pleaser and regular work as a preliminary fighter came to him.

By that time he was no longer Henry Jackson. An enterprising promoter didn't like that name. It didn't sound ferocious enough. So they booked him as Henry Armstrong. And as Henry Armstrong, you know how he fared. Now, under the sponsorship of Al Jolson, who took a fancy to his ceaseless style of fighting, and the management of wise old Eddie Meade, he blossomed as a sensation.

Before the fighting fury of little Henry Jackson fell all the big names of the featherweight division. Taking his talents East, he knocked out Pete Sarron to win undisputed right to the featherweight crown. At this writing, he has knocked out 35 of his last 37 opponents, and tomorrow night he is making the most startling bid for fistic fame that the prize ring has ever witnessed.

What Will Happen?

He is going out of his class to try to win not the lightweight hcampionship of the world, but the welterweight crown. Skipping an entire class, he has deliberately put on 10 pounds in weight to help him in his battle. And when the bell rings in Log Island Bowl tomorrow night he will be in there against no run-of-the-mine champion, but against the fellow who, until Armstrong came along, similarly was labeled as the finest fighter for his pounds in the world.

What will happen when Henry Armstrong meets Barney Ross is the most intriguing question in prize ring history since Jack Dempsey climbed through the ropes to meet Tunney in the return match at Chicago in September, 1927.

Can the windmill fury of Armstrong's short punches and ceaseless boring-in tactics prevail over the stylish defense of Barney Ross?

Will the sharpshooting Ross with his lightning jabs and heavy right-hand punch slow up the little Negro who has never given ground in any fight since he first came into national notice?

What will happen if Ross elects to slug it out toe-to-toe with Armstrong, as he was willing to do with the hard-hitting Jimmy McLarnin on occasion? In those exchanges, it was Ross, not McLarnin, who emerged the winner.

Suppose that Ross, the master boxer, is able to keep Armstrong off balance as he did McLarnin and Garcia and thus nullify the effectiveness of the Negro's punching.

The folks down in Josephine street really aren't concerned with all of these technicalities, though. They want the answer to only one question: Did dat l'il Jackson boy win again?

Three D. C. Girls Enter Semifinals

Helen Dettweiler Paces Victors in Tourney at Baltimore.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 26.—The rain that held off begrudingly all week descended in a deluge on the Maryland State Womens' golf tournament today at Elkridge Hunt Club and swept away three of the four remaining Baltimore hopes.

Mrs. Jerome Sloman carries the local colors into the semifinals tomorrow. The quarter-finals today were Washington vs. Baltimore in every instance. In every case, but Mrs. Sloman's, Washington survived. The dark horse of the tournament, Mrs. Myron Davy, will meet Mrs. Sloman and the defending champion, Helen Dettweiler, will oppose Mrs. L. G. Pray.

It was Mrs. Pray, who has never gone beyond a State semifinal, who upset the seven-time champion, Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, 1 up on the nineteenth hole. Miss Dettweiler defeated Gladys Greiner, 5 and 4. Mrs. Davy conquered the long-driving Elizabeth Janney, 4 and 2.

Other D. C. Women Win.

Three Washingtonians remain in the lower flights, Mrs. E. M. Amick, Mrs. Florence Godfrey and Mrs. C. D. Bills.

Mrs. Sloman won five of the first nine holes to be 3 up at the turn with a medal of 45. Her strokes soared on the 575-yard second where she was on the green of the par 6 stretch in 5 and three-putted. Her third win was by a birdie 4 on the ninth.

Mrs. Stokes holed a long putt to win the eleventh with a birdie 4 to be 2 down. She missed her second shot on the twelfth and annexed the thirteenth where Mrs. Sloman three-putted. Mrs. Sloman ended the match with a long putt on the seventeenth.

The upset of Mrs. Morrow was the second major surprise of the competition, the first being Mrs. Betty Meckley's defeat yesterday. In spite of terrific beating by the rain, Mrs. Morrow and Mrs. Pray made 89s for 18 holes.

Mrs. Pray Gets a Par.

Mrs. Pray opened her attack with a par 5 on the firsts followed by Mrs. Morrow's win with a par 6 on the difficult 575-yard second. They shared the next three. The sixth Mrs. Morrow took with a birdie 4. While Mrs. Pray was addressing the ball on her second stroke, it changed its position. She finished with a par 3 but incurred a stroke penalty to halve the hole.

The match was evened for the second time when Mrs. Pray parred the eighth for victory. They divided the ninth in par 5s to be

Four Qualify For Big Race

By the Associated Press.

Indianapolis, May 26.—Making his run just at dusk, Kelly Petillo, little Los Angeles Italian, won a place in the starting line-up today for the 500-mile Indianapolis motor speedway race on his third and last qualifying trial.

Petillo was one of four drivers to qualify, bringing the starting field to a certain 23. Ten more places remain to be filled in trials to be held tomorrow and Saturday.

Petillo averaged a safe 119.827 miles an hour today, but he wound up his maroon speedster to 124,723 miles an hour on his last lap.

"Boy, that's sumhin," pe said, as he climbed from the car. "Now for the race, and watch cut."

"I was kinda worried a couple of times," he added. "She seemed like she was slowing down."

Others who qualified today were Al Putnam, of Los Angeles, at 116.791 miles an hour; Al Miller, of Detroit, at 119.420 miles an hour, and Shorty Cantlon, of Detroit, at 120.906 miles an hour.

Trials will be held again tomorrow from 1 until 7 p. m. Saturday trials will be held from noon until 4 p. m., and the track then will be closed until the start of the race Monday morning.

Victory in Last Event of Day Gives Invaders 67-59 Triumph Over Cardinals; Leo Wall of Cards Is High Scorer of the Meet.

Scoring the deciding points in the final event, the broad jump, La Salle College, of Philadelphia, trackmen defeated Catholic University in the mud at Brookland Stadium yesterday, 67 to 59. It was the final meet of the season for the Cardinals and only their second defeat in dual competition.

Leo Wall, Catholic U. winner of the 120-yard high hurdles and second in the 220-low hurdles and 440-dash, was high point scorer of the meet with 13, followed by Corbett, C. U., who won the mile and 880-easily, and Loughney and O'Neill of the visitors, all with 10 points.

O'Neill of the visitors clinched the victory broad jump, final event on the card, by winning with a 19-foot 6-inch leap. Moutenot and Gil Borges, of the Cards, followed.

The track conditions prevented any new records.

Bruns Wins Over Brown

Another 'Freak Decision' Marks Mat Rivalry.

Bobby Bruns, of Chicago, defeated Orville Brown, of Kansas, in 38 minutes in the feature wrestling match at Turner's Arena last night to win the right to meet Jim Londos in the season's first outdoor mat card of the season at Griffith Stadium next Thursday.

Bruns was the victor in a freak decision, the second of its kind in the three-time rivalry between last night's principals. Brown attempted to down Bruns with an airplane spin several minutes before the match ended. He hoisted his foe on his shoulders and began the famous Londos specialty.

Bruns' legs became tangled in the ropes, however, and "Cyclone" Burns, the referee, attempted to untangle them. As he did, he was knocked out when Bruns was freed, as Brun's feet kicked him squarely in the face.

Brown flattened Bruns and had him pinned, but, with the referee out "cold," no decision was rendered. Shortly afterward, though, Bruns scored on a body slam, and the referee, revived from his experience, counted Brown out.

Chief Thunderbird, a member of the supporting cast, provided one of

Yates Lone American in British Golf

All Other U. S. Stars Beaten in Amateur Golf Abroad.

By the Associated Press.

Troon, Scotland, May 26.—Another fair-haired boy from Atlanta, blythe and forthright Charley Yates, stood alone tonight as America's hope in the British amateur golf championship.

Still wearing and swearing by the lucky red flannels sent him by his townsman, Bobby Jones, Charley lived through wild wind and torrential rain to reach the quarter-finals, while Johnny Goodman, Chuck Kocsis and Fred Haas, jr., were blown away.

In the morning, bundled up to the eyes and laughing like a child, Charley came out and rifled around the first nine, full against the wind, in 34, two under par. That was practically enough to dispose of Andy McClure, who went out four holes later, 7 and 5.

Yates came in soaking wet, took off the Jones flannels and personally took them to the drying room. There he waited until they had dried, then put them on again and finish his day's work with a 6-and-5 victory over W. M. Robbed the Perthshire doctor who yesterday eliminated Defending Champion Bob Sweeny.

Goodman Is Beaten.

Those, however, were the only happy spots in this bleak and, for America, unlucky day. Before Charley started his morning match, Goodman went out against Kicsis—a strangely subdued Goodman and a fierce and faultless Kocsis.

For one solitary hole Goodman held the upper hand. He won the first when Kocsis' drive skidded into the heather, but from then on it wasn't the Goodman who won the United States championship in 1937, and Johnny went out at 3 and 2.

Johnny made two mortal errors. He pulled his drive at the third and let the wind blow it into the gorse bushes at the fourth. Then he insisted on trying to hit out of the tall, slippery grass with his woods and after that fourth he never got ahead.

It may be that Goodman at his best couldn't have touched Kocsis, for this morning Chuck had power. He laid the ball against the wind with his irons like a Tommy Armour at his best. The ninth was typical of his superiority. He hit a terrific shot dead against the wind and got home with an iron while Goodman, far behind, pressed with a full brassie and thumped it along the ground.

In the afternoon, after Haas already had bowed out at 2 up to Sam McKinlay, Glasgow golf writer, it was another and a sadder story. Kocsis came out against Johnny Stevenson, the local pride, and committed every error in the book. He was swamped, 7 and 5.

Uses Sister's Putter.

He pulled his approach into the sand at the second, missed a two-foot putt at the third, lost both holes and never again got in the battle. Every shot Kocsis missed gave Stevenson confidence and by the tenth, where he was 4 up, the little Scot, who's a ringer for Seattle's Scotty Campbell, had polished him off.

Using his sister Jean's putter, Stevenson canned a 45-footer at the tenth and a 6-footer at the eleventh for birdies, and Kocsis was gone. Probably never in recent history, has a player looked so much like a champion in the morning only to lose touch with all his clubs so completely in the afternoon.

In contrast, Sandy Somerville, present Canadian and former U. S. titleholder, moved along like the wind and the rain. He had his worries with Walter McLeod, a really good Scottish player, whom he beat 1 up in the morning. But when it came to the stretch he had what it takes. He played the last six holes through a gale in 1 under par and won the match with two whistling woods to the green on the long sixteenth.

In the afternoon, beating R. C. MacGregor, jr., 3 and 2, Somerville had it about as he liked. It will take inspiration and great courage to beat Sandy.

The study of Haas' defeat by McKinlay is a simple one. The

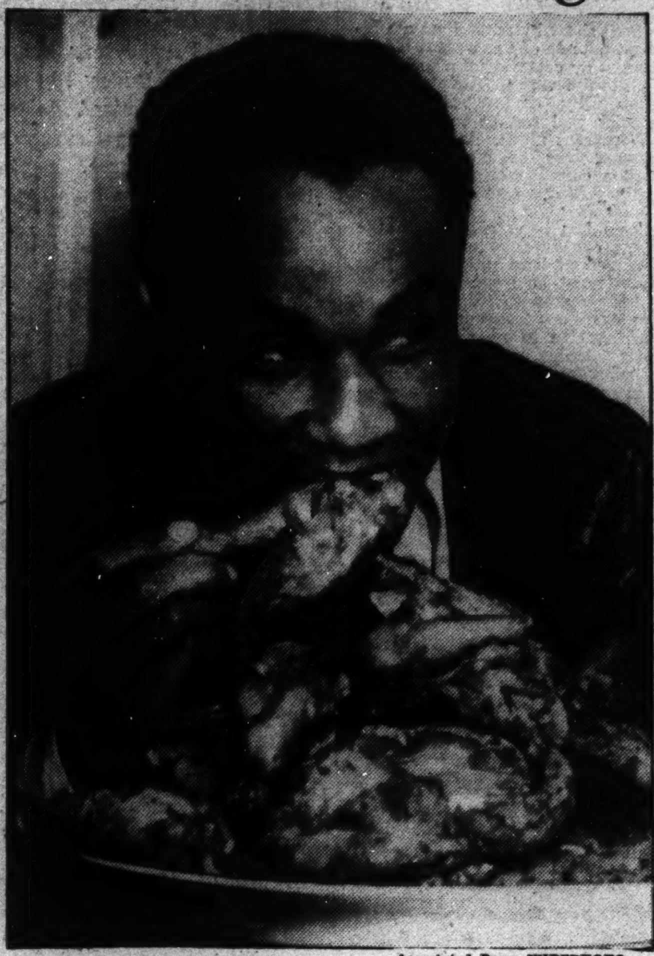
Ross and Armstrong Will Battle Tonight



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

It should be a great battle when Henry Armstrong (behind that pile of fried chicken) meets Barney Ross, welter champ, tonight, if Henry doesn't eat himself to death in the meantime. Rain postponed the outdoor 15-rounder and it looks here as if Henry might be trying to pick up some of that 5¼-pound weight advantage Ross showed at the weigh-in. Armstrong weighed 136¼.

Title Fight at New York Halted by Rains; Barney Has 4½-Pound Advantage; Second Weighing-In Ordered.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A Staff Correspondent.

New York, May 26.—The world's welterweight boxing crown still belongs to Barney Ross—at least for another day, because a damp, chilling rain forced a postponement of his 15-round championship joust with Henry Armstrong until tomorrow night.

Leaden skies hung heavily over Manhattan's canyons throughout the morning, and finally sprung a leak a little after noon. It was still raining at 6 p. m., giving rise to suspicion that the fight may have to be called off until next week. In this event it probably will be re-scheduled for Tuesday.

The fighters weighed-in at noon with the customary posing and picture-snapping in their undies, while officials, reporters and photographers milled around in the dungeon-like Municipal Building room. Ross made 141¾ pounds, and Armstrong, water-logged and stuffed with food, came in at 136¼ pounds—or just over the stipulated minimum.

Maj. Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, and private "Bogey Man" to the fight game, exploded a bomb-shell in Armstrong's camp by announcing that the principals will be required to weigh in again tomorrow at noon. This may be a death-blow to Armstrong's hopes, hounded as he is by the poundage problem.

Phelan gave the crowd a laugh when Armstrong stepped on the scales by going over the dusky dynamiter with a fine tooth comb to ascertain whether any gadgets were being used to help Henry make the required weight. He even examined the soles of Armstrong's feet, but found nothing.

Armstrong, who changed his original plans and spent last night at a friend's apartment in Harlem, appeared in a light spring hat, light-colored raincoat, and natty brown suit. He was nervous and on edge. He was in a bit of a fog as photographers made him shift poses for varied pictures. He took the business extremely seriously.

Ross, on the other hand, arrived for the ceremonies in a jovial mood and exchanged repartee with reporters, photographers and others.

The principals met the first time in a small anteroom off a larger room where the scales were located. Dr. William Walker examined them and pronounced them fit, before

Al Simmons' PinchDouble Settles Issue

Wright, Bonura, Lewis Hit Home Runs in Wild Game.

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

St. Louis, May 26.—Al Simmons, benched earlier in the day when Bucky Harris sent a left-handed hitting lineup against the Browns, sauntered to the batters' box in the ninth inning this afternoon and slugged the Nats to victory in a wild, tumultuous 12-10 ball game.

With the score tied in the ninth and two out Buddy Myer whacked one of Jim Walkup's pitches against the right-field screen for a double and then, with Buddy Lewis at bat, Simmons suffered an affront to his reputation. The Browns' board of strategy deliberately passed Lewis to bring Simmons to the plate.

The 35-year-old veteran of the Nats did not dally long in answering that insult. He met Walkup's first pitch solidly, sent a long two-bagger careening against the stands in right center and the winning runs were home.

Wes Ferrell today went in as a relief pitcher for the first time in five years and received credit for his sixth victory of the season after holding the Browns scoreless in the last two innings.

Wright Hits Homer.

The Nats had wasted leads of 2-0 and 8-4. Taft Wright broke up a 4-4 tie in the sixth inning by hitting a home run with the bases full.

The Nats were breezing out in front, 2-0, before the Browns got around to scoring. Buddy Lewis whacked his fifth homer of the season high onto the rightfield roof against Newsom in the first inning, and in the third Buddy Myer walked, stole second cleverly while Newsom was holding the ball, and romped home when Johnny Stone thumped a single to center.

Jimmy DeShong pitched four innings of scoreless ball at the start, but he wasn't exactly fooling the Browns. They were whacking the ball on the nose and the Nats were getting 'em out on line drives. In the fifth the crash came.

The first four men to face DeShong hit safely. McQuinn singled to left and Sullivan doubled to right. Heffner singled to center and then Newsom, himself, whacked a two-bagger between Almada and Simmons. Later, Kress doubled to center and the Browns had a 4-2 lead.

Newsom Wilts.

Newsom wilted in the sixth. Zeke Bonura greeted him with his sixth home run of the season—a potent drive into the left-field seats. That started a six-run barrage. Travis doubled down the right-field foul line, Almada singled to center to tie the score at 4-4, Rick Ferrell sacrificed, Pinch-hitter Goose Goslin walked, Lewis was safe when McQuinn muffed his grounder, and then along came Taft Wright.

The bases were full, the score was still 4-4 and Newsom had thrown two wide pitches to Wright.

Tazio Nuvolari Comes to Keep His 'Date With the Devil' in Big Auto Race at Indianapolis

By Paul Mickelson.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, May 26.—The Madman from Modena, Italy's tiny man of iron who goes around joking that he has a date with the devil, is back in this country after more adventure on the death-dealing racing strips—this time on the treacherous Blacktop speedway of Indianapolis.

Tazio Nuvolari is his name. Already this little, hard man who looks like he was made of half iron and half whipcord is almost an awesome legend in Europe. Stories of his harrowing accidents and escapes from his "date with the devil" are incredible. In some 15 years of racing he has won 99 important races here and abroad, a figure exceeded only by his escapes from death. At least 105 times he has cracked up. He thinks his escapes total more than that. He can't exactly remember them all.

Nuvolari, a man of 44 who captured the rich Vanderbilt Cup race in New York two years ago, arrived yesterday with more breathless tales to tell, but didn't stay long. Restless and eager to feel the road under him again, he skipped out on friends and a battery of press agents to rush to Indianapolis, where he hopes to drive in the rich 500-mile race Memorial Day. As usual, Nuvolari came over without a return ticket.

Wife Has Return Ticket.

"Maybe I must keep my date with the devil over here," he says. "No? Yes? So, why should money be wasted on a round trip ticket? No? Yes?" Mrs. Nuvolari accompanied him. She bought a return ticket. She doesn't risk life in those fearsome gas buggies.

But for a couple truant boys in Pau, France, last month, the "mad man," as the good citizens of Modena, Italy, call him, would have kept his fatal date as did Bernd Rosemeyer, of Germany and so many of his racing pals. His escape was a miracle if there is such a thing as a miracle left today in this mad, scientific world.

TAZIO NUVOLARI.

Nuvolari was speeding around the track in a rich race that day and looked to be a sure winner when suddenly, his gasoline tank cracked. Instantly, he was showered with gasoline. The next instant he was a human torch. And, to make it worse, he was tossed from his speeding car onto the track and knocked unconscious. People screamed and fainted but Nuvolari's priceless luck held. Two boys, who had violated rules by sneaking into forbidden territory along the track, rushed to his aid, extinguishing the fire and saving his life. All he suffered was a burn or two.

"Don't Be a Coward!"

After that race, the "mad man" decided maybe he'd better quit flirting with death. He had enough money saved for a life of comfort andn he still was in one piece. So he went to see his 74-year old father, himself once a dare devil in motorcycle races, but the old man, instead of being pleased, frowned.

"What? Retire?" exclaimed his father. "A young man like you? Why, you're just a kid. You've got many years ahead of you yet—good racing years. Don't be a coward."

So, Nuvolari is back risking his life—risking his "date with the devil." At Indianapolis, he hopes to drive and win, setting a new speedway record. If he can't win, he thinks Rex Mays will. He thinks Rex is America's greatest driver.

How long Nuvolari will keep on risking his life, he doesn't know. Chances are he will race once too often, like most of the others.

"Is Nuvolari Dead?"

After one of his most serious accidents at Turin, he was interviewed as he lay moaning from pain in a hospital bed.

"Well, Novolari," began the newspaper reporter, "I guess you're through auto racing now, so?"

The little man of iron half leaped from his bed. He was so insulted he couldn't speak for a few seconds. Then he fumed:

"Have you by any chance heard that Nuvolari is dead?"

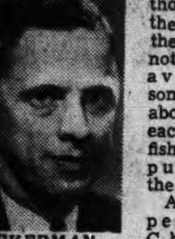
With Bill Akerman.

There is hardly a section that is not reporting sea trout being caught in greater numbers than for many years past. Running the coastal inlets and up the rivers and bays until it seems hard to find a place where there aren't any.

There is more than a sprinkling in the catches of hardheads being made almost daily in the Bloody Point area of the upper Chesapeake by Capt. Bob Lee's boats, running out of Shadyside. Like those around the mouth of the Patuxent, not large, but averaging somewhere about 2 pounds each—the size fish that stay put through the summer.



ACKERMAN.

At Kiptopeke, Cape Charles, Townsend's Inlet, Chincoteague, Wachapraque and Ocean City, catches of the big yellow-finned tide runners are being made with more than fair regularity, many of the individual fish running as large as 10 and 12 pounds. Mears at Wachapraque reports the largest there at 8 pounds.

Lewes, Delaware, is having a regular old-time run. The catches running from 60 to 100 and more per boat. What is most interesting, however, about this point, is the fact that local anglers have discovered it is productive of some kind of fishing activity from early spring until late fall. Until mid-December if you go in for the tackle-busting tautogs or black fish.

* * * *

Ray Adams and his three cronies, John Foote, John Hill and Ray Lewis, who take their fishing so seriously they follow the fish from the time they hit the North Carolina coast, have just returned from Lewes. Thirty of their catch of sea trout, totaling 62, weighed between 8 and 10 pounds.

There is no doubt the big channel bass are running the Del-Mar-Va beaches, but for some reason are slow in taking the proffered bait of anglers. The largest boated at Wachapraque so far is a 55-pounder.

Thinning out fast on the North Carolina coast, although Capt. Sam Tillett, at Oregon Inlet, reports 86 in the past seven days, but adds that he never worked harder in his life to get fish. Reports from other captains at the same place show totals of but five and six. There was one catch of small blues.

* * * *

For those who like to fish on the reef boats out of Ocean City, the season might as well be said to be officially open. Capt. Jim Lombard, on the Jim Dandy, reports the boats as averaging from 300 to 500 pounds of sea bass and porgies. His catch last Sunday was 300 pounds. Not the best of fishing, like that which comes a little later in the season, but still lots of fun for one who has never been in them.

A fishing more reasonable in cost than any we know of, particularly if the size of the catches is counted, for the charge is but $[illegible].00 per head, all bait supplied and even tackle for an additional [illegible] cents, for a full day's fishing offshore.

With settled weather, there is every chance that the large catches of hardheads made by several of Capt. Ed Bowen's boats at Solomons late Sunday evening are just a forerunner of what might be expected over the holiday.

Averaging between two and three pounds in weight, and the catches per boat well over 100, these fish were found in the deep water on the edge of the Chesapeake channel off the mouth of the Patuxent. The usual place for the heavy run, now almost [illegible] days behind time, to start, and as the days get warmer to spread out until it is almost impossible to drop a baited hook overboard without catching fish.

If anywhere near normal, and catches in the pounds show this season's run to be better than those of the past two years, this fishing should last throughout the month of June.

A note this week shows that the great 247-pound tarpon caught off Tampico, Mexico, by Harry Sedgewick, president of the Canadian Broadcasting Association, has been recognized as a new world's record for the species. This fish, measuring seven feet five and one-half inches in length, displaces the 242½ pounder caught by Jax Cowden in the Panuco River, in Mexico, in 1934.

Still short by more than a hundred pounds of the largest tarpon caught by commercial men in nets in Florida waters, there is every probability the record on this species will not go much above the present mark, for, with each passing year the average size of tarpon caught seems to be gradually getting lower.

* * * *

This has been credited to the habit of killing the large ones for record and mounting, but there must be some other more plausible answer, for, in spite of the decline of this great silver herring due to no regulation of their catching, and the yearly increasing number of anglers who pursue them, there still seems to be uncountable numbers to continue the sport unabated.

In fact, there appears to be an increase during the past several seasons of the schools that come each spring and summer in the passes and rivers of the Ten Thousand Island section of Florida, so just why the average size should drop until now—it is under 70 pounds—is more than we know.

Bosox Beat Indians, 8-4

Wilson Holds Leaders to Five Hits to Win.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, May 26.—Jack Wilson held Cleveland to five hits, one of them a ninth-inning home run by Ken Keltner, to pull Boston within two games of the league-leading Indians today. Jimmy Foxx's tenth circuit blow contributed to the 8-4 victory.

The win gave Boston an even split in the two-game series and came on a 14-hit shelling of three Tribe pitchers—Denny Galehouse, Johnny Humphries and Willis Hudlin.

Galehouse was chased in the fifth when he lost control and passed out three walks and a double. Boston tied the score at 3-3 on Humphries in the seventh, then went on to win from Hudlin with two tallies in the eighth and three more in the ninth.

It was the second straight victory over Cleveland for Wilson, Boston speed merchant, who held the Tribe to four hits the last time they faced him.

Foxx opened the deciding eighth inning with his circuit blow, and the Sox scored another on two singles and a sacrifice. Bobby Doerr, who batted in the second run, also plated two more in the ninth with a single, his third safe blow. Joe Cronin, Boston manager, had four hits, two of them doubles, in five trips.

Phillies Release 3, Get 2 New Men

Philadelphia, May 26 (AP).—The Phillies today released three players and acquired two new ones.

Pitcher Hal Kelleher and First Baseman Earle Browne were sent to Columbus, of the American Association, for Justin Stein, an infielder. Walter Stephenson, a catcher, was given his outright release. George Stainback, an outfielder, was purchased from the St. Louis Cardinals.

"The players we gave up," said Gerry Nugent, Phils' president, were of no help to us and with Stainback and Stein we now have two utility infielders and outfielders that I think will help us a lot."

Rittenhouse Wins East Potomac Play

Defeats Bobby Burton, 1 Up, on 39th Hole to Take Title; Sharkey Favored in Schoolboy Championship.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Gonzaga Preparatory School golfers, led by their undefeated captain, Buddy Sharkey, clinched the championship in the newly organized Metropolitan Scholastic League yesterday by defeating Georgetown Prep, 7 to 2, over the Congressional Club course.

It was the Gonzagans tenth consecutive victory in the 12-team circuit, and regardless of next Tuesday's match with Montgomery Blair, they will retain their position at the top of the standings. Bethesda is in second place with eight victories and two defeats.

Sharkey defeated the Little Hoyas' No. 1 player, Jack Dettweiler, 6 and 5, aided by a 36 on the back nine in the rain. Higgins, second player on the losers, won, 2 and 1, over Quinn of the champions, but Sharkey and Quinn won the best ball by a 3 and 2 margin.

In the second foursome, the singles were divided, Fitzgerald, of the winners, downing Brayer, 5 and 4, and Titus, of the Garrett Park school, winning by the same margin over Bodnar. Gonzaga won the best ball, 3 and 2.

The Gonzga fifth and sixth players swept the points in the final foursome, Beuchert defeating McDonnell, 5 and 4; Springer winning, 8 and 6, over Mesech and taking the best ball, 6 and 4.

The winners will receive the Metropolitan Scholastic League trophy next Wednesday in an assembly at the school.

Standing of the teams, and the final standing in the high school series follows. The league play will be concluded next week with four matches.

Metropolitan Title Tourney Starts Today.

The fifth annual Metropolitan Schoolboy Golf championship will begin today with qualifying rounds for the 16 places in the championship flight over the Georgetown Preparatory School course. The winner will receive The Washington Post trophy for a year and a replica for permanent possession.

Minus a defending champion or former winner, the event will nevertheless have a heavy favorite in Gonzaga's Buddy Sharkey, who is playing in the event for the fourth time. He has been medalist once, finalist once and semifinalist on two occasions.

The event will also serve as the official opening of the new Prep School course, that has been lengthened by some 600 yards and now extends completely around the school and boasts four new holes.

Sharkey will play at 1 p. m. with Ralph Bogart, Wilson and Brown of Western. Fifty-three schoolboy golfers have entered from 13 schools. Because of examinations the host school will have no entries.

Match play rounds will begin tomorrow morning, with the quarterfinals in the afternoon, the semifinals Sunday morning and the finals Sunday afternoon. Ralph Fowler, president of the District Golf Association, will award the Post Cup to the winner.

Pairings and starting times:

1:00—Sharkey (Gonzaga), Bogart (Wilson), Brown (Western); 1:05—Fitzgerald (Gonzaga), Suit (Roosevelt), Sullivan (St. John's); 1:10—Bodnar (Gonzaga), Vass (Western), Skinker (Wilson); 1:15—Springer (Gonzaga), Lord (Bethesda), Reagan (St. John's); 1:20—Quinn (Gonzaga), C. Rittenhouse Wins East Potomac Title.

M. W. (Dutch) Rittenhouse, newest public links star, lived up to the pre-tourney notices yesterday by winning the East Potomac Spring tournament from Bobby Burton on the thirty-ninth hole of their final round battle on the downtown municipal course.

Starting the 39-hole encounter at 2 p. m. and playing over a course dotted with puddles, the participants played fine golf despite the conditions and the winner was only a few shots over par at the finish of the match.

Burton was 1 up at the halfway mark but the eventual winner won five holes in succession on the third nine and led by a 4-hole margin. Burton came back with a subpar 33 on the last nine and squared the match on the thirty-fourth hole. They halved the next four in par figures and Rittenhouse holed a 20-foot birdie putt on the thirty-ninth for the victory.

Burton's round included three chip shots that found the cup from off the green, one from 50 yards back that squared the match on the back nine. The winner received a golf bag. The match climaxed the 20-flight tournament, largest ever held here on the municipal courses.

Rittenhouse was touted by both the host club professional, Mel Shorey, and the manager, Tommy Doerer, jr., as being the successor to Claude Rippy and this, his victory over Burton, Harding Cup team member last year, was no surprise to the tournament followers. He will be unable to play in the remainder of the local tourneys, however, as he is leaving for Tennessee in the near future.

Harrison May Sub For Sharkey Sunday.

Indian Spring's No. 1 team in the Maryland State four-ball championship semifinals on Sunday Buddy Sharkey and Arthur Urban, will have to be split if Sharkey is in the final round of the scholastic championship.

The team is scheduled to meet Frank White and Bill Pendergast, of Capital, over the Columbia course, with Elliott Spicer and Roy Sasscer, of the Four Corners Club, meeting Ernie Caldwell and Gene Bruning, of Hillendale, in the other match.

Lou Harrison, Argyle Club champion, now a member of Indian Spring, will probably pair with Urban if Sharkey is playing for the scholastic title, the finals of which also fall on Sunday afternoon.

Favored Players Win At Washington Club.

Favored players won their way to the semifinal round of the Washington Club championship yesterday and will meet on Saturday to decide the final-round opponents.

Medalist Pat Patteson defeated E. T. Furr on the last hole, winning with a par 4, while Dr. E. T. Rice was carried to the nineteenth before he eliminated Felix Early with a bridie. Rice missed a short putt on the eighteenth green to end the match.

J. B. Heron is the other semifinalist. He defeated J. B. Powell by a 4-and-2 margin. Joe Baldwin was a round ahead of the field, having won two matches on Tuesday. The semifinals find Patteson and Heron meeting in the upper bracket and Baldwin and Rice in the lower.

John C. Hayes, of 1726 Massachusetts avenue, with his 65-pound Marlin from Capt. Harry Gilbert's boat, the Pal. The fish measured 7 feet, with a tail spread of 22 inches, a girth of 25 inches and sword of 20 inches. It took Mr. Hayes 25 minutes to boat the marlin.

Ross Still Favored

they entered the larger room to step on the scales. Ross was on first and Deputy Commissioner Joe McOwen checked him off quickly.

No words were exchanged until Armstrong had been weighed, and both were dressing. Gen. Phelan summoned the press and gave the fighters their instructions as they donned street clothes. When the matter of low punches came up Sam Pian, one of Ross' managers, asked for a direct explanation of penalties.

"If fouling is continued then, after warning the offender, he will be disqualified," he said to Phelan.

"We'll throw him out," Phelan declared. "This must be a clean fight and may the best man win."

Then Ross stepped forward quickly, offered his hand to Armstrong and said, "See you tonight." Armstrong nodded and they parted until the referee calls them to the center of the ring for instruction immediately before the actual fighting begins.

The postponement would have helped Armstrong had not Phelan insisted on another weight ceremony tomorrow morning, although this is contrary to the law, which reads that fighters need not weigh in a second time unless a bout is postponed more than 48 hours. Henry, a trifle skeptical of the whole business, now is faced with the problem of keeping up to the required figure of 136 pounds and likewise retain his fighting edge.

When the postponement was announced at 3 p. m. Eddie Meade, the chocolate soldier's manager, hustled his man over to Lou Stillman's gym for a workout and, although his weight at the conclusion was not divulged, he probably lost a pound or two. Tomorrow morning he must drink more water and milk, stuff more food in his tummy and make 136 pounds again.

Speculation is rife among wisened ring critics as to just what will happen if Armstrong fails to make the weight. No forfeit is posted, and it is hardly likely that the show would be called off.

Ross is still on top in the wagering, with the odds apparently pegged at 8-5. Armstrong money appeared as if by magic when word of the postponement spread around, but disappeared as quickly when it became known that he will have to weigh in again.

Barney is supremely confident, and as calm as a sleeping babe. It's just another fight to him, nothing more, and his attitude indicates as much. Ross evidently is going to let his actions in the ring speak for themselves. He's ready, come what may.

A cloud of gloom hovered over the Hippodrome offices of Promoter Mike Jacobs, who is none too happy about the whole affair. Box-office windows were as deserted as the Sahara at noon, and some tickets were even being turned back for refunds as fans found themselves unable to remain over for the fight. It is no secret that some of the farthermost $16.50 ringside pews were quietly being peddled for $11.50.

Another factor that hurt the gate, apparently, was the cancellation of the War Admiral-Seabiscuit match race. Many reservations were canceled because the race is off. At best Jacobs looks for approximately 35,000 fans tomorrow. If it's held over until next week he'll drop a sizable wad on the match.

Cards Release Two, Sell One To Rochester 9

St. Louis, May 26 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals' office announced tonight Pitcher Si Johnson had been sent on option to the Cards' Rochester farm in the International League, Outfielder George Stainback sold outright to the Philadelphia Nationals, and that Southpaw Roy Henshaw would remain on the Cards' roster.

Transfer of Johnson left the next move in the Landis-Rickey-Breadon "checker game" up to Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, who ordered Johnson and Henshaw back to the Cards from Rochester, where they had been waived.

It backed up Boss Branch Rickey's contention that Johnson was not major-league material.

The Cardinals, if Landis permits the optioning of Johnson, are within the 23-player limit with 48 hours to go on the week's extension granted by Landis subsequent to his ruling returning Henshaw and Johnson.

Slinging Sammy Baugh, another player the Cards found still with them this week, was sent to Rochester Tuesday on option.

Riders' Game With Raiders In Spotlight

Battle for Runner-Up Holds Interest; High Nines Busy.

With first place honors in the Inter-High series practically clinched by the defending champion Eastern team, which meets Anacostia at Eastern Stadium today, the spotlight will be turned to the fight for second place as Roosevelt meets Western in another public school title series game on the diamond at Roosevelt stadium. Both games are scheduled for 3:30 p. m.

Western has won three and lost one to stay within shooting distance of the Lincoln Parkers, who have won four straight. And with only Anacostia, still occupying the cellar, and Tech to dispose of, the prospects of an upset of Eastern by either of these two clubs does not seem likely.

But the Red Raiders have a fighting chance. If Coach Cliff Moore's charges chalk up a win over Roosevelt today and Tech springs a surprise and downs Eastern, the race would be thrown into a tie. This is just what Coach Moore is anticipating as he sends Toby Bright, one of the better series hurlers, against the Rough Riders.

Roosevelt's nine has been moving along at a fast pace behind the excellent flinging of Jack Redinger, who has to his credit two interhigh wins. The Riders, by taking the battle from the Raiders, would step into sole possession of the runner-up position.

In other high school games, Central entertains Fredericksburg; Washington-Lee High plays George Washington High at Arlington, Va., Laurel High and Mount Rainier will mix on the Laurel Field, and Bethesda-Chevy Chase engages the Montgomery-Blair nine at Garrett Park.

Local Boy's Pilot Wants Bigger 'Cut'

Fishel Wants $1,200 if Former Champion Is to Get That Much.

Returning yesterday from a trip to Philadelphia and New York on boxing business, Goldie Ahearn, Joe Turner's matchmaker, ran into another boxing headache in the form of Syd Fishel, manager, and his fighter, Georgie Abrams.

Ahearn announced that his next outdoor show at Griffith Stadium would be on Monday, June 6, and that he is most anxious for Yarosz and Abrams to clash, with the winner to meet Freddy Steele, the current middleweight champion, late this summer.

Yarosz had agreed to a $1,200 guarantee, with all expenses paid. Upon learning this, Fishel stormed into Ahearn's store yesterday and demanded an equal guarantee for his protege.

Ahearn said, "That's gratitude for you in the boxing business. I built Abrams up from a mere preliminary fighter to a headliner. I think Abrams is a good fighter. He deserves all he can get, but I can give only so much."

Ahearn informed Fishel that he would give him 24 hours to decide whether he would accept terms previously arranged.

But Fishel fired back at Ahearn as follows:

"My fighter is willing to meet any middleweight in the world, preferring either Yarosz or Steele. His record speaks for itself. Only one fighter has a better record—and that's Henry Armstrong. Georgie has won 19 out of 20 fights, and licked Jimmy Jones, who beat him in a previous match.

"It took plenty of heart for Georgie to come back in two weeks and decision the man who had defeated him. Believe you me, in any man's book,—only real fighters can do that. Pay me what my fighter is worth or there'll be no fight. You made me turn down an offer to fight on the Armstrong-Ross fight, and I deserve some consideration."

In the meantime if the Yarosz-Abrams fight does not materialize, the matchmaker will cast about for another bout—perhaps to match Reid, Joey Archibald or Pete Scalzo.

Nats

The fat boy looked down the coaching line for a sign from Bucky Harris and got it. It was the hit sign. And that's what Wright did. He hit an enormous home run high on the roof of the stands in right center atop the 354-foot sign and Washington had an 8-4 lead after runners finished crossing the plate in a veritable cascade of tallies.

Harris gave Harry Kelly the job of protecting that lead and Kelley made a mess of it. He pitched a run back to the Browns in the sixth when Mezzera singled and McQuinn doubled and then in the seventh he had a horrible time of it before he was taken out.

Harland Clift greeted Kelley in the seventh with a home run into the left field seats and Bell knocked him out of the box with a double to left. In came Ken Chase to run into a pair of singles by Pinch-hitter Ethan Allen and George McQuinn, and after he filled the bases by walking Hughes, out he went. But not until he pitched three balls and a strike to Heffner.

Under these discouraging circumstances young Joe Kohlman relieved Chase and Heffner eventually knocked a fly to Almada that drove in the fourth run of the inning and tied the score. But a pass to Pinch-hitter Heath and Mills' single produced two more runs and the Browns went to the front, 10-8.

Russ Van Aatta was pitching when the Nats came to bat in the eighth and with one out they got a break. Lewis drew a walk and Van Atta took Pinch-hitter Al Simmons' single and hurled it nowhere in particular in an attempt to turn it into a double play. Both Lewis and Simmons were safe. Johnny Stone walked to fill the bases and in came the right-handed Walkup to face Zeke Bonura.

On the first pitch, with the bases full, Bonura hit the wall in left with a line drive that was held to a single and home came Lewis and Simmons to tie the score at 10-10. But, with only one out and Travis drawing a walk to fill the bases again, the Nats got no more out of the situation, because Almada grounded into a second-to-home-to-first double play.

Harris gave Wes Ferrell the job of protecting the Nats' interests thereafter and he appeared to be in trouble when Red Kress led off the eighth with a single against the left-field fence, but Almada shot the ball back to Buddy Myer at second and with a sensational dive toward the bag Myer caught Kress trying to stretch his blow into a double. Then, in the ninth, the Nats won the ball game.

Man of the Month

Heroes and bums were a dime a dozen yesterday in the free-for-all 12-to-10 victory over the Browns by Bucky Harris' boys. But Al Simmons, who accounted for the winning runs, was the Man of the Day.

To Simmons, four points in the Man of the Month Club because his timely double in the ninth drove in the winning runs, after Lewis was purposely passed so Van Atta could pitch to Simmons.

To Zeke Bonura, two points, because his sixth home run of the season and two singles accounted for three of the Nats' runs.

To Wes Ferrell, two points. His hurling in the eighth and ninth frames was just ordinary but it finally stopped the Brown's bats after they had pounded three other pitchers for 14 hits and 10 runs. They made only one hit off Ferrell, who was winning his sixth victory of the year.

Ky Laffoon, Dudley Lead

Toledo, Ohio, May 26.—Big Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, and Ky Laffoon, the Chicago Cherokee, ripped eight strokes off par today with a 63 to beat Lawson Little and Jimmy Demeret, 6 up, snatching the lead at the end of the first round of the $4,600 Inverness invitational best-ball matches.

Little, former grand slam amateur king of America and Great Britain, and Demeret had a 69, with Little kicking three of the four birdies scored by their team.

Willie Goggin and Frank Walsh (31-34—65) 5 up on Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta (35-35—70), the 1935 champions.

Harry Cooper and Horton Smith, defending champions (34-32—66), three up on Dick Metz and Gene Sarazen (34-35—69).

Vic Ghezzi and Sam Snead (31-35—66) even with Jimmy Thomson and Tommy Armour (33-34—67).

Under the Inverness scoring system a team gets a "plus" score of the number of holes it is "up" at the end of each round, while the losers get a "minus" of the number down. At the close of the first of the seven matches, in which each pair meets each other twosome, the rating is:

Dudley-Laffoon plus 6, Goggin-Walsh plus 5, Smith-Cooper plus 3, Ghezzi-Snead even, Thomson-Armour even, Metz-Sarazen minus 3, Picard-Revolta minus 5, Little-Demeret minus 6.

Red Ruffing Halts Tigers; Yanks Win

Gives Up But Seven Hits as He Takes a 5-1 Decision.

By the Associated Press.

The big right-hander turned in a sparkling seven-hit effort in his first start since the "flu" got him on May 8, and the world champions whipped the Tigers, 5 to 1. Red fanned ten, walked only one and allowed only three Tigers to get as far as third base as he posted his fifth win of the year against one defeat.

The big guns of the Yanks, Joe DiMaggio, Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey, didn't give him much help, but the weaker hitters showed an unexpected punch to lead the nine-hit attack off Schoolboy Rowe and Poof Poffenberger. Shortstop Frank Crosetti collected three straight hits his first three times up and had a perfect day at bat as he walked in his final two appearances. Billy Knickerbocker had a pair of singles and drove in a run with each.

The Yanks stepped away to a two-run lead in the fifth when Tommy Henrich walked, advanced on a sacrifice and came home on Knickerbocker's single. "Knick" was brought around a few moments later by Crosetti's hit.

The Tigers collected their lone run in the sixth on one of Charley Gehringer's two hits, a walk and Hank Greenberg's single to left.

That ended the Detroits, however, as the Yanks picked up their final three tallies at Poffenberger's expense in the eighth. Lou Gehrig, playing his 1,995th consecutive game, was hit by a pitched ball and went to second on a walk to Bill Dickey. Henrich brought both of them home with a two-bagger to left center. He was forced at third by Jake Powell, who scored on Knickerbocker's second hit.

Tennis Tourney Called by Rain

Barring more rain, they will be played today as scheduled with Margaret Robinson meeting Winnie Suttie at 3 o'clock and Sara Moore encountering Willie O'Steen at 4. Both are to be staged at the Army Navy Country Club. The finals will be played tomorrow.

The final doubles match between Mrs. Robinson and Dorette Miller and Anne Ellis and Margo Lee has been postponed indefinitely due to Miss Lee's absence from the city. It probably will be held next week.

Nats Take Three on Road

Special Dispatch to The Post.

St. Louis, May 28.—After staggering through the West on their most dismal road trip in recent seasons, the fourth place Nats tonight headed for Washington, where they resume play on Saturday in a two-game series with the Red Sox.

A recheck of the Nats' efforts since they left Griffith Stadium on May 13, reveals that the Washington Club lost 9 of it's 12 road games. After being knocked out of the league lead at Boston, the Nats have lost ground steadily.

They lost three straight at Boston, won only one of the three at Cleveland, lost two straight to Chicago, and divided a pair with the Browns.

The road swing was marked by the virtual collapse of the Washington pitching staff and a protracted slump by the hitters. Dutch Leonard, early season sensation, was knocked from the box in all of his three starts on the road, and Monte Weaver and Jimmy DeShong failed to win a single game.

Wes Ferrell turned in two of the Nats' three wins on the road trip with young Ken Chase accounting for the other—with his 12-inning victory over Cleveland.

Chief disappointment in the Washington batting order was big Zeke Bonura, who, until he emerged from his slump with three hits today, had been batting a cool .208 on the road with only five hits in 46 times at bat.

The lone consolation for the Nats is that despite their miserable record on the Western swing they are still within striking distance of the league lead they started out with. As a result of cutthroat competition by all clubs the Nats are only 4½ games behind the league-leading Cleveland Indians.

Rick Ferrell led the Nats at bat during the 12 games collecting 15 hits in 39 appearances at the plate for an average of .385. Al Simmons, .369; Buddy Lewis, with .339; Johnny Stone, with .309, and Ossie Bluege, with .388, were the other prominent Washington hitters. Mel Almada, only .204 during the swing, and Cecil Travis was a .286 hitter.

Caster Hurls Athletics to 4-1 Victory.

Chicago, May 26 (AP).—Effective pitching by George Caster ended a brief Chicago White Sox winning streak at three games today and gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 4-to-1 victory and an even split in the two game series.

While Caster kept nine Sox hits well scattered, his batterymate, Earl Brucker, led an eight-hit assault against Bill Dietrich and Sugar Cain with three singles and two bases on balls for a perfect day. Wally Moses, who either hit or walked in nine of his 10 trips during the series, was runner-up with two singles.

Hank Steinbacher collected three singles to top the Sox attack, effectiveness of which was cut down by three Philadelphia double plays

Grumpy Beats Castabout by Nose in Feature Race at Charles Town

Root Pilots $14.80 Shot To Victory

Two Wage Fierce Battle in Stretch; Hiblaze Takes Show.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 26.—Grumpy, a gelded son of Westwick which began his racing career here last week, made it two victories and a second in three starts by winning a thrilling nose decision from Castabout in the Great Falls Purse, a well-named feature event. With Jockey Bobby Root riding one of his best races, Grumpy brought his scattered backers a $14.80 mutuel. Two and a half lengths behind the fighting pair, came Hiblaze to take third money in the field of eight.

The race was run under cloudy, sagging skies and over a track that was deep in mud as the result of another deluge. Grumpy turned in the ordinary time of :53 3-5 for the four and a half furlong dash. Despite conditions, a good mid-week crowd witnessed the program. Castabout and Roving Eye were first to show in front as Starter White sent the field away in good alignment. This pair ding-donged along with first one and then the other in front. In the meanwhile, Root was saving ground with Grumpy. When Roving Eye stopped, Grumpy went after the leading Castabout and got him in the final jump.

Jim Arthur's Lucky Turn, with Apprentice B. Hacker in the saddle, scored an easy victory in the first race. Hacker kept the veteran mare on the outside, came around the leaders to take command and kept her in front to win by three lengths from Shebang, owned by H. R. Dulaney, jr. Bav, the early pacemaker, was third. The winner paid $7.

Silver Arch, running in the colors of O. S. Bloom and carrying the heavy money of the favorite players, turned in a convincing victory in the second race. The $3.40 shot forged to the front after a few jumps and led, among others, Big Toney and Whiskers to the wire. J. Taylor rode the winner.

Jockey Willie Obert, reported to have ridden his first winner in New Orleans in 1911, upset the short-shot players in the third race, bringing Zac Time to the wire two lengths in advance of Veritas, the choice, with Anywoman third. Obert took his mount to the front midway of the backstretch and drew out.

Eight men from the corners of the world now are left to battle it out. Two are native to this Scottish heath, Thomson and Stevenson; two are English, Leonard Crawley and two-time former Champion Cyril Tolley, and there's one each from Ireland (Cecil Ewing), Australia (H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUCKY TURN, $7.00, $3.60, $3.00; SHEBANG, $4.20, $2.80; BAV, $9.00.

LUCKY TURN, off well and placed on outside in better going, came around horses to take command along backstretch and was kept to drive to end. SHEBANG went forwardly and saved ground throughout to show good effort. BAV set early pace and hung on well. LUKE CONNELL could not threaten at any stage. DUN LUCKY had early speed.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:05½. Off 3:06. Winner, O. S. Bloom's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVER ARCH, $3.40, $2.80, $2.60; BIG TONEY, $10.40, $5.00; WHISKORA, $3.80.

SILVER ARCH, sent to front at once, opened a long lead and won with speed in reserve. BIG TONEY, away slowly, bettered position gradually on outside and closed with good energy. WHISKORA went evenly and showed good effort. JUSTA CANTER was made much use of pressing the pace and tired. STRAPOL had speed in spots.

WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, HEAVY.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:32. Off 3:32. Winner, Moody and Pollack's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZAC TIME, $22.80, $6.80, $4.60; VERITAS, $3.40, $2.80; ANYWOMAN, $3.00.

ZAC TIME, close up from start, went around VERITAS to take command, opened a lead gradually and was kept to drive to end. VERITAS was first away and continued willingly when displaced. ANYWOMAN raced on outside and closed with good courage. NO MISTAKE flashed early speed and dropped back. The others were outrun.

Daily Double, Silver Arch and Zac Time, Paid $35.00.

FOURTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:03½. Off 4:05½. Winner, E. Johnson's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRUMPY, $14.80, $7.40, $4.80; CASTABOUT, $16.80, $7.60; HIBLAZE, $3.20.

GRUMPY, well handled, saved ground throughout and, under driving tactics, was up in the concluding stride. CASTABOUT ran ROVING EYE into defeat and continued with good energy, but could not resist winner. HIBLAZE raced wide and closed gamely. ROVING EYE was used up setting and pressing the pace. SCOLD could not keep up. MAFUTA was squeezed back directly after break and failed to rally.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 4:31. Off 4:33½. Winner, C. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GAGNE, $16.80, $9.00, $5.80; PACK AWAY, $6.00, $4.20; CALEB, $6.20.

GAGNE, within striking distance of the leaders from the beginning, came through on inside entering stretch and drew out. PACK AWAY, forced to race on outside, was carried wide by CALEB entering stretch and closed gamely. CALEB was rushed up on outside to take command, but weakened after going wide entering stretch. WAR RUMOR closed with good energy. MADAME WALTER was racing well when crowded by GAGNE entering stretch and was pulled up sharply.

SEVENTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:31. Off 5:31½. Winner, H. P. Langdon's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AUFOIN, $11.80, $4.40, $3.20; PETEE LAD, $3.40, $2.40; NEWGRO, $5.40.

AUFOIN, outrun for three furlongs, improved position on inside, gained command entering stretch and won going away. PETEE LAD, taken under restraint when outrun, came to outside for move, was carried wide by NEWGRO and closed with good courage when clear. NEWGRO ran MERIDIAN TIME into defeat to open good lead, but weakened in final test. MERIDIAN TIME took command on outside under hustling tactics and tired. LADY DUNLIN could not threaten. PORTAM lacked speed throughout.

out in 45s and all even. Two more halved holes in fives ensued and Mrs. Morrow took the twelfth in par 5. They split the thirteenth in orthodox figures. Mrs. Pray added the fourteenth with a par 4 to square matters again. She one-putted after an accurate approach. Mrs. Morrow was trapped and had to shoot the ball to one side because of an obstructing hunk of grass.

Mrs. Morrow was up again by virtue of a par 3 on the fifteenth. But this advantage was erased as Mrs. Pray earned the sixteenth. Mrs. Morrow had a down-hill lie on the slope of a trap back of the green. They halved the seventeenth and eighteenth in 5s.

A 10-foot put from the back of the nineteenth green gave the match to Mrs. Pray with a 5 on the last hole. A bad lie in the rough robbed Mrs. Morrow of any chances of winning this hole.

Water Hampers Players.

Both Miss Dettweiler and Mrs. Davy were out in 41s as pools of water formed on the greens. Miss Dettweiler negotiated the seventh and thirteenth with a No. 6 iron, a putter being almost useless.

Miss Dettweiler and Miss Greiner both holed out long putts on the soggy carpets, the former a 20-footer on the fifth for a win and the latter a 25-footer on the third for a par-four half.

The fourteenth hole is a favorite with Miss Dettweiler as she has won every match there by margins of either 6-4 or 5-4.

Miss Janney was shadowed by a jinx all the way around in her 4-2 loss to Mrs. Davy. The club handles became wet and slippery and once a club flew out of her hand went father than the ball. She put four balls in the pool of the sixteenth tee.

From the eighth hole, Mrs. Davy held an assured lead. On the eighth she scored a birdie 3 by a long putt. The first four holes were alternated. Mrs. Davy took the fifth to be 1 up. She retained a lead from then on, widening it on the back nine.

Beaten Biscuit, full sister of A. C. Howard's 1937 money-winning champion pictured with her baby filly eight hours after she saw the light of day yesterday at the nearby Huntington Farm of Allan Clarke, Clarksville, Md., breeder. Beaten Biscuit was bred to Mowlee, Clarke's stud, which is rapidly gaining a high place among Maryland sires. Jean Olga Clarke, of Washington, Clarke's niece, is shown with the mare and her foal.

With Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Selections at Charles Town.

Apprentice Jockey W. Kirk took the "all-American" mud bath of the year today in the third race. He was aboard Double On Sea and the nautical name was most appropriate. The mare skidded and fell, Kirk actually going under water. Double On Sea then jumped the fence and was last seen headed for the highway along the backstretch. Kirk came across the infield, looking like an animated chocolate statue of a jockey. Apprentice Jockey R. Pinn is in the Charles Town Hospital suffering from injuries received this morning when J. W. Brown's Corn Row threw him in a workout. The horse went through the fence, tearing down four rails and two posts. Scratch time on Decoration Day will be at 8 a. m. to allow the printer to start the program work. The front and back windows of the mutuel department will be used Monday. L. Leith and R. V. Parrish shipped their horses to Wheeling. A. S. Bowman sold Schley Nurse to C. O. Ferguson at private terms. The track is offering a $1,000 handicap Saturday and another Monday. Wagering here is ahead of last year's spring meeting which was the best in this State since the sport was legalized in 1933. Bernard Bond, who only raced two horses here at this meeting, has shipped the pair, Penway and Small Change, to Agawam.

BILL.

First race — Macie Margaret showed enough in Maryland to make her an outstanding favorite in this company. Needs only to run her race. Asterisk gets in light and is dangerous. Engle's Lad may get a piece of the money.

Second race—Happy Chase appears nicely placed in the maiden field. Oh Alby is a fair sort and may make it tough for the top one. Bah's Choice has been around a long time and should awake.

Third race—Tody West may be the right pick in this rather open race. Berg will do the booting. Gee Sharp has been honest hereabouts and is a threat. Running Water may improve off that last. The same goes for Deadeye Dick.

Fourth race—High Explosion gets one more chance. This one hasn't gotten off well since the meeting began. With good luck, I look for a set of brackets. Blond Reel looms as the one to beat and will make the most of that inside position. Boulderdam to take care of the others.

Fifth race—Brooke Herod had a rough trip last out and almost won despite that fact. Seems suited here, and I'm going to string along. Celtic Legion galloped last out. Miss Epe for the show award.

Sixth race—Adriatic seems best of those gathered for this event. The big horse carries weight well, and I don't expect the 118 pounds to stop him. Red Nose would be due respect if taken off the reserve list. Lady Buck may take the others into camp.

Seventh race—Coattails, breaking from the inside, may steal a lead and stay on top to the end. Flying Carpet has given every indication of wanting a long route. Sun Voter downed cheaper company.

Best bet—Brooke Herod.

Superhighway To Jersey City Indorsed Here

Congressional Leaders and Road Experts Favor Express Plan.

An express highway linking Washington and Jersey City was indorsed yesterday by Congressional leaders and highway engineers of four States.

The project is backed by Representative Drew (Democrat), of Pennsylvania. He suggested that each State through which the highway pass construct its own link as an intrastate project, financed by bond issues and Federal work relief.

The investment, said Drew, might be self-liquidating under a toll system and the condemnation and resale of land along the route. Each State—New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware—would be required to plan and construct its own part of the suggested road.

Yesterday's conference was attended by Drew, Samuel W. Marshall, chief highway engineer, of Pennsylvania; W. W. Mank, Delaware highway engineer, and Nathan L. Smith, Maryland highway engineer.

Drew cited a Pennsylvania statute under which a $65,000,000 superhighway has been projected there, and secured from the engineers an agreement to investigate the legal possibilities of duplicating the Pennsylvania law in their own States.

A committee of House members, said Drew, will be appointed to develop and co-ordinate plans with the various State officials.

U. S. Missionaries In China Lauded

The fourteen American missionaries who have remained in Nanking since its capture December 13 by the Japanese, and who have helped organize and serve the 200,000 Chinese refugees there, have rendered as brave and heroic service as has been seen in the Far East, W. Reginald Wheeler declared last night at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church.

The vice president of the board of managers of University of Nanking delivered an illustrated lecture on "The Hitherto Untold Story of Nanking." He showed motion pictures taken before and after the invasion. He is in the city helping raise $300,000 emergency fund for 12 American colleges in China.

Battle Scenes in China To Be Re-enacted Here

A one-hour broadcast, re-enacting battle scenes and suffering of the Sino-Japanese war, will be presented at 10 o'clock tonight over station WOL and the Intercity network by the United Council for Civilian Relief in China. Organizations included in the council are Labor's Committee for Civilian Relief in China, American Bureau for Medical Aid to China, China Emergency Relief, Inc., and the Women's Committee for Civilian Relief in China.

New Plan Is Announced For Benefit of Jobless

Workers having unemployment insurance, who lose their jobs while outside the State in which they have acquired rights to unemployment benefits, will receive payments due them under a plan developed by the Interstate Conference of Unemployment Compensation Agencies, the Social Security Board announced yesterday. State unemployment agencies participating in the plan will act as registration and claim agents.

Terrace, Roof Opening Slated For Tomorrow

Shoreham and Powhatan Plan Programs for Summer Patrons.

By Chanticleer

A terrace and a roof garden will be opened to Washington entertainment lovers tomorrow, weather permitting. The Shoreham Terrace, in the midst of a rose garden, will offer La Fayette and Laverne, dancers, at the opening. The dancers will gave their interpretation of midnight life in Montmartre. The Honey Sisters, La Trianita, Spanish dancer and Dick and Leota Nash, "Two Dude Wranglers," will supply the comedy touch with rope work. For dancing, there will be music by Barnee and his orchestra.

At the Powhatan Roof, the music of Stephen LeSieur, formerly of the Congressional Country Club, will be featured.

Tonight on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard the Show Boat will open under new management. The Three Dees Trio, with Sally Smith, singer, will provide music. De Vaughn Clements, formerly of the Palm Lake ballroom in Miami, will direct; the cuisine will be under the supervision of Otto Minck, formerly of the Biltmore Hotel, New York.

At Glen Echo Park Henry Halstead and his orchestra are featured for another week. Halstead came to Washington from engagements at the Cocoanut Grove, Los Angeles; the Biltmore, Los Angeles, and the Netherland Plaza, Cincinnati.

The Lotus Restaurant has its air-cooling plant working full blast. The show includes the Great Rocheys, who tap dance on stilts; Fernando and Chermon, novelty dancers, and a solo by Elaine Georgie. Al Norton is the master of ceremonies, and Bill Strickland's Dixieland Swing Band features popular music. Shows are presented three times daily—at luncheon, dinner and late supper.

The Mayfair will offer new entertainment Sunday. Dio Dato, pianist; and Christine Tremayne, singer, will join Perry Martin in several numbers.

At the Metronome Room of the Wardman Park Hotel, the orchestra members have their new uniforms of tan and green. Ben, the captain, has replaced his tuxedo with a white mess jacket.

Brinkley's, in Southeast, has Mac McCaffery and his orchestra for summer evening. Try their long, cool Hawaiian drinks next time you drop in.

Club to Hear Gans.

Isaac Gans, member of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, will discuss "Washington, Past and Present," today at 12:30 p. m. before the Reciprocity Club at the Mayflower Hotel.

Wheat Rallies After Hitting Five-Year Low

Conflicting Forces Give Lively Finish to May Contracts.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 26.—Violent fluctuations covering 3¼ cents range in the last few minutes of business today gave a turbulent finish to active dealings in May wheat contracts. The net result was to leave the Chicago market varying from 1 cent overnight loss to ⅞ of a cent advance after new five-year low price records today had been established not only by May but all other deliveries here.

Conflicting forces were represented in the upshot, with rallies aided by notice of proposed big flour purchases for the United States Government. On the other hand, holders of May contracts anxious to escape acceptance of delivery of wheat here before the end of the month were eager sellers at times, and tumbled values down. Another disturbing influence was an extreme temporary fall of 5 cents a bushel for May at Winnipeg, making a total 10-cent drop in two days.

At the close Chicago wheat futures were 1 cent lower to ⅞ higher, compared with 24 hours previous, May 71¾@72, July 72⅝@72⅞, corn ¾ off to ⅛ up, May 54⅞@55, July 56⅝@56¾, oats showing 1⅝ setback to ⅜ gain, rye ¼ advanced and provisions unchanged to 25 cents decline.

SEC Officials Visit Stock Exchange Floor

New York, May 26 (AP).—At the invitation of William McChesney Martin, jr., recently elected head of the liberalized New York Stock Exchange Administration, SEC officials went on the floor of the exchange today to watch the trading wheels go around.

Ganson Purcell, director of the commission's trading and exchange division, and James J. Caffrey, New York regional director of the SEC, spent the trading day getting a first-hand view of how orders are executed around the posts of the big board. Simmering in the SEC's Wall Street studies are far-reaching proposals for making over the floor trading machinery.

Stock Trading Drops in April

The Securities and Exchange Commission reported yesterday that the dollar value of sales on all registered securities exchanges in April, 1938, amounted to $879,510,370, a decrease of 14.1 per cent from the value of sales in March and a decrease of 63.0 per cent from April, 1937. Stock sales, including rights and warrants, had a value of $750,572,335, a decrease of 15.2 per cent from March. Bond sales were valued at $128,937,580, a decrease of 7.2 per cent from March.

Total sales of stocks, including rights and warrants, in April were 35,758,900 shares or 16.2 per cent under March's total. Total principal amount of bonds sold was $180,796,275, a decrease of 10.2 per cent from March. The two leading New York exchanges accounted for 95.8 per cent of the value of all sales on registered exchanges, 95.1 per cent of stock sales and 99.9 per cent of bond sales. The total value of sales on all exempt exchanges in April was $495,232, a decrease of 30.5 per cent from March.

On the Washington Stock Exchange, April stock sales were $44,613 and bond sales $26,894, a total of $71,507, which compares with a total of $88,518 in March, made up of $76,624 in stocks and $11,894 in bonds.

Brokers' Loans Drop $15,000,000 for Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $447,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented a decrease of $15,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $1,124,000,000.

Arthur Meade Wins Bankers' Essay Contest

Albert L. Gloyd, of the Union Trust Co., in Second Place.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Arthur E. Meade, Lincoln National Bank, won first prize in the fifteenth annual essay contest of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, and Albert L. Gloyd, Union Trust Co., was awarded second, President Thomas J. Groom, of the bankers' organization, announces. Subject of the contest was "The Banker as an Economic and Social Factor, or the Banker's Place in the Community." First prize entitles the winner to a trip to the convention of the bankers association, which this year will be held at Hot Springs, Va., June 9-12. The winning contestant appears on the program and reads his essay to the convention. Second prize entitles the winner to $50 in cash.

A. E. MEADE.

The purpose of this contest is to encourage among junior bankers research in the field of banking to the extent that the participants may develop and present constructive suggestions for improving bank management and operation. Under the rules this year's contest was open to all members of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, in good standing on April 1, 1938, who were employes of banks which are members of the District of Columbia Bankers Association. Senior executive officers and those who had been winners in any two previous contests, were excepted.

In addition to the foregoing winners, honorable mention for the next two best papers was made to Robert G. Gries, American Security & Trust Co., and Robert A. Morgan, McLachlen Banking Corporation. Judges of the contest were Aubrey O. Dooley, assistant trust officer, Hamilton National Bank, who acted as chairman; H. H. McKee, president, National Capital Bank; C. H. Pope, vice president, Munsey Trust CSo.; I. J. Roberts, assistant cashier, Riggs National Bank, and James A. Soper, vice president and cashier, Lincoln National Bank.

Bond Club Outing.

Approximately 160 stockbrokers, stock exchange members and their guests, representing Washington's "Wall Street," will gather at Manor Country Club today for the annual outing and dinner of the Bond Club. Starting early with a golf tournament, a program of events as announced by President L. Clark Brown, of the club, will continue into the night, climaxing with a banquet at 8 o'clock. A puttting contest and horseshoe pitching will take place during the afternoon.

A unique method of distributing door prizes will be employed, according to Myles H. Quail, chairman of the outing committee. A mimic stock exchange will be set up, and trading of tickets will take place until, through a process of elimination, the winners are chosen. Nominated for election as officers

News of Coming Broadcast By President Lowers Stocks

Action on Tax Revision Bill Will Be Announced Today; Dividend Omissions Discourage Traders.

By Frederick Gardner.

Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, May 26.—Stocks encountered heavier selling pressure in today's market after a feeble rallying attempt in the morning failed to hold.

Declines ran to 3 or more points generally at the close, although offerings seemed to dry up in the final few minutes of dealings.

The afternoon set-back was coincident with word the President, in a broadcast tomorrow, would announce his action on the tax revision bill which has been lying on his desk awaiting disposal for a number of days. In view of possible market repercussions which might follow the Chief Executive's comments on the measure, brokers found their customers inclined to adjourn to the safety zone.

In addition, more dividend cuts and omissions and the cloudier business picture tended to make the atmosphere in boardrooms murkier. Stimulation also was lacking in Congressional developments where the battle over the wage-hour and pump-priming bills continued as a restraining market influence.

A number of new lows for the year were registered in the stock list. Discouraging to chart readers was the fact the industrial average broke through May bottom levels, which had been viewed as an important resisting mark.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .9 of a point at 37. It was the third consecutive day's decline. Transfers of 781,370 shares were the largest in more than two weeks and compared with 555,460 the day before.

Commodities Lower.

Lack of recovery signs in commodities and bonds was again a disturbing factor. Cotton broke sharply in the forenoon, but came back later to finish with net declines of 65 to 85 cents a bale. Wheat futures at Chicago toppled to new seasonal lows before getting a little help on announcement the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation would purchase 125,000 barrels of surplus wheat flour. This cereal ended off 1 cent to up ⅞ of a cent a bushel. Corn was down ¾ to ahead ⅛.

Aircraft shares led the early forward tilt on revived reports England was considering large buying of war planes in the United States. The British air mission left for home yesterday without giving any specific clues as to recommendations, although it was known the experts took with them extensive manufacturing plans. The aviation group later skidded with the rest.

While few expected Anaconda to declare a dividend at this time, the stock sank 2¼ points to 21⅛ when directors took no action on a disbursement. The company paid 25 cents a share in March. Crucible fell 2¾ to 20⅝ after Wednesday's deferment of a dividend on the preferred stock.

Most rails and utilities were in the retreating division, but these were hardly as weak as other groups. A few cheering notes were sounded by members of the American Iron & Steel Institute meeting here, but stocks in this category were far from heartened. U. S. Steel was off 1⅜, at 40¼, and Bethlehem yielded 2, at 40¾. Part of the improvement at the start was attributed to easing of tension over the German-Czech crisis.

Conspicuous share losers included Chrysler, at 39½; Montgomery Ward, 27⅛; American Telephone, 128; Kennecott, 27⅛; Westinghouse, 71; General Electric, 31½; Allied Chemical, 140; Eastman Kodak, 144¼; Union Carbide, 60; Douglas Aircraft, 40¼; J. I. Case, 71¼, and duPont, 94.

Power Bonds Firm.

Utilities held firm in a selling wave that developed in the bond market today, chiefly affecting rails, but also lowering industrial, foreign and low-yield divisions, according to Associated Press averages. U. S. Governments were mixed, showing changes in the Treasurys from an eighth of a point decline to increases of the same amount.

Some lines were hard hit. Toledo & Ohio Central 3¾s dropped 11 points to 85. I. R. T. refunding 5s dipped 9¼ points to 47¾. International Telephone 5s slipped 3¾ to 59¾, and the 4½s fell 2¾ to 56¾. Losers of two points or more included: Chicago & Western Indiana 4s at 85¾; Baltimore & Ohio first 5s at 42, and Louisville & Nashville first 4s at 75.

Among those down a point or more were Alleghany stamped 5s of 1950, American & Foreign Power 5s, Great Northern 4s of 1946 "G," Burlington 4s at 95⅛, M-K-T 5s of 1962 at 31, Nickel Plate 4½s, New Haven 6s of 1940 and Pennsylvania general 4½s of 1965. In the foreign list, Milan 6½s dropped 2 points to 60 and Rome 6s eased 1½ to 62. Italy 7s gained ⅜ at 75½.

Volume was $4,513,800, face value, compared to Wednesday's $4,335,125.

Johnson Tells Steel U.S. Likes Middle of Road

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 26.—Addressing the American Iron and Steel Institute tonight, Hugh S. Johnson said the United States is a "middle-of-the road" country and "it doesn't want to go off the deep end to the left with Mr. Roosevelt's janissaries any more than it wants to go deepward to the right with anybody in industry."

Business and industry, Johnson said, "haven't any choice at all of going back to unregulated economic freedom under futile antitrust laws. It can't be done. The change of popular opinion in this country toward governmental regulation has followed a great surge of popular opinion everywhere. The best you can expect is regulated freedom—like all the rest of the folks."

To industry, in general, Johnson urged the acceptance of a "middle course" and said it should take collective bargaining as a genuine representative of American sentiment.

Urges Slash in Prices.

To steel leaders, in particular, Johnson urged a cut in steel prices, "even at a considerable sacrifice in profits."

T. M. Girdler, president of the institute and chairman of the Republican Steel Corporation, defended current steel prices earlier in the day at the business session of the institute's annual meeting. He said:

"By what standard can it be said that present steel prices are too high? Certainly they are not too high relative to costs. Certainly they are not so high as to result in excessive or even large profits. The record on that point is complete. I will only point out here that, had prices been 10 per cent lower than they were in 1937, the industry's biggest year in production except for 1928 and 1929, the industry's profit last year would have been entirely wiped out."

Weir Assails Critics.

E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation and a vice president of the Institute, assailed those "self-appointed critics" of the steel industry who "speak with an unrestraint possible only to those who are completely unhampered by knowledge of the facts" and mentioned Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson by name.

"All American industry," said Weir, a frequent critic and opponent of New Deal legislation, "has distinctly failed to sell itself and thus has neglected to give the people of our country opportunity for a proper understanding of the fundamentals on which industry must operate. This, in my opinion, is more responsible than anything else for the fact that a large measure of public support can be won for so many crack-pot plans to regulate and control industry."

Johnson, former NRA Administrator, was critical of both the industrial leadership of the country and of what he has frequently referred to in recent months as "the Third New Deal," and declared:

"There is plenty of blame on both sides."

Scores "Red Extremes."

"There is little popular sentiment in this country," Johnson continued, "for the present Red extremes of the Third New Deal and even less for the worse ones, now rumored. But there is an overwhelming popular determination against going back to the old deal so far as it involves any denial to the people of the new-found right and power of the Federal Government to function politically in economic fields to the extent of reasonable regulation.

"The impression has gone out to this country, partly through Third New Deal propaganda and partly through the actions of some industrialists, that most of this industry wants to turn the hands of the clock clearly back beyond the first New Deal. * * * It is a widespread conviction and convictions make votes. Now people can express themselves only through political parties and it is an equally widespread conviction that the Republican Party, for all its protestations, harbors exactly the same principles and purposes.

Says We Must Compromise.

"It is not the question of going back to a vanished day or going forward to a Third New Deal nightmare. There is no going back. It is between that nightmare and a common-sense compromise, reasonable regulation against unreasonable regimentation. That is your only choice.

"If you can sincerely accept that middle course, and accommodate yourself to it, you can steal this Third New Deal show and save our system."

"What can you do?" Johnson asked. "Well, take this matter of collective bargaining by independent agencies of workers. It is the law of the land. It is the sentiment of the people. It is a trend of the times. . . . Some of you don't like it. But like it or not you have got to live with American sentiment, in accordance with American institutions and, while this may be a new one, it is none the less genuine."

Cites Popular Opinion.

"Take the question of prices. The whole country believes, including the foremost of independent economists, that iron and steel prices are too inflexible—sticky—and that their present levels are a principal influence retarding recovery. I know your problem as well as anybody and I also know the pros and cons of this whole price problem. But you are butting up here against a growing flood of popular opinion that can't be diverted and resisted as it could in the old days. Why don't you take some action here, even at a considerable sacrifice of profits, or even if some high cost producers are eliminated. You have plenty of them and there has been too much holding of umbrellas over lame ducks in this industry for a good many years. You know that as well as I do."

Weir said "the critics of industry resort to every medium of publicity

Cotton Breaks Over $1 a Bale

New York, May 26 (AP).—Cotton broke more than $1 a bale at one time today under general liquidation, but rallied partially at the close of covering. October, which had eased from 8.28 to 8.01, closed at 8.10 with final prices 13 to 17 points net lower.

The market opened 1 to 3 points lower with easier Liverpool cables offset by steadier Bombay advices. With foreign selling lighter, the market responded to scattered local and outside buying and soon was a point or two above the previous closing levels. Near Midday a small volume of offerings disclosed poor demand.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil was easier today and at new lows for the season in distant positions under renewed general liquidation and commission house selling promoted by the weakness of allied markets. Final prices were 14 to 15 points net lower with sales of 210 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal. July closed, 7.94; September, 7.70; October, 7:59; December, 7:54; January, 7:55.

Penn. R.R. Revenue Shows Sharp Drop

Philadelphia, May 26.—Railway operating revenue of the Pennsylvania Railroad for April was $27,919,068, a decline of $11,572,335 from April last year. Expenses for the month were $20,583,959, or $8,683,799 less than April 1937, leaving a net operating income of $3,246,169, a drop of $3,350,899 from April last year.

New York Central.

New York, May 26 (AP).—The New York Central Railroad showed net operating income for April of $82,340, compared with $4,205,629 in April last year, the company reported today. Gross income for the month declined to $22,947,750 from $30,677,027 a year ago.

Union Pacific.

Union Pacific Railroad today reported net operating income for April, before fixed charges and other income, totaled $572,862, compared with $177,545 in April last year. Gross income for the month amounted to $10,363,249, a decrease of $2,010,111 from April, 1937.

Steel Corp. Names 102 Underwriters

United States Steel Corporation filed an amendment to a registration statement with the Securities Commission yesterday naming 102 underwriters for its $100,000,000 bond issue. The amendment listed among the group the following firms and amounts:

Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., $12,000,000; Kuhn, Loeb & Co., $5,500,000; Blyth & Co., Inc., $3,300,000; Brown Harriman & Co., Inc., $4,750,000; The First Boston Corporation, $4,750,000; Lazard Freres & Co., $2,500,000; Lee Higginson Corporation, $2,500,000; Lehman Bros., $1,750,000; Mellon Securities Corporation, $4,750,000; Smith Barney & Co., $4,750,000, and Dillon, Read & Co., $4,750,000.

Excess Reserves Rise $70,000,000

The supply of lendable money in the Nation's banks rose to a year and a half peak of $2,630,000,000 in the week ended May 25, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

The supply, or excess reserves, was $70,000,000 larger than in the previous week. The increase was due to treasury spending of money freed by the recent de-sterilization of gold. The board reported that its 12 regional banks made no changes during the week in their holdings of Government securities.

Bank Clearings Decline 16.1% From Year Ago

Total for May 25 Week Also Falls Below Previous Week.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 26.—In a rather sharp dip from the volume of the week previous, bank clearings throughout the country remained substantially below the total for the corresponding period of the year preceding for the twenty-eighth successive time.

Total clearings for 22 leading cities of the United States for the week ended Wednesday, May 25, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., were $4,435,857,000, as against $5,284,141,000 for the like 1937 period, or a decrease of 16.1 per cent. In the similar comparison for the May 18 week there was a loss of 12.9 per cent.

New York's aggregate shrank to $2,654,266,000 from $3,122,596,000 a year ago, giving a drop of 15.0 per cent. Turnover for the 21 cities outside of New York amounted to $1,781,591,000, or 17.6 per cent less than the $2,161,545,000 for the corresponding 1937 week.

A contraction of 518,610,000 took place in this week's clearings, as compared with those in the May 18 compilation. Between the same two weeks of 1937 the difference was $400,903,000.

Bank clearings at leading cities, together with percentage declines from a year ago, follow:

	Week May 25, 1938 (000 omitted).	Per cent change.

United Shipyard Sale To Bethlehem Approved

New York, May 26 (AP)—Stockholders of United Shipyards, Inc., approved at a special meeting today sale of the company's property and business to Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation for $8,320,000.

Ratification of the sale, which was approved by 81 per cent of Class A stockholders, brought objections from Class B holders on the ground the price was inequitable and that Class B rights had not been considered. The latter stockholders were not entitled to vote on the ratification.

Johnson Tells Steel U.S. Likes Middle of Road

to paint private enterprise as a horrible failure and to attempt attainment of social and political desires which can do nothing but destroy the American standard of living.

"If the people were given the opportunity to judge on the basis of the whole truth, there is no question which road they would take. As it is, politicians like Mr. Jackson are able to attack our industry at will. Considering the prestige of his office and the plausible-sounding story that can be constructed on a framework of half truths and untruths, is it any wonder that he is given credence by persons who do not have the opportunity to know the facts? For purely political reasons, he attempted to shoulder blame for this Administration-created depression on what he called the monopolies in industry. And he classified steel as a monopoly.

"They say it is a monopoly or a near-monopoly when in fact it is one of the most highly competitive industries in the country. The very existence of National Steel Corporation is proof of the competitive character of our industry. Its development from a small beginning to its present status in the industry would have been possible only under competitive conditions."

T. M. Girdler, chairman of the Republic Steel Corporation, was elected president of the institute at the annual election of directors. Other officers re-elected were: William Irvin, vice president; E. T. Weir, vice president; H. L. Hughes, treasurer; W. S. Tower, executive secretary.

Personnel Problems.

L. Pierce Riddle, personnel director, American Security & Trust Co., addressed a meeting of the Clearing House Association of Loudoun, Fauquier and Prince William counties at Round Hill, Va., this week on the subject, "Personnel Officers and Personnel Problems in Financial Institutions."

Mr. Riddle explained the advantages and importance of a personnel management in both large and small financial institutions. He spoke as a member of the speakers unit of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, which was organized this year by President Thomas J. Groom, of that organization, for the purpose of acquainting the public with matters pertaining to banks and banking.

Business Notes.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 26.—Speculative interest in the stock market today again centered in gold mining issues with shares of Western holdings touching a new high despite large profit-taking sales. The industrial group was mixed, steels and tobaccos selling off, while aviation shares moved higher. Gilt-edged securities and trans-atlantics were fractionally down and the rubber group moved irregularly. Rayons eased following the announcement of a decline in production during April.

Paris.—The bourse was closed today in observance of Ascension Day.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures declined to new season lows and final prices were off 2d to 3¼d net. Contributing factors to the sharp break were, favorable American and French crop reports, large tenders on May contracts and weakness in the near positions at Winnipeg today. Cotton futures opened steady, but broke sharply in the afternoon under local liquidation and continental hedge selling. The market rallied at the close and finished 2 to 5 points net lower.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, May 26 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agr.) Business on domestic wools was extremely limited in Boston today. Few buyers were showing any interest in making purchases. Those who had limited needs to cover were able to secure their requirements at prices below last week's selling prices. Good French combing length fine territory wools in original bag were available in Boston at 60 to 62 cents, scoured basis. In some cases similar wools in the country en route to Boston were reported available at prices below 60 cents, scoured basis, delivered to Eastern buyers.

TAKOMA PARK, D. C.
Less than half original price.
In an effort to sell this property before the week is out the owner has authorized us to offer it at this ridiculously low price. It is a specious detached house of 8 rooms and 2 baths, on a lot 50 by 140. Modernly equipped with hot-water heating, electric refrigeration, gas, electricity, etc. Very convenient to shopping and transportation. It is seldom we use the word bargain, but while this house needs some repairs, there is no other word to describe the value offered here.

CHEVY CHASE, D. C.
$11,950
A new brick home in one of the city's highest elevations and best neighborhoods. From the rear of this house you enjoy a view for miles around. There are many outstanding features, such as air conditioning, built-in bookcases, stone fireplace, panel walls in living and dining rooms and a most attractive recreation room and bar, in addition to three well-lighted bedrooms and two beautiful colored tile baths.

CHEVY CHASE, D. C.
(In the heart of a Woods)
An outstanding builder and a competent architect have combined their skill and produced in the heart of a delightful wooded setting, a Williamsburg home worthy of its early Tidewater predecessors. If you seek a home that combines outdoor liveability with an equal charm within, you will be intrigued with the Colonial atmosphere of this one.

A practical floor plan includes 4 bedrooms, 4 baths, large living room with its early American fireplace, sun-flooded dining room, kitchen, maid's room, laundry service. The panel recreation room and bar has a full ceiling height and full-sized windows—a door opening on to a flagstone terrace. The terraced garden on the rear wooded hillside offers an unequaled retreat from summer temperature.

APPLE MARY

By Martha Orr

YOU CAN'T, BILL. THINK OF THE JAM I'D BE IN.
YUH SHOULDA THOUGHT OF THAT YERSELF WHEN YUH LIED TO HIM, ABOUT BEING MARRIED AND HAVIN' A LIL GAL.
JUST STAY A FEW DAYS MORE. HE'LL BE GOING SOON.
GET OUT! I HEARD HIM TELL SUNNY HE WAS SENDING HOME FOR MORE CLOTHES.
I WON'T LET THAT BIG GALOOT RUIN MY LIFE. I'VE GOT AN IDEA. IT'LL STOP HIM, AND PUT GRANDPA UNDER MY THUMB AT THE SAME TIME.

Bob Burns Says—

I never could see much use for high livin'. It costs just so much to buy the necessities of life and when you go beyond that, you're jest buyin' a lot of stuff that you have no real use for.

My Uncle Slug's wife went into a store one day to buy a drinkin' trough for her dogs. The man says "Well, we have some plain ones for 29 cents but I can give you one with 'dogs' written on it for 75 cents."

My aunt said "Well, I'll just take the plain one—my dogs can't read and my husband don't drink water."

Sally Rand Visits Father

When Fan Dancer Sally Rand came home to Kansas City for a visit she found a new relic of interest over the fireplace. It was her grandfather's musket, which she holds as her father, Col. William F. Beck, looks on. Sally let it be known she's still a fan dancer but her heart isn't in her work.
